Stand-in ship for Marguerite

FRESH RASPBERRIES in December? Not all that surprising to some green-thumbed Victorians perhaps, but it was a first for Winnifred Hickling, 81 Maddock Avenue West. In fact, she had pulled out this year's canes and the cane she's showing here was intended for next year. Maybe what she's eating is an early 1980 crop, not a late 1979 batch. (Bill Halkett photo)

Search on for Swedish replacement

By JAKE BANKY

A temporary replacment for the Princess Marguerite in time for next year's tourist season on the Victoria-Seattle run seems assured, the Times learned Monday.

The Marguerite likely will be replaced, perhaps for the next three seasons, by a Swedish vessel.

And, according to Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber, the decision to retire the Marguerite was made last August but kept secret from the public.

It's also been learned responsibility for B.C. Steamship Co., which operates the Victoria-Seattle run for the government, has been quietly switched within the cabinet from tourism to transportation.

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser said Monday B.C. Ferry Corp. general manager Charles Gallagher and chief of operations George Baldwin are en route to Sweden to inspect two vessels, one of which likely will be leased as a temporary replacement for the Marguerite.

Both ships under consideration are owned by the Stena Line, the same company from which the former NDP government bought the vessel Stena Danica, later rechristened Queen of Surrey. The Surrey until last week was being considered as a permanent replacement for the Marguerite.

After a protracted struggle within cabinet the Surrey wound up committed to the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run and last week began a $7.5 million refit.

Responsibility for B.C. Steamship now rests with Fraser instead of acting Tourism Minister Don Phillips.

Fraser says the only significance of the move is that all government-owned vessels now come under one ministry.

Barber today released a document which he says proves the government has been "less than candid" about the decision to retire the Marguerite.

The document (Barber doesn't say how he acquired it) is a draft copy of minutes of a B.C. Steamship board of directors meeting held Aug. 2. The minister then responsible, Phillips, attended the meeting.

The minutes "make clear they have known since August that the Marguerite would not be on the run again in 1980," Barber said.

"Why the minister decided to keep all this secret is be-

Gasoline price up at Esso

An increase in Imperial Oil's price of gasoline and related products announced in Toronto Monday will also hit B.C., Don Coghill, public affairs adviser for the company, said today.

Other oil companies said they haven't heard of any increases.

Esso regular and furnace oil were hiked 0.3 cents a litre or 1.4 cents a gallon. Esso 2000 unleaded and diesel went up a half-cent a litre or 2.4 cents a gallon.

Esso Extra unleaded are up .7 cents a litre, or 3.4 cents a gallon.

Bert Brown, Alberta area manager for Gulf Oil, said his firm has no immediate plans to increase prices.

Neil Palmer, of Shell Canada in Vancouver, said he had not heard of any impending price increase for his company's products.

He said Shell's last increase was Nov. 1, and that was to cover an increase in the cost of crude.

Higher school taxes if budgets go over 8%

Property owners will have to pay higher school taxes next year only in districts where teacher pay hikes and budget increases exceed 8 per cent, Education Minister Brian Smith said Monday.

Smith said budget increases exceeding 8 per cent are inflationary and will not be paid for by the provincial government.

"I'm really surprised at that," Rubymay Parrott, president of B.C. School Trustees Association, said today. "He didn't mention that to me yesterday when I spoke to him.

"This will prove to be an even greater hardship on taxpayers."

"There is not going to be government money to pick up budget increases of 10 and 11 per cent," Smith said. "Where the budget increases are that high, some of that will have to come through local taxation."

Smith expressed hope that local taxpayers would get some relief through home-owner grants, reassessments and various grants to the districts.

Parrott said Monday local taxpayers face 14 per cent increases in school taxes because the provincial government is not increasing its proportional share of school costs.

She wondered today whether Smith's 8 per cent limit had been approved by treasury board. On average across the province, she said, school district budgets are up 10.4 per cent.

"Some districts are going to be away beyond that." (Greater Victoria's provisional budget is 10.6 per cent higher at $55.4 million.)

The education ministry has estimated the basic levy for school purposes in 1980 will be 43.5 mills, a six-percent increase from this year's 41 mills.

"The government is continuing to punish local taxpayers," said Parrott.

It was explained the 41-mill rate raised $557 million, while the proposed 43.5-mill rate, on higher assessments next year, will raise $638 million, an increase of 14 per cent.

"This means that funding from the government will be the same as last year and the local property owner will have to bear the full burden of inflation," said Parrott.

"This makes five straight years that this government has increased the basic mill rate," she said. "Since 1975 when this government came in, the provincially-set local property tax has increased to $638 million from $275 million.

What price a child's life?

How old are your children?

What would your life be like if half of your children had died before blowing out the five candles on their birthday cakes?

Almost half all children born in Nepal die before the age of five.

Nepalese children are dying of diseases that have been virtually wiped out in the civilized free world — diphtheria, pertusis, tetanus and tuberculosis. The cures or preventions for all these diseases are almost as readily available as aspirin.

What price a child's life?

In this case, the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, working through the Nepal Ministry of Health, bought life for Nepalese youngsters with $60,000.

The money was spent over a two-year period to provide immunization services to youngsters in 62 districts.

The grant covered the cost of inoculation, storage equipment (including refrigerators) to carry vaccine to the most remote moutain villages, and a seven-day training course for 200 health workers.

The training course includes lectures, discussions, practice and supervised field experience in organizing and conducting immunization programs.

When a candidate finished the course, he or she was required to initiate and administer at least six camps for the immunization of a minimum 100 children per camp.

The immunization program is one of several pilot projects sponsored by the USC in Nepal, a kingdom of more than 13 million people in an area one-fifth the size of Alberta. Because of the mountainous nature of the country, one-third of the country lies under perpetual snow or consists of alpine meadows.

Life expectancy in Nepal is 40 years; compared that to Canada's 65 years plus.

Trials are on, students the judges: Gotbzadeh

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Foreign Minister Sadegh Gotbzadeh said today U.S. hostages will definitely be tried on espionage charges and will be judged personally by their student captors.

Ghotbzadeh also said he will ask for the arrest and trial of three U.S. diplomats when they leave the Iranian foreign ministry in Tehran where they now enjoy asylum.

The minister, in an interview released by the official Pars news agency, said Iran had now done all it could to defuse the crisis and the next move was up to President Carter.

The students, who are holding 50 Americans for the 31st day in the U.S. Embassy compound, have angrily rejected reports that several American hostages were being softened up for imminent spy trials.

Gotbzadeh's statement was the first that the judges would be the student captors themselves, rather than members of Islamic revolutionary courts who have tried and condemned hundreds of supporters of the deposed shah of Iran.

Back in New York, the United Nations Security Council agreed unanimously today to call on the Iranian government to release the hostages immediately, Council members reported.

The members said a resolution setting out the Council's views will be put to an official vote at a meeting later today.

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim will be asked "to lend his good offices to the immediate implementation of this resolution and to report urgently to the Security Council," the sources said.

It was reported that Saudi Arabian troops early today rooted out the last of the Moslem fanatics from the basement of the Grand Mosque of Mecca, but sources said unrest has spread to the kingdom's vital oil fields.

Duncan RCMP lay murder charge

A 22-year-old Cobble Hill man was shot dead early today in a disturbance at a house in Duncan.

RCMP responded to a complaint about about 12:30 a.m. and went to the home of Richard Cooper, 1779 Cowichan Bay, where they found the body of David Anthony Sween.

A 12-gauge shotgun was seized.

Police said Mark David Stadnyk, 21, of 116 — 2420 Auchinachie, Duncan, was arrested and was to be charged with second-degree murder.

The investigation is continuing.

I was grabbing for bodies - survivor

Times News Services

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I was grabbing for hair. I was grabbing for bodies. I was grabbing for my life.

"I knew some of the people under me were dying, but I could not get up."

That's what it was like for 22-year-old Jeff Manchester as 11 persons died in a crushing human wave surging into Riverfront Coliseum for a rock concert by The Who.

Police Lt.-Col. Joseph Staft said seven young men and four young women were trampled and killed when the mob pushed into the hall in a crush of bodies that continued for 30 minutes.

Eight other persons were severely injured, police said. Twenty more were treated at hospitals and released.

The Monday night concert, which drew an audience of more than 18,000 people, went on as scheduled and The Who made no mention of the tragedy during their performance.

But Keith Altham, the British group's European press agent, said today the rock group was "absolutely devastated by the sheer horrific proportions of the tragedy", and is considering cancelling the rest of its U.S. tour after a concert scheduled for tonight in Buffalo.

"When all the dust settles and blame is apportioned all around the fact remains that 11 kids are dead. It's a black day for rock," Altham said.

"We decided to let the concert go on," said Lieut. Dale Menkaus who led 25 policemen in a crowd-control detail. "If we stopped it, we would have had a worse panic."

Menkhaus estimated that more than 6,000 persons, some who had waited for hours in near-freezing weather, were crowded on the coliseum's plaza level waiting for the doors to open. Many had been drinking and smoking marijuana.

As at some past rock concerts, some seats were reserved, but about half were available on a first-come first-served basis.

"The group likes to do a little sound test," Menkhaus said. When the crowd heard the music, it surged forward.

"They opened only two doors," Menkhaus said. "They have about 50. I suggested they open more, but was told there wasn't enough personnel to open more."

Jeff Chaney, an army veteran, said he tried to revive three of the victims. His efforts failed mostly "because people just didn't seem to care."

ried accounts of travellers from Saudi Arabia that the unrest had spread beyond Mecca to the oilfield area in the eastern provinces, but Saudi officials has denied all such reports.

The Beirut leftist newspaper As Safir says new unrest involved Shiite Moslems who support Iran's leader, the Ayatollah Khomeini.

The demonstrations in the eastern provinces turned to violence in Knobar, Qatif and Rahiman, three towns just north of the main oil complex centered on Dhahran and Dammam, the Lebonese paper said.

Another clash was reported at Abqaiq, one of the largest and most prolific oil fields in the country; the government sent 20,000 troops to the area to reinforce local police.

Iranians have voted 60 to 1 for Khomeini's Islamic constitution, giving the Shiite Moslem patriarch supreme power for life, but there was no word of how many boycotted the referendum.

The charter requires a theocratic government in this predominantly Moslem nation, and opponents claim it will confirm Khomeini as a dictator.

In Washington, Carter administration officials are reporting no progress in efforts to find a haven for the deposed shah of Iran and some are beginning to talk of his stay in the U.S. as "open-ended."

The homeless Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was reported secluded in comfortable, heavily guarded VIP quarters at Lackland Air Force Base on Monday after being moved from the base hospital.

At the shah's request, federal officials were releasing no reports on the his physical condition.

In a related development, Iran's Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said at an anti-U.S. rally outsside the beseiged embassy Monday night that Iran is contemplating further reductions in its oil output and that Iran no longer is accepting U.S. dollars in payment for crude oil.

Iran now is accepting only European currencies for its oil, he said without disclosing which currencies.

Informed sources said the currencies included the British pound, the French franc, and the West German mark. Some have paid in a mixture of currencies and others have paid in a single unit, they said.

School tax line at 8%

Part of the problem arises from artificial teacher salary settlements, the trustees' president said. These average 9.5 per cent, even though 8.5 per cent is the level of salary increases negotiated in the public sector.

In her own district, Saanich, Parrott said trustees and teachers settled on 9 per cent to avoid going to arbitration. Arbitrated settlements likely will be higher, she said, driven up by the higher increases in some rural and northern districts.

Al Blakey, president of the B.C. Teachers Federation, said the increase is totally unnecessary. He said the 43.5 mill estimate means the provincial government share of education costs will be reduced to 35 per cent from last year's 39 per cent.

"Moreover, the ministry's share in dollar terms will actually be less than it was last year."

"This brings the government share of school costs down to an all-time low."

An education ministry spokesman said that for the first time, cost of the basic education program will exceed $1 billion.

Under the province's complex financing formula, government operating grants to school districts are calculated on the basis of the cost of a basic education program. Each school district is given a number of instructional units, based on school populations.

The instructional unit value for 1980 has been set at $32,700.

The ministry said that provisional operating budgets for school districts increased an average of nearly 11 per cent for the coming fiscal year.

A spokesman said that provisional operating budgets for 1980 have increased $106 million from 1979 although enrolment has declined by 1 per cent — 5,000 students — 495,000, and staffing levels also declined nearly 1 per cent.

Final basic levy will be announced in April. Deadline for school districts to draw up their budgets is Feb. 15.

Bullet wound described

A wound in the head of 36-year-old Thomas Young Lackey was caused by a hand gun from a distance of less than three inches, neurosurgeon Dr. A.H. Ibrahim told a B.C. Supreme Court trial today.

Ibrahim, the first defence witness, said the bullet entered the left temple and exited between the eyes. He saw powder burns when he examined Lackey Nov. 8, 1978.

The doctor's testimony was given in the seventh day of Lackey's trial on nine charges, among them attempting to murder Sgt. William Hillcoat by shooting him with a firearm on Nov. 8, 1978. (See earlier story, page 8)

Lackey's trial was interrupted for about half an hour this morning when the Law Courts building, 850 Burdett, was cleared following a bomb threat.

A man who didn't identify himself phoned city police at 10:14 a.m. and said three bombs were set to go off in 15 minutes.

A police check of the building turned up nothing.

Marguerite to be replaced

yond me," he said. "It's a matter of significant public concern in Victoria."

Barber is particularly upset by the revelation that at the Aug. 2 meeting, B.C. Steamship general manager Arthur Elworthy and consultant Ian Smart threatened to resign if the Marguerite were to run again.

The NDP MLA argues that the engineering reports on which the decision to retire the vessel is based have never been made public.

"We call again on the minister to release all documents and studies connected with the vessel," he said.

The minutes mention a cost of $1.2 million to refit the Marguerite. Also mentioned is an estimated cost of $14 million to buy and refit what was then considered a likely prospect as a permanent replacement — a nine-year-old German-built vessel with a capacity of 2,500 passengers and 150 cars.

The Marguerite's maximum capacity is 1,800 passengers and 50 cars.

Barber said if the Marguerite must be replaced — and he is by no means convinced she should be — "it should be done on the basis of public documents that demonstrate beyond question that the Marguerite is no longer competent."

Aside from the minutes he has released, Barber said, the public has had no documented evidence on which to base an opinion.

He also said if scrapping the Marguerite is justified, then a temporary vessel should be leased and a permanent replacement built in B.C. shipyards by B.C. workers.

Fraser said the possibility of building a replacement in B.C. is "one of the options we are looking at."

Fraser also said if either of the two Swedish ships proved suitable, B.C. Steamship Co. likely will lease it for two or three seasons on a six-month-a-year basis.

"That will give us some time to breathe and find out how we deal with a permanent replacement for the Princess Marguerite," he said.

The minister gave no cost estimate of such a lease arrangement, nor did he supply any description of the vessels under consideration.

Gallagher and Baldwin are expected back with a report on the weekend.

What price a child's life?

Nepal's per capita income is $108 a year. In Canada, some of us would be hard pressed to get through a week on that much money.

Some Canadians will ask, so what? Isn't that what foreign aid is for?

The simple fact is, governments of the western world are not doing enough for the starving and sick millions of the world. Much of the help they offer is stopgap, feeding or caring for people for a short time but offering no permanent solutions.

This is where the USC shines.

Under Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova's firm hand, USC pilot projects all have the long-range goal of assisting people to help themselves.

Dr. Lotta also steers the projects towards helping those people who need it most — children, the elderly and the handicapped.

Should any Canadian be able to sleep easily tonight knowing that there are children in Nepal suffering disease or starvation, that there are elderly people who, even after a life of misery can't die in dignity, or that there are people in Third World countries whose lives would be tough under normal circumstances, but who are doomed to lives of abject horror because they are handicapped?

Why not make it a tradeoff? Why not trade in one of life's little pleasures, the sort of thing we take for granted and really wouldn't miss much, to ease the suffering of a fellow traveler on your planet?

A recent advertisement offered a stereo record for $6.98. You'd probably enjoy listening to the music. But if you sent the money to the USC Christmas fund instead, you would know you've covered the cost of a doctor's weekly visit to a clinic in Nepal.

Or could you could tell yourself you've fed a Bangladesh youngster for 41 days.

Or you could fall asleep knowing you'd bought a couple of warm school uniforms for some other Bangladesh kids.

Try a donation to the USC Christmas fund-raising drive. You might find it's more effective than a sleeping pill.

Donations may be made at the Times business office or sent to the Victoria Times, Post Office Box 300, Victoria, V8W 2N4 — or left at any branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Cheques should be made payable to the Unitarian Service Committee.

Jim Pattison buys West Coast airline

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Pattison Group of Companies announced Monday that agreement has been reached to purchase all the shares of West Coast Air Services Ltd. of Vancouver for an undisclosed cash price.

The transaction, which is subject to approval of the air transport committee of the Canadian transport commission, brings to seven the number of British Columbia regional airlines acquired by the Pattison group during the last year.

Bill Sleeman, vice-chairman of the Jim Pattison Group of Companies, said in a news release that the merger will mean an upgrading of equipment, facilities and scheduled services at West Coast, one of B.C.'s oldest regional carriers.

Earlier this year, the Pattison group acquired Airwest Airlines Ltd. of Vancouver, which provided a network of flights between Seattle, Wash., and Ketchikan, Alaska.

Pattison group also took over Pacific Coastal Airlines of Nanaimo, Trans-Provincial Airlines of Prince Rupert, and Gulf Air Aviation Ltd., Haida Airlines and Island Airlines, all of Campbell River.

Except for Airwest, the other acquisitions still are pending air transport committee approval.

West Coast, in operation for 34 years, has scheduled flights from Vancouver to the Gulf Islands, Victoria, Ocean Falls, the west coast of Vancouver Island, Bella Coola and Bella Bella.

The Pattison group has interests in transportation, communications and food and beverage industries and anticipates sales of $500 million in 1979.

Fishermen first: NDP MP

MILLER
. . . cut out moonlighters

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should assure that bona fide fishermen, not moonlighters, get the available jobs in the herring roe industry next year, MP Ted Miller (NDP-Nanaimo) told the Commons Monday.

Federal government conservation measures are expected to reduce the number of jobs in the roe industry by about 800.

But a spokesman for Fisheries Minister James McGrath said far fewer than 800 fishermen will lose work.

McGrath told Miller in the Commons that the restrictions will result in a short disruption for the fishermen who are to be affected.

Miller said the government must differentiate between those who depend year-round on fishing for their living and those moonlighters who cash in on the roe herring bonanza for only a few weeks of the year.

Roe — the eggs of the herring — is a delicacy in Japan and cash buyers operating on West Coast fishing grounds last season offered up to $5,000 a ton. Representatives of fishermen, industry and government have expressed fears that herring stocks are being seriously depleted.

Last week McGrath announced a limit of 4,000 tonnes on the available catch, down from 11,000 tonnes last year, and restrictions on fishing boats. Gillnetters will be allowed only one net — a maximum 75 metres long and 100 metres deep — instead of two.

Miller said in an interview the restriction means the 1,300 gillnetters that participated in the fishery last season will need about 800 less deckhands.

He said McGrath admitted in a letter Oct. 30 to the president of the Co-operative Fishermen's Guild in Prince Rupert, B.C., that there would be about 800 less jobs due to the gillnet restrictions which were then still being discussed.

In the same letter, the minister rejected fishermen's claims that between 900 and 1,100 jobs would be lost, Miller said.

Charles Friend, a spokesman for McGrath, said "nowhere near 800" jobs will be lost and denied that minister had ever used that figure. Details of regulations for next year's fishery, which begins in March, are to be released this week in Vancouver.

Miller said the government must set criteria to determine who is a bona fide fisherman.

"Obviously if someone fishes only three or four weeks a year, I can't consider that person a bona fide fisherman," said Miller.

The MP rejected McGrath's statement that there will be only a slight disruption.

"I don't think it's going to be a slight disruption for those 800 people," Miller said, adding that tighter qualifications for unemployment insurance benefits worsened the plight of those who lose jobs.

Miller said he is worried about people who sunk a lot of money in boats and equipment after hearing stories about those who hit the jackpot last year.

"People's perception of the herring roe industry is that everyone who goes out there is going to make a killing and some do. But there are a lot of people who don't even make enough money to make payments on boats and equipment."

As well as restrictions on gillnet boats which operate mainly in the Gulf of Georgia, the government announced that the 250 seiners operating along B.C.'s north coast would be expected to pool their efforts rather than fishing individually.

A gillnet boat floats a net and fish are caught by the gills when they try to swim through it. A seiner lays a net in a circle then lifts it from the water, trapping fish.

Speech kit presented

The Saanich Division of the Girl Guides of Canada presented a speech therapy development kit to the G.R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children today.

The kit is a Year of the Child project.

Stumpage remains

The provincial government is not prepared to lower stumpage fees to help northern B.C.'s slumping forest industry at this time, Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Monday.

Representatives of the northern interior lumber industry had requested the minister base stumpage rates on lumber prices of the previous month, rather than an average of the previous three months as is now the case.

This would lower stumpage — the price paid for standing trees — because it would take into account the drastic cuts in November lumber prices in the United States.

Waterland said he is not prepared to do that until the time is right.

The minister said the forest industry's problem is not harvesting timber — a difficulty which could be alleviated by reducing stumpage fees — but its ability to transport its product to markets.

The northern forest companies' key transportation link to southern markets, a B.C. Railway trestle bridge near Fort St. John, was destroyed by fire in October. The rail line is not expected to be operational until the end of the month, and in the meantime companies are paying several thousand dollars a day to truck their products across a Bailey bridge and landfill.

Dog dung bylaw imposes $25 fine

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owners of the noble dog will find themselves facing an ignoble minimum $25 fine beginning Jan. 1 if they do not clean up after their best friends.

The Vancouver parks board voted unanimously Monday to pass the proposed Parks Removal of Animal Manure, Dung, Refuse and Waste bylaw in a effort to cleanse parks, playgrounds and beaches of the leavings of errant canines.

City police will issue tickets upon specific complaints and owners can face up to $500 in fines and a two-months jail term for failure to clean up.

The board cited potential health hazards such as salmonella poisoning and toxocara — a microscopic parasite in dog intestines — as major factors in the decision. The board said it was following the example of New York, Toronto and Winnipeg in adopting the bylaw.

Snowslide blocks Fraser Canyon

YALE (CP) — A 50-ton snowslide blocked the Trans-Canada Highway early today near this Fraser canyon community.

The highway was reopened to single-lane traffic about 6:30 a.m. but the highways department said the other lane might remain closed for the rest of the day.

No injuries were reported.

Here we go again

Here we go again. It's the week of the year when the provincial government spits out some totally meaningless figures, the end result of which plays a large part in determining every homeowner's tax bill for the next fiscal year.

The figures all fit into mysterious blanks in the school financing formula, and, when computations are concluded and any budget modifications made by individual school districts, the final result is the mill rate for each school district.

The best that can be said for the government's figures for 1980 is that at least the government is this year holding its own in the proportion of the total public school costs it will pay. This is an improvement over previous years of Social Credit government in which the government has usually adjusted the figures so that the property owners are, relatively speaking, paying more and the government paying less towards education costs.

The government has this year set an arbitrary figure called the basic mill rate at 43.5 mills for 1980. Somewhat oversimplified, this means that each school district has to levy on its ratepayers a tax of 43.5 mills before the provincial government will pick up any expenses for public school education at all. (The government then pays the difference between a school district's budget for approved basic expenses and the money raised by that 43.5 mill levy. Any expenses beyond the government approved level — and every school district has some — are then paid wholly by the local taxpayers.)

Essentially that means that each owner of a $60,000 home, assessed at full value, would have to pay about $390 in school taxes before the government chips in a cent. (In fact, the homeowner gets a fair chunk of that money back through the homeowners' grant, but that comes through a different ministry and has nothing to do with the school finance formula.)

This year, however, the situation remains somewhat complicated by the changes that are still taking place in B.C. assessment rolls. The 43.5 mill figure does not always raise the full amount of money it should because of the phased-in assessments, but on the other hand, it does mean a greater proportional increase in payments for many taxpayers because their assessment levels are also rising significantly.

For years, the B.C. School Trustees Association and B.C. Teachers' Federation have been urging the provincial government to pick up a greater share of the basic education costs. They point to a 1976 Royal Commission that recommended the government pay a full 75 per cent of the basic costs.

And they were optimistic when Brian Smith was last month appointed education minister, because, as a municipal official, he had supported the idea of more provincial funds for schools.

Now, however, in Smith's first days as minister, he has done nothing but keep the provincial share the same.

Perhaps, though, the education officials should look on this with optimism. Having been minister less than a week, Smith hardly had the opportunity to make basic changes in government policy.

He has stopped the trend of having the local taxpayer pick up a greater and greater share of the school costs. That was probably as much as could be expected in Smith's first month in office.

A change from walking downhill to walking on the level may be the first step towards an uphill journey once again.

Straight tongue

Indian Affairs Minister Jake Epp is making bold, praiseworthy statements in regards to the decentralization of his ministry. "We have failed to help Indians help themselves to create and hold jobs." As a result he says the Indian Act will be amended to expand band powers.

Epp foresees his ministry becoming a support system for the country's 300,000 natives after legislation is reworked to allow Indians at the band level to become more responsible for economic development, housing, social services and employment.

At the moment 519 of the 573 bands in Canada are administering only 34 per cent of the ministry's $227 million program budget. A recent report commissioned by the ministry said this archaic approach had failed to lessen Indian dependence on government services.

Indian leaders from across B.C. have reacted positively to Epp's announcement. But after years of dealing with Indian Affairs, they know its easy to talk about change. Action, Mr. Epp, will speak louder than words.

No right

I am writing about an article which appeared in the Times Nov. 22. This article concerned boatbuilding in Saanich municipality, especially in front yards. I have already written one letter to Ald. Sandy Noel, with copies to the mayor and municipal staff. As a boatbuilder, I feel that no government, municipal, provincial or national should have the right to restrict or in any way inhibit a craft which is done on private property. I am very much against this proposed bylaw. — Andrew Samuel, 4150 Bracken Avenue.

Missing link

I am concerned about the inaccurate statements presented in the article about teacher tenure (Nov. 14).

The trustees and the administration of a school district have the power to remove a tenured teacher who is ineffective. A teacher who receives three "less than satisfactory" reports in a 12 to 24 month period may be relieved of his/her duties. It is the principal's responsibility to file these reports and the trustees' responsibility to act upon them. The BCTF provides support for the unsatisfactory teacher, but only on a basis of due process, not on basis of competence. To the best of my knowledge, the Greater Victoria School Board does indeed act upon these conditions.

"Less than satisfactory" reports are given more frequently than the public suspects, but they are not publicized for obvious reasons.

Teachers have been attempting to influence teacher training courses in the universities and, more importantly, to regulate and discipline their own occupatonal ranks. The Ministry of Education continues to deny teachers this recognition.

Trevor Calkins, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, explained this frustrating situation quite clearly at a school board meeting in October. No mention of this information was made in the article on that meeting. — Angelika Scholz, 3230 Wascana Street.

Air bus

Airlines and government should get together and introduce an "air bus" service between Pat Bay and Vancouver airports. This service would be available daily between 7 a.m. and midnight, and consist of medium size aircraft that should take off either way when the aircraft is full up (or has a paying load of passengers), on a first come first served basis, with no prebooking necessary. — B. J. Leverton, 557 Falkland Road.

Good point

I would like to thank Mr. C.J. Clayton for pointing out in his letter of Nov. 21 that Brian Smith's duties as MLA take precedence over his duties as mayor.

Thanks to Mr. Clayton's wisdom we can see that in the past six months whenever Brian Smith had to chose between his role as MLA and his role as mayor, the mayor lost out. — T.A. Sellgren, 1587 Hampshire Road.

Levesque: tight grip strangling his own popularity

MONTREAL — To most Quebecers he's affectionately known as " 'tit poil."

The nickname, roughly translated, means "little baldy" and it suits the carefully-cultivated image that Rene Levesque projects. He's the little guy in soft-soled shoes with the self-effacing manner and the embarrassed shrug. He's the politician who can charm almost any voter with his impish grin and quick wit.

Three years ago Levesque was sworn in as premier of Quebec on a wave of nationalist emotion unprecedented in Quebec history.

Today the wave is breaking and Levesque is struggling to stay afloat.

Hard times

His government has lost seven provincial byelections in the last 16 months. The smell of defeat has crept into the Parti Quebecois as it approaches next spring's referendum on sovereignty-association and another general election.

The shifting tide of support to Claude Ryan's Liberal party, months of tortuous contract negotiations with public service unions and dissension within his own party have taken their toll on Levesque.

The 57-year-old chain-smoking former journalist has tremendous stamina but the brutally tough schedule he has followed in the past year leaves him tired and cranky much of the time and the charm shines through less often.

Levesque is an enigma. An intensely private man with few close friends, he nevertheless inspires fierce loyalty in his personal staff members. They protect him religiously and are reluctant to discuss what the man is like.

For most of his three-year term there has been little if any opposition to him within the Parti Quebecois and his personal popularity across Quebec remains higher than Claude Ryan's in the opinion polls. But in the past month, as the PQ suffered four byeelection losses, disenchantment with Levesque has started to surface.

"His leadership is still uncontested but that could change after the referendum," says one party insider. If the PQ loses the referendum a challenge will come from militants unhappy with his accent on economic association rather than independence.

Some observers have started writing Levesque's political obituary in the belief he has already lost the referendum and the next provincial election.

Levesque has started looking over his shoulder at Jacques Parizeau, Quebec's immensely popular finance minister, who gets bigger and bigger ovations at each party meeting.

Many PQ members prefer Parizeau's no-nonsense support for Quebec independence to Levesque's confusing wordplay over sovereignty-association.

But most Pequistes realize they must tough out the next 18 months with Levesque even though they may be upset with his policies.

"We have to stick with him for better or worse, and lately there's been more worse than better," said one high-ranking party official who is increasingly unhappy with Levesque's leadership. "There is still time for a comeback but we've got to convince him that there are serious re-examinations to be taken."

A senior member of the PQ's national executive admitted: "There is a great deal of dissatisfaction with the way he's handled things but this is no time to fight among ourselves.

"With the referendum coming up we've got to stress the things that unite us rather than divide us."

When PQ supporters discuss Levesque's failings they are puzzled by his inability to sell the government and its policies to the voting public.

"The only one reason he is leader of the party is that he is a good communicator," said a PQ source. "But he hasn't been doing enough of that.

"His real talent is the ability to simplify the complicated issues by putting some emotion into them," says another party member who has worked with Levesque. "He can be angry or funny when he makes a speech whereas Ryan is cold and logical."

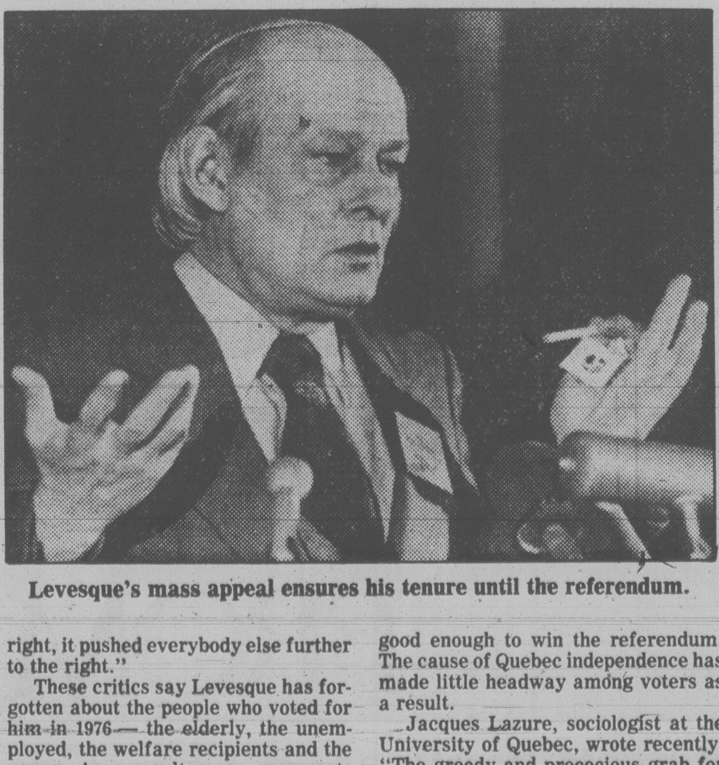
Others looking

But weighed down by the heavy workload of the premier's office, Levesque no longer has the time to campaign across Quebec and to establish the personal rapport with voters he had when the PQ was in opposition.

A former television host on the Radio-Canada public affairs program Point de Mire in the late 1950s, Levesque comes across well in TV news clips and televised debates in the national assembly.

But some party members feel he should be using his TV talents to sell sovereignty-association in special advertisements. When Levesque made a rare appearance on province-wide TV earlier this month to defend his government's contract offers to illegally striking hospital workers he gave a virtuoso performance.

"Levesque has always been a man who lacked confidence in himself," says Pierre Bourgault who founded Quebec's first separatist party, the Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale. "He got it back after the 1976 election but he seems to have lost it again."



Levesque's mass appeal ensures his tenure until the referendum.

"He always seems to be afraid of something or other. Instead of saying what he is for or against, he puts brackets around everything."

Others, like party activist Louise Thiboutot and MNA Guy Bisaillon believe Levesque's caution has resulted in wishy-washy government policies that appeal to neither friends nor foes of the PQ.

"His problem is that he's always trying to satisfy too many people at the same time. That's impossible," says Thiboutot. "He should have occupied a place to the left of the political spectrum. When he moved to the right, it pushed everybody else further to the right."

These critics say Levesque has forgotten about the people who voted for him in 1976 — the elderly, the unemployed, the welfare recipients and the young. As a result many grassroots workers who brought the party to power in 1976 have been dropping out of active politics and the party's organization has fallen into a state of disrepair.

Levesque still has to overcome lingering suspicions about his committment to Quebec independence among former RIN members who make up an important core with the PQ. They have trouble forgetting Levesque's background as a Liberal cabinet minister in the Jean Lesage government of the early 1960s.

"Levesque is probably the least Pequiste of any Pequiste I know," says a senior party official.

The suspicions extend to Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin, a former advisor to the Liberal government of Robert Bourassa. Together, Levesque and Morin are responsible for the PQ strategy of "gradualism" that brought the party to power in 1976.

The strategy called for winning the election on a promise of good government and facing the question of independence later.

But Levesque and Morin have continued to stress "good government" rather than independence over the last three years, as if that would be good enough to win the referendum. The cause of Quebec independence has made little headway among voters as a result.

Jacques Lazure, sociologist at the University of Quebec, wrote recently: "The greedy and precocious grab for power by former Liberal technocrats who only recently became independentistes has castrated the forces (of Quebec nationalism) . . .

"It has sown confusion among the membership and has backed the cause of independence into a dead-end."

The view of Levesque as a power-hungry political opportunist is shared by Rodrigue Tremblay, the former minister of industry and commerce who resigned from the PQ this fall just as Levesque was about to fire him.

"He is not a man of vision or ideas," says Tremblay. "He has no real convictions. He's more a political operator who knows how to manipulate and control people."

"The humility you see in him is all phony. Being a professional TV personality, Mr. Levesque plays the role perfectly. He dresses himself up to be the honest underdog but basically he is a ruthless politician."

Levesque can assimilate enormous amounts of information quickly and translate them into political language for the voting public. But critics say he lacks originality in his political thinking. He has not staked himself to any of the major reforms passed by the PQ in the last three years.

"He's predictable, you know what he's going to say most of the time," says a veteran political observer who has watched Levesque at federal-provincial conferences. "The other premiers may come up with an original idea but Levesque rarely does."

Levesque is at his most unpredictable when he is angry, a mood that has struck him with increasing frequency in recent months. When pricked, he says things he tends to regret later.

Power centralized

During the recent provincial byelection campaigns he called Liberal candidate Solange Chaput-Rolland "a tight-assed federalist." The remark was uttered in frustration after Levesque had failed to recruit the Quebec author and broadcaster as a candidate for his own party.

The voters of Prevost did not forget the insult on election night when they gave Chaput-Rolland a massive majority.

Nor did they heed Levesque when he said Liberal leader Claude Ryan had joined "a common front of terrorism" with other provincial premiers during the byelection campaigns.

"Our relationship with him depends on his mood and the particular situation at the time," says Ghislain Dufour, vice-president of the Conseil du Patronat, Quebec's largest business lobby.

"I remember one meeting where we had a terrible clash with him. It was just after a federal-provincial conference in which Levesque had walked out early, slamming the door.

"It was a Friday afternoon around 4:30 and he was tired. He looked at our brief which complained about a lack of dialogue with the government. They he blew up, accusing us of being school children trying to meddle in politics."

Cabinet ministers and party officials have complained that power over the party and government is centralized in the premier's office with its 71 member staff.

Cabinet secretary, Louis Bernard, who wields enormous power as the top-ranking Quebec civil servant, is an unconditional Levesque loyalist.

Levesque's new cabinet structure introduced in 1976 is a variation of the old theme of divide and rule.

In important areas like culture, economic affairs and social affairs, Levesque has created two portfolios. There is a minister of state responsible for policy planning and a minister responsible for the running of the actual department. The result has often been jealousy and competition between the ministers involved with Levesque holding the balance of power.

Inside the party, Levesque has used similar tactics to strengthen his grip on the PQ membership.

"He creates the false impression that there is always opposition to him in the party," says one PQ source. "Then he uses that as a pretext to clamp down on any dissidents in the name of party unity. It's reached the point where anybody who has a different opinion from him is not a good Quebec nationalist."

But sources say Levesque went a little too far this summer in "interfering" with the party's choice of candidates for the fall byelections. They say Levesque personally engineered the nominations of two candidates — Pierre Harvey in Prevost and Jacques Desmarais in Maisonneuve — in order to get rid of popular local candidates he didn't happen to like.

"It's actually been going on since 1970," said one source. "He has been interfering in lots of nominating conventions but nobody has ever said anything. But this time people are really upset."

Minority rights

Another source of resentment has been Levesque's treatment of women in the PQ. A party that is constantly striving to eliminate "sexism" from its image, the PQ now has women occupying several senior posts in the party hierarchy.

But leading women in the PQ are only half-joking when they call Levesque "a misogynist."

When Louise Harel, a strong advocate of women's rights, was elected vice-president of the party last spring, it came against Levesque's own wishes. Later, on the victory podium, he could not bring himself to congratulate her by name.

Lise Payette, now minister of state for women, once publicly upbraided Levesque for being years behind the times on women's issues.

But Levesque's biggest asset is his personal popularity with Quebecers. And until he is voted out of office by the Quebec electorate, it will be difficult for dissidents to mount any challenge to his leadership.

The shah: criminal or victim of times?

By KENNETH FREED
The Los Angeles Times

On Sept. 17, 1941, five weeks short of his 22nd birthday, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi ascended to the Peacock Throne of Iran, a virtual puppet of the British and Soviet governments.

It was hardly an auspicious beginning for the insecure, slightly built youth, and it set in motion a train of events leading directly to the current U.S.-Iranian crisis: American hostages being held in Tehran for the return of the shah to answer for what the revolutionary Iranian government calls crimes against the nation.

Guilty or innocent? Any attempt to draw a conclusion must be based on understanding the path that led Pahlavi from young shah to powerful autocrat.

He came to power when his father was sent into exile for resisting the Allied occupation of Iran in the Second World War. The old shah had decidedly pro-German leanings. The young Swiss-educated monarch was expected to sit in Tehran and provide London and Moscow with the appearance of a legitimate Iranian government as they prosecuted the war from his soil.

The shah wrote in his memoirs that this humiliating start spurred him to eventually build power and independence for himself and his country.

He was also motivated by a desire to legitimize his family's claim to royalty (his father was a semi-literate cavalry colonel who took power in a coup) and by embarrassment over his nation's history of isolation, poverty and backwardness.

By Dec. 23, 1973, it seemed that the shah had gained his objectives. He called a news conference to announce that Iran and the other major producers were quadrupling the price of oil. In a dazzling display of confidence and arrogance, he lectured his audience on a new balance of world power. He said he, as the personficiation of Iran, would hold the balance.

By the turn of the century, he said, Iran would be a great power, the equal of the United States and the Soviet Union. He noted that his army already had ordered more tanks than Britain had in its armed forces.

Tapping his huge oil treasury, the shah also set out on a program of industrialization and education that sent the world political, military and industrial leaders flocking to Tehran in hopes of gaining his favor.

But five years later, the shah, like his father, had been driven from the country, leaving it in shambles and his people at each other's throats.

Also left behind were the charges by his enemies that became cause for the seizure of the Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

The shah has committed crimes against mankind, according to the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, leader of revolutionary Iran. He says the shah is a criminal on a par with Adolf Hitler and must be returned to Iran for trial before the Americans are let go.

Rather than rebuilding Iran into a modern version of the powerful Persia of Cyrus and Darius, his enemies charged, the shah was guilty of personal and national corruption, torture, massacre and theft. They say he sold out Iran for palaces, cars, resorts and unlimited personal power.

Are the charges true? Is the United States harboring a man who systematically looted his country and slaughtered his subjects?

The evidence is cloudy and the answers complicated, although such international watchdogs as Amnesty International, the London-based human rights group, found the shah's performance in human rights among the worst in the world.

'A dazzling display of arrogance'

And the shah, in an interview, said, "Believe me, when three-quarters of a nation doesn't know how to read or write, you can provide for reforms only by the strictest authoritarianism — otherwise you get nowhere."

More than once, the shah told American newsmen that his secret police — Savak — practised torture, although he claimed it was mostly of a psychological nature in his last years on the Peacock Throne.

What follows is an examination of the major charges against the shah.

Torture

Interviews with political prisoners who were released from Savak jails after last February's revolution produced a parade of horror stories — beatings, maimings and rapes.

There is no question that the shah and his government brutalized some people, perhaps even murdered them. There is a dispute over how many and who. The shah has insisted that no more than 3,000 people were ever held on political charges at any one time. He argued that almost all were Marxists bent on destroying Iran.

His opponents contended that anywhere from 25,000 to 100,000 Iranians were held, mostly without trial, for mere political opposition. These included clergymen and Western-oriented politicians.

Murder

Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, the recently dismissed foreign minister, has accused the shah of massacres.

First-hand observation by Los Angeles Times reporters and other journalists support a finding that during the year prior to his overthrow, the shah's forces fired indiscriminately and point-blank into huge crowds of demonstrators.

Bani-Sadr told U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that more than 100,000 people died at the hands of the shah's military and security forces. Other estimates run as low as 2,000. An official at Tehran's morgue showed a Times reporter records indicating that more than 15,000 people were certified for burial after being shot or beaten to death in the capital during the year before the shah's downfall.

Apart from the people who died in the streets, Savak reportedly killed many more in its prisons. Others simply disappeared and are presumed dead.

Cultural conflict

This is one of the most difficult charges to deal with, for it involves a confrontation between opposing philosophies — Khomeini's radical theology that is wedded to the rural traditions of Iran's past, versus the shah's unbending effort to modernize and industrialize the country. Industrialization led to widescale importation of Western workers, and with them their lifestyle.

In order to promote land reform, the shah broke up some estates controlled by the Moslem clergy and set up courts that replaced religious tribunals.

His industrialization brought people by the millions from the countryside into the cities and realigned the traditional relationship between the mullahs (priests) and the people.

At the same time, in an effort to reduce illiteracy, measured at 80 per cent when he was installed, the shah introduced secular schools and, in a major blow against Moslem orthodoxy, permitted coeducational classes.

There were clear benefits of the shah's program. In the 1960s, the country's gross national product grew at an extremely strong annual rate of almost 10 per cent. Inflation took a cut of that, but per capita income soared ten-fold in the 15 years spanning the 1960s and early 1970s. The 1960 figure was $176. In 1976, it was almost $2,000 a head.

But while the wealth was visible in the cities and the military, which grew to be a sort of protector against outside intervention in the oil-rich Persian Gulf, Iranians in the countryside remained as poor as they had been for centuries.

Theft

There is no question but that the Pahlavi family, including far-distant relatives, became exceedingly rich in the years when Mohammed Reza Pahlavi ran the country.

Khomeini's regime claims that the shah and his family have, at the expense of Iran's people, acquired some $30 billion. Khomeini's government has filed suit in a New York court to recover $56.5 billion, including punitive damages, from the shah's U.S. holdings alone.

Beyond his own riches, the shah also had complete control over the Pahlavi Foundation, an ostensibly charitable organization but really a holding company for the royal family's extensive wealth.

The foundation controlled at least two large buildings in Manhattan, several international banks, hotels, casinos, a sugar mill and 25 per cent of Germany's huge Krupp steel works. The Pahlavi Foundation's wealth has been estimated at at least $3 billion.

Beyond that wealth, the shah during his rule spent millions of dollars on palaces as opulent as any in the world, luxurious resorts and mausoleums intended to honor himself and his father.

National betrayal

Khomeini has accused the shah of betraying Iran and its people to "foreign devils," particularly the United States, and of squandering its wealth by virtually giving it away.

The U.S. role in Iran began even before the shah's father took power, but it did not assume much importance until the period of 1951-53. Then, under the leadership of a charismatic politician named Mohammed Mossadegh, a coalition of leftist and middle-class elements challenged the ever increasing power of the monarchy. By skilfully playing to the masses and nationalizing the oil industry, Mossadegh managed to undercut the monarch and force his exile on Aug. 16, 1953. The U.S. Central Intelligence Agency launched a plan under Kermit Roosevelt to stage a countercoup.

It worked. Within days, the shah returned to a tumultuous welcome and a new relationship with the United States.

Savak was organized under the direction of the CIA and Israeli security forces. Former CIA officials have claimed they trained their Iranian counterparts in methods of torture.

The U.S.-Iranian relationship grew on other levels as well. American arms began flowing into Iran, turning into a flood by 1975 when the shah cumulated a four-year weapons purchase program totaling more than $10 billion, most of it going to American companies.

In addition, more than 20,000 Americans went to work in Iran, mostly as technicians to train Iranians to operate the new equipment.

Actually, through the 1973 oil price increases, the shah had begun trying to move away from dependency on the United States. He began buying tanks from Britain and artillery from Moscow. He contracted with Korean and Japanese construction companies to build hundreds of new structures in Tehran.

There is no simple conclusion to draw from all of this. The shah did become very rich, his opponents were repressed, even tortured and killed. His economic plans went awry, and he led his country into a conflict with its own history.

But does that make him a criminal on a world scale, another Hitler?

Perhaps the best answer was made by a British journalist, Robert Graham, who wrote in his authoritative book, Iran, The Illusion of Power: "To cast the shah as the villain is in one sense misleading. There is nothing to suggest that another leader or group of leaders in Iran would have done better or behaved much differently under the circumstances. The shah's critics decry his authoritarianism, but there is scarcely a liberal tradition in Iranian history."

Down in the bunker

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
The Sun

The bunker mentality that continues to contaminate the general environs of the office of the premier of B.C. is spreading. Secretaries are afraid to be seen talking to reporters, for fear of losing their livelihood.

A television reporter is told that he cannot take silent film of the outer sanctum occupied by Bill Bunker himself. Hall Leiren, the former reporter who is now Mr. Bunker's press agent, is acting like the warden of a loony bin.

Joe Clark and Jimmy Carter may be able to arrange their schedules to allow for regular statements on public policy. But not Bill Bunker. No sir, says Mr. Leiren, Bill Bunker just never knows what crisis of state he may be dealing with from week to week.

Furthermore, says Mr. Leiren, if Premier Bunker were to agree to make public statements on public policy and then, say because of an emergency, had to cancel one, then what would the folks think?

Does Mr. Leiren know (or care) that if BCTV were to cart a camera into either Ottawa or Washington they would have no difficulty taking silent moving pictures of the offices of either Mr. Carter or Mr. Clark?

But, more important, does Mr. Leiren's employer, Premier Bunker, understand the difference between running a car dealership and a government? The evidence is that he does not.

Last Thursday, it was disclosed (in Ottawa) that the federal government is considering cutting the export price of B.C. natural gas sold to the U.S. A call to Ottawa confirms that Bill Bennett and his undercover agents have known for a month about those Ottawa negotiations.

B.C., secretly, told Ottawa that they did not like the idea. So far so good. But don't the people of B.C. have a bloody right to know what's going on? Apparently not. Apparently Premier Bunker thinks that these are private business matters.

On Friday morning, reporters in Victoria attempted to get a comment from the premier and his minister of energy, Bob McClelland. Too busy to comment, said Premier Bunker, elbowing his way pass the scruffy scribes. Mr. McClelland also indicated that he would have nothing to say, although that is understandable considering that he has held this portfolio for only a week.

So what if no one had made the story public? Well apparently we, the unsuspecting taxpayers, would never have known.

It doesn't end there. Conduct like this is contagious, as you probably are aware. It's called leadership. If the leader runs around acting like a fool, the odds are overwhelming that his underlings will decide that fools are in and act accordingly.

Don Phillips, the provincial minister of industry and tourism, returned to B.C. two weeks ago from an all-expenses-paid trip to China. First class, according to the stickers on the official briefcases.

Members of this junketeering mob, otherwise known as the B.C. cabinet, do not travel well. They suffer a great deal from jet lag. The premier himself is unable to collect his thoughts sufficiently on landing to make statements about anything.

So the scruffy scribes waited to give Mr. Phillips some time to recover from his trying trip. Then, last week they went to Mr. Phillips to ask him about his trip. "I have no comment," said the minister.

Good God. This recycled car salesman from Dawson Creek junkets around the world at our expense, meeting people on our behalf, and then comes back and says, in effect, mind your own business.

This isn't a simple case of dementia or arrogance. It is unbridled idiocy. If Mr. Phillips has not issued a full report of his tour of China within the next 48 hours, a collection agency ought to be hired to get our money back.

PREM
BILL
BENNE

Whose business is it anyway?

According to Mr. Phillips' own department, travel expenses for the minister and the 13 other people who accompanied the minister on his Sino sojourn totalled some $40,000, not including hotel rooms and such other bits of trivia as food.

That's $40,000, just for the airfares. Perhaps I was a bit hasty there in suggesting that Mr. Phillips should be ordered to cough up our money. He ought to be examined to determine his fitness for public office.

Earlier last week, Harvey Oberfeld, a reporter for BCTV, went to press agent Leiren to ask for an interview with the premier. Mr. Leiren said he would have to have the questions in advance. Mr. Oberfeld replied that he thought he was living in Canada, not Iran. Mr. Leiren, according to Mr. Oberfeld, did not enjoy the humor.

In 14 years in this trade, I obviously ain't seen it all, but the only time I ever remember any public official ever asking for and being given question in advance was when Alexei Kosygin visited Ottawa. Totalitarians tend to be that way.

Charles La Vertu, legislative correspondent in Victoria for Canadian Press, requested a year-end interview with the premier. He was told he would have to wait more than two weeks, but was given no firm commitment.

Yes, there's more. Last Tuesday, Joe Clark, prime minister of Canada, announced that he would be placing calls to Bill Bunker as well as the premier of Saskatchewan, to discuss the oil pricing plan arrived at with Alberta's Peter Lougheed.

So far, Premier Bunker has refused to say whether or not Mr. Clark actually called him, much less what petty details of public business might have been discussed. After all, it's all going to mean only a few silly thousands to your family's energy budget.

At 3:10 Friday afternoon, a call was placed to press agent Leiren to try to determine, yet again, whether that Ottawa call had been received. Sorry, said the secretary in the press agent's office, Mr. Leiren is gone until Monday morning.

Don't be surprised if the next report you get from these parts is a silent television film of civil defence toilets and foodstuffs being moved into the premier's office.

People who live in bunkers shouldn't run governments.

There were no bulls on offer.

A1-2 slaughter steers over 1,000 lbs. $76.50-78.50. D1-2 cows 54-57; D3-5 46-52.

Light receipts of feeder cows sold steady to previous quotations at $55-60.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market rose sharply in active mid-afternoon trading today. Management companies had the largest of the four declines.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. EST was 3.21 million shares, compared with 2.25 million shares at the same time Monday. Monday's trading was disrupted by the unexplained illness of several traders but activity on the floor was normal Tuesday.

Trading in shares of United Canadian Shares Ltd. was halted at 12:50 p.m. but resumed at 2 p.m. The stock added 1¼ to $18.

The directors of United Canadian and of Dominion Tanners Sales Corp. Ltd. approved a proposed amalgamation of the companies.

Trading in shares of House of Braemore Furniture Ltd. resumed at the opening following a halt Monday. Strathearn House Group Ltd., which owns about 88 per cent of House of Braemore, said it will increase its bid for minority shares to $6.32 a share from $5. House of Braemore's stock gained ⅜ to $5½ by 2 p.m.

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 10:51 a.m. PST was 2,530,709 shares.

New York

Stock prices edged upward today as traders waited out developments in Iran.

Analysts said the stage for an the early advance was set Monday, when stock prices declined only slightly despite soaring gold prices, a slumping U.S. dollar and persisting tensions in the Middle East.

"The market was eligible to get killed," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. "The fact that it didn't is the reason we're having a rally Tuesday."

But after showing a peak gain of four points, early in the session, the Dow settled back again. Iran's acting foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, was quoted as saying that 50 hostages held at the U.S. embassy in Tehran would be put on trial "for sure."

Gainers on the active list included Boeing, up 1 to $46¾; Great Western Financial, up 1¼ to $24⅝; Dart Industries, up ¾ to $38¾, and Litton Industries, ahead ⅞ to $39½.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of trading today.

The Financial Times index was up 4.8 to 423.3.

Industrials, oils and banks advanced.

Canadian shares eased.

TD bank office set for New York

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Dominion Bank has announced plans to establish its United States division headquarters in New York City.

"Creation of the U.S. division is a logical outgrowth of Toronto Dominion's involvement in that country," bank spokesmen said.

The bank has had an agency in New York since 1919 and has representative offices in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Los Angeles and Houston, a state bank in California, and a trust company in New York.

It also has an agency in Atlanta.

At least 12 of the bank's senior lending officers will be moving to New York from Toronto.

The new division will be headed by A. Charles Baillie, the bank's vice-president and general manager who was formerly head of the North American accounts group and commercial development division.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were lower in active trading on the Canadian bond market Monday.

The short-, mid-, long-term, provincial and corporate issues dropped one-eighth of a point.

Analysts said the main feature in the market was the an issue by the Government of Canada which met a good reception. However, the long maturity was not completely sold and continues to be sold at issue price.

The Canadian dollar remained strong. Dealers said if the U.S. dollar remains firm in the face of the rise in gold prices, with what analysts believe to be the support of the Federal Reserve Board, bond markets should be stable, which would facilitate the distribution of the unsold long Canada bonds offered Monday.

Question: who shot Lackey between eyes?

The question of who shot 36-year-old Thomas Young Lackey between the eyes dominated the sixth day of his B.C. Supreme Court trial Monday on nine charges, one of them attempting to murder Sgt. William Hillcoat of Saanich police.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan closed the case for the prosecution after calling 33 witnesses and entering 42 exhibits. Defence counsel David Gibbons of Vancouver was to call evidence today. He expected this would take one day.

Lackey was wounded in both legs and between the eyes. Hillcoat was wounded in his upper thigh-lower abdomen.

The first two policemen to arrive at a car accident scene shortly after 1 a.m. on Nov. 8, 1978, at McKenzie Avenue and Cedar Hill Cross Road, in response to a radio call for assistance by Hillcoat who said he had been shot, testified Monday.

Constable Robert Love said he stopped his vehicle 25 feet from a Cougar automobile which was up on the sidewalk with its trunk open and a man crouched at the rear.

The man was taking something in or out of the trunk or fumbling with something, he said.

Love said he told the man "freeze, don't move," a comment he repeated several times.

(Hillcoat, when he testified last week, said Love shouted to the man to throw a shotgun out and put his hands up).

The man, whom Love identified in court as Lackey, moved away from the rear of the Cougar. Love got within six to eight feet of him and said "stop or I'll shoot."

Lackey was in a semi-prone position and moved and Love said he came up behind him and grabbed him by the hair.

Suddenly, Love was struck in the left shoulder area and his drawn service revolver discharged. He said he was knocked eight or nine feet and was on his back. The revolver went flying and was six to eight feet from Lackey's head.

Love grabbed his revolver and then saw Hillcoat standing over Lackey and said to the sergeant "what the hell are you doing" and "you ran into me." Hillcoat replied he was sorry.

Love said he then drove Lackey's head into the ground thinking " I may be shot." He saw Lackey had head and leg wounds and put a bandage over his head. He also took a knife and identification from him.

He identified a pair of Lackey's trousers. There were two holes in the left rear pocket, two holes in the lower left leg and one hole in the right inner thigh.

(Court has been told Lackey was shot through the lower left leg and in the inside of his right thigh, where the bullet remained, as well as in the head. A wallet taken from Lackey also has a rip in it).

Love said he turned his revolver over to another policeman a little over two hours later and one bullet had been fired.

Cross-examined by Gibbons, Love concurred with an answer he gave at the preliminary hearing that he would not agree at all with the suggestion that Lackey's head wound was caused when his gun discharged because if it came from his gun, it would be fatal.

Gibbons suggested that what happened was that while Love was arresting Lackey, Hillcoat came up, put a revolver between his eyes and shot him.

"That statement would be a complete falsehood," replied Love.

Asked who shot Lackey between the eyes, he replied "I don't believe I can give you that evidence. I have no knowledge when he was shot in the head."

Love agreed with Gibbons that he didn't see Hillcoat until after the sergeant ran into him.

He was absolutely positive the headwound did not occur after Lackey was handcuffed.

Love denied that Lackey ever said he didn't intend to kill the policeman. But Lackey did say he wanted the policeman's forgiveness and also that he didn't want to die in Canada, that he wanted to go back to Hawaii and then he wanted to speak to the policeman.

Love also said there was conversation with Hillcoat at the hospital about the incident.

(Hillcoat testified last week he never discussed what happened with other officers before filing a report some days after the incident and he was as positive about this as the rest of his evidence).

Constable Greg Nelson, Love's partner, said they went directly to Lackey with guns drawn when they arrived. Love ordered him to "freeze" several times but Lackey kept moving about at the rear of the Cougar.

Love grabbed Lackey's hair. Nelson didn't see Hillcoat.

Nelson said he was directly in front of Lackey facing north and Love was facing him looking south.

Hillcoat then appeared from the southeast "quite fast" and collided with Love and a shot was fired. Nelson said he didn't know where the shot came from at the time or where it went.

"We were all a bit bewildered," he said.

Nelson, who said he didn't fire any shots, didn't notice any injury to Lackey before the policemen collided but did after.

Earlier medical evidence said Lackey suffered a shattering-type injury to his left eye typical of a gunshot wound which probably came from the front. Two large fragments were removed and there were multiple tiny fragments extending to his cheek.

A firearms expert could not identify the two metal fragments as part of a projectile and could not attach them to any particular weapon but they could be part of a bullet because they looked like a lead-alloy bullet in damaged condition.

Hillcoat testified he fired four shots after Lackey opened fire on him with a sawn-off shotgun. When Nelson and Love arrived, he said he ran over to them, and Love's gun went off.

U.K. drafts Rhodesia law despite guerrillas' threats

LONDON (AP) — Britain has set in motion the legal machinery to establish an independent government in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, apparently to pressure the black nationalist guerrillas into a ceasefire, but the guerrillas vowed today to keep on fighting if the British move ahead without a truce.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, chairman of the London peace conference on the African territory, said the Privy Council passed an order in council Monday night enabling him to appoint a British governor in Salisbury with full legislative and executive powers.

The Privy Council is made up of British cabinet members who act on urgent matters when there is no time to await parliamentary action. Council orders must eventually be approved by the British Parliament.

At a news conference today, Robert Mugabe, co-leader of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance, said Carrington "would be opting for war if he proceeds with the appointment of a governor, leaving the question of a ceasefire unsettled."

Mugabe's co-leader, Joshua Nkomo, at the same news conference, suggested Carrington call another conference session.

The guerrillas and Zimbabwe Rhodesia's black Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa already have agreed to the appointment of a British governor to oversee new elections and independence for the breakaway British colony. But the guerrillas have balked at British proposals for a ceasefire to end the war that has claimed 20,000 lives.

Muzorewa issued a statement today praising the decision to move toward appointment of a governor for Salisbury, saying it demonstrates recognition of his biracial government's "tremendous sacrifices."

Carrington acted after the guerrilla leaders stood him up at a scheduled meeting Saturday. Carrington cancelled a meeting with the guerrilla chiefs Monday after they said they were not ready to respond to his ceasefire plan.

He told a news conference Monday night: "I do not despair of reaching an agreement. But I am as close to despair as I have been in the whole three months of these negotiations.

"No doors have been finally closed. But we simply cannot wait forever for the Patriotic Front reply."

Gets life for six grisly murders

LONDON (Reuter) — A 40-year-old man was jailed for life today for murdering six people, including a 10-year-old child, incinerating their bodies and scattering the ashes around London.

In one of the most macabre cases in recent British criminal history, John Childs pleaded guilty to taking part in six murders between 1974 and last year. He confessed to the police after being arrested for theft.

Childs and two unnamed accomplices tried to use a large butcher's mincing machine to dispose of their first victim, a soft toy manufacturer whose business they planned to take over.

But the machine did not work and they then attempted to flush parts of his dismembered body down a lavatory. This, too, was unsuccessful, so the group incinerated the corpse in a fireplace and scattered the ashes from a car in London's East End.

The prosecution told London's Old Bailey Court the second victim was murdered because he witnessed the first killing.

One accomplice, identified only as Mr. B, shot the man in the head but failed to kill him. Childs then stabbed him with a diver's knife, B attacked him with an axe and Childs ripped open his stomach with a sword.

The men then decided to kill "on contract" for between $5,200 and $26,400, the prosecution said.

They murdered one man in front of his 10-year-old son, then shot the boy. Both bodies were incinerated.

After murdering the fifth victim, they dismembered his body with hacksaws and then burned it.

The prosecution said that by this time Childs wanted to stop and only reluctantly took part in the sixth murder of the husband of B's lover.

Police said charges might be brought against others and that two people have been charged with at least one of the murders.

PacPress told to pay $64,282

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Press Ltd. has been ordered to pay $64,281 in damages for breach of a waste paper agreement made in 1975 with two city companies.

Mr. Justice Hugh Legg of the British Columbia Supreme Court ruled recently that Pacific Press was liable for damages for discontinuing the supply of baled and loose and bundled newspaper to Community Paper Recycling Ltd. and Belkin Packaging Ltd. on April 4, 1977.

The judge said in a written decision he was satisifed that the defendant's failure to supply waste paper under the contract forced the plantiffs to get their supplies elsewhere at higher prices.

Penny to shrink

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint is going to shrink your money before it gets to your pocket.

Starting Jan. 1, the one-cent piece will be made thinner and lighter. It will be reduced to 2.8 grams from 3.24 and in thickness to 1.38 millimetres from 1.65.

Yvon Gariepy, master of the mint, said in a statement that the change will hardly be noticeable.

The change will cut production costs, including minting and the price of the metal, which has exceeded the coin's nominal value, the statement said.

Man's leap off cliff a lesson in death

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP) — A 64-year-old recluse watched a man contemplating suicide on a cliff's edge, walked up to him and said: "I'll show you how it's done." Then he leaped to his death, the Durban Sunday Tribune reported. The tribune said the recluse, John Parrin, and several other persons had watched the potential suicide for some time. Parrin then told the undecided man that since he didn't know how to kill himself, he would show him. The man fainted after Parrin jumped.

Hudson's Bay Company

In case you're wondering . .

Who's the biggest employer in the Greater Victoria area?

That depends on how you define or classify an employer.

Canada Employment groups similar businesses as an employer. For example, businesses involved in the retail trade would make a poor showing as a major source of jobs if they were treated individually.

But lumped together, they don't do too badly.

So if you accept the way Canada Employment classifies an employer, then you're in for a surprise.

The biggest employer is not government as many people believe, but all businesses and institutions classifed under the name of community services.

This takes in education, hotels, motels, recreation, restaurants and businesses dealing with the tourist industry.

Out of Greater Victoria's labor force of about 105,000, community services employ 35,175 people or more than 33 per cent of the labor force.

The next big employer is government listed under the name of public administration and defence, which takes in federal and provincial governments and the armed services for a total of 10,380 employees, of which 3,600 are in the armed forces.

The provincial government employs 12,316 people.

The retail and wholesale trade is the third big employer, providing jobs for about 19,000 people.

Some large individual employers in the Greater Victoria area are Burrard Yarrows Corp. with 600 on the payroll on average; B.C. Hydro and Power Authority 675; B.C. Telephone Co. about 930; and B.C. Forest Products 1,000.

Manufacturing, by the way, only provides jobs for about 7.1 per cent of the labor force; construction 6.8 per cent; transportion, communications and other utilities, 6.6 per cent; fishing and forestry, 1.1 per cent and agriculture 1.3 per cent.

Natural history exhibit is a mind-boggler

Like walking into a time capsule

By PAT DUFOUR

Walking through the door marked staff only on the second floor of the Provincial Museum is like walking into a time capsule of British Columbia.

Once through the door, even the most blase mind is boggled by the new permanent natural history exhibition, Living Land, Living Sea, that has been five years in the planning and creating.

The exhibition vividly portrays the kaleidoscope of evolution since the last ice age some 10,000 years ago.

While most exhibitions make onlookers of their visitors, this one takes you right inside. You feel the frigidness of the ice age as walls of ice loom, made awesome by the stars and realistic lighting from above.

You confront a mammoth, one of the huge beasts that roamed here when the ice began to retreat, face to face. Based on the measurements of a mammoth skeleton of an adult bull excavated from an Illinois peat bog in 1931, you almost expect it to bellow in defiance.

You walk through a forest. In spite of the staffers who are feverishly working on final details before the official opening by Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe of Dec. 13, you feel alone in the midst of mightiness.

One of the most realistic parts of the exhibition portrays the stretch of coast from Barkley Sound to Triangle Island at the northern tip of Vancouver Island. Background painter Jan Vriesen has created a backdrop that gives the illusion you could walk right out into the fog-shrouded sea.

A group of sea lions, headed by a huge bull, loll on the rocks. Seals cavort close by. Pelagic cormorants, puffs, murres and other birds dot the cliffs and one can almost feel the wind whipping in from offshore.

In the depths of a realistic pool live sea anenomes, sea urchins, sea stars and other creatures can be seen.

You can almost feel the mud oozing through your shoes in the nearby exhibit which shows the birds that winter on the mud flats of the Fraser Delta. Among them are snow geese from Siberia and cormorants who make their way to the Fraser River from California.

Living Land, Living Sea will be open to the general public from Friday, Dec. 14, during normal museum hours of 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

It will be the first of seven permanent exhibitions to be created in the museum's natural history gallery.

Geoff Stewart, curator of vertebrate zoology, says the next one, on deep-sea life, will have a submarine in which visitors will explore life in the depths. There will later be exhibitions on fresh water, desert, dry forest, wet forest, northern and alpine heights.

TOWN TALK

Are bureaucracies growing? Well, Town Talk's infallible political tape measure indicates they are, and the one adding fat fastest is that of B.C.

The source of this little revelation? B.C. Tel's new phone book issued Dec. 1.

According to the new directory (under "Government"), Canadian government phones in Victoria now take an extra 3½ column inches to list while B.C. now slops over onto the municipal government page, an added 10 column inches of bureaucracy in inaction.

Incredibly, municipal government listings appear to have shrunk, but in fact, they've only put in less white space to make room for the extra B.C. lineage.

B.C. Tel in Victoria is growing, too. The white pages are up 12 to 279 while the yellow pages soared 46 to 532. Of course, that includes a seven-page index, a welcome development designed to save your delicate digits from aimless wandering.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce director John Ansell is philosophical about the fact he has been appointed to solve all the city's tourist problems in 90 days.

"It's going to be a tough job but it has to be done. I must get task forces launched by Jan. 4 and the recommendations in, ready for action, by March 30. They'll be ready — they'll have to be. We can't afford any delay."

Among the problems he'll have to wrestle with is how to bail out the ailing Visitors Information Centre and how to get co-operation from all the rival groups still active in tourist promotion.

Oak Bay council has come up with an idea governments at all levels could consider.

The Union of B.C. Municipalities is considering changes in its convention format and wants suggestions from councils.

Oak Bay agreed and established a special committee, but with this condition: It must report to council within 30 days or it will be automatically self-destructed.

Victoria Mayor-elect Bill Tindall and the new council were sworn in at city hall Monday afternoon, but the kids made sure that nobody took himself too seriously.

Ald. Bill McElroy's two sons had front row seats in the audience with their mother and grandparents. Two-year-old Magnus got restless and McElroy gave him a pen and his copy of the agenda to scribble on.

Then as Tindall read his inaugural address, 11-month-old Ian started gurgling — the mayor's first heckler, as one onlooker said.

If that wasn't enough, McElroy had his own cheering section, too. He had the visiting Grade 7 class from James Bay community school — accompanied by co-ordinator Ron Gulmans — applauding on signal.

Billets are needed for about 20 youngsters on tour from their senior school in New Zealand, playing here against UVic Jutes Jan. 11 and 12.

"Normally we would billet a visiting team with members of our own club," said Dr. Bruce Howe, chairman of the school of physical education and Vikings rugby coach.

"But these boys are younger and we would prefer to find volunteers from the university community."

Blencoe grills Tindall over council postings

Victoria Mayor Bill Tindall weathered a barrage of questions Monday on his committee appointments.

They came from Ald. Robin Blencoe after Tindall named Ken Sinclair as city council's contact with neighborhood groups, while Ald. Gretchen Brewin acts as liaison with downtown organizations on social problems.

Blencoe said social problems were more than just a downtown issue and questioned Tindall's way of apportioning the council workload in this area.

The mayor replied that he was "particularly concerned about the downtown area at the moment" but he would make changes in a few months if the new setup doesn't work.

"You know me well enough to know I'm flexible and willing to make changes."

Another new wrinkle was Tindall's promise to rotate the position of acting mayor among the four senior aldermen. Under ex-mayor Mike Young, Tindall held the position for the last year. The new mayor named Ald. Ron McKenzie for the first six months, with the job later going to Bob Wright, Blencoe and Bill McElroy.

Tindall was questioned on his election promise to open up the now-secret meetings of the advisory planning commission.

"I don't choose to comment on that at this inaugural meeting," said the mayor, but he told Blencoe to ask again at the first committee meeting.

Blencoe queried the mayor's decision to separate fire prevention (which went to Wright) and emergency services (which Blencoe got), saying that the two should be considered an integral unit. Previously they were one alderman's responsibility.

With Wright and Blencoe on different main committees, it will be difficult to work together in these matters, Blencoe said. Tindall told him that he had some problems dividing up the committee workload and decided emergency services were better suited to Wright's major land use planning committee.

"I'm sure that the two of can work it out," Wright said.

Blencoe — the only alderman to debate the mayor's list of committee appointments before council gave its pro forma approval — also questioned Tindall's appointment of Wright and McElroy to the Capital Regional District.

This is the first year councils appoint their CRD directors, but in the past they have been elected by the voters, Blencoe noted, and usually they have been the aldermen who topped the polls.

Wright came third this time and McElroy was seventh in the standings. McKenzie was first and Blencoe a close second.

Tindall said he is concerned about the region's sewage problems, and he thought Wright should continue to chair the CRD's sewage subcommittee. He also thought one new member of council should get some experience at the CRD and "I elected to make Ald. McElroy that member."

The last item on the agenda was approval of the city's provisional 1980 budget, a legal requirement of the Municipal Act but which usually does not bear much resemblance to the budget finally adopted in the spring.

This one called for expenditures of $52.3 million, up $3.2 million over the current year. The big increases are in public works (up $600,000 to $3.7 million) and the fire department (up $400,000 to $4 million). The police department will take $5.2 million of the budget, compared with $4.8 million this year.

Silver lining to lottery

The Western Community weekly Juan de Fuca News has found a way out of its silver-lined giveaway which the B.C. Lotteries Branch ruled was an illegal lottery.

In a widely advertised promotion, the paper says anyone buying a year's subscription for $7 is eligible to win one of five one-pound silver ingots.

Publisher Rob Ferguson said today the contest is being extended until Dec. 17, and everyone in the Western Community will be allowed to enter without having to buy a subscription.

That way, he said, the monetary aspect is removed and it is no longer legally a lottery.

Also, subscribers wanting refunds get them.

"No problem," said Ferguson. "If anyone feels badly about the deal, they can come in and get their $7 back."

Lotteries licensing officer Dan Currie is satisfied with the new arrangement.

He said it is only fair to limit eligibility for the draw to residents of Langford, Metchosin, Colwood and Sooke, since the paper is distributed only in those areas.

However, there is no limit on the number of entries per person.

Currie said the branch usually tries to deal gently with businessmen who find themselves in such a situation.

"We find out what they're doing wrong and suggest how to amend it to get rid of the lottery aspect of the promotion," he said.

RCMP seize pot, weapons

Sidney RCMP raided a house and came up with four bags of marijuana, a 44-cal. magnum and a .22 pistol Monday night.

Acting on a complaint police searched a north peninsula residence, arrested two men, aged 21 and 23, and charged them with possession of a narcotic for the purpose of trafficking, possession of stolen property and possession of restricted weapons.

They were to appear in provincial court today.

Province may buy Carr paintings

Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe today gave strong indication the government will purchase some or all of the collection of Emily Carr paintings offered by a Vancouver industrialist.

"We're very interested." the minister said today. "I viewed the collection myself yesterday. We have under active consideration the possibility of acquiring either all or part of this collection. That's now being pursued."

Wolfe said the Keenlyside Gallery in Vancouver has agreed to hold off the sale until the province makes up its mind later this week.

"With that small encouragement I'm holding my breath," said gallery owner Karen Keenlyside, who helped build the collection of 27 paintings for Vancouver industrialist George Clark and wants to see them kept in Canada.

She said she has had "a very attractive offer" for the collection from a Vancouver dealer representing an American collector, but has turned him down for now and has given the province first crack.

Thursday was given as the deadline — that's when the Carr collection will be taken down and replaced with another exhibition — but even if they are sold to Americans, the Carrs may not leave Canada for at least six months.

The Cultural Properties Export Act allows that much time for a Canadian buyer to match the foreign offer. Carr's paintings qualify under the guidelines of the act as she is no longer living and her paintings exceed the minimum value set by the act.

Asking price for the paintings — most from Carr's mature period, 1931-1945 — is $1¼ million plus dealer's commission of five per cent, or about $50,000 apiece.

Keenlyside said the prices for Carr's work have been rising rapidly in the last few years and this isn't out of line.

One of the paintings is a rare piece of work from Emily Carr's early years, before she went to England in the late 1890s, and five are from her French period before the First World War. There are also two early paintings of totem poles from 1912 and the rest are from her later years.

Four are oils on cardboard, 14 are oil on paper and eight are on canvas but all are in very good condition and haven't suffered the deterioration of other similar works in the Vancouver Art Gallery collection.

Wolfe originally turned down a proposal by Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe to use lottery funds to buy the paintings, but has changed his mind under pressure from many arts groups.

Soviet men take team lead

For Canada, ninth is great

FORT WORTH, Tex. (CP) — Ninth position might be a disappointment to the Soviets or the Japanese, traditional powers in international gymnastics, but the Canadian men's team at the 20th world championships will take it, happily.

That's where the team stands today after the compulsory round. The U.S.S.R. has 293 points and Canada 282 points. In between are Japan, the United States, East Germany, China, Hungary, Romania and West Germany, in that order.

Women's compulsory events took over the spotlight today. The U.S.S.R., defending women's team champion, and Romania, with Nadia Comanechi who won fame at the 1976 Montreal Olympics, were favorites.

The meet is the largest and most important gymnastics event before the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

The top 12 teams qualify for the Olympics. Canada did not qualify as a team last time, finishing 14th.

But, if it can perform as well in the optional categories on Wednesday, the men's team will qualify for 1980. That's what had Canadian Gymnastics Federation officials walking around with broad smiles Monday night.

"They put on a tremendous performance," said Colin Wackette, a federation director.

"We're just ecstatic that after the firsst day they've come through so well."

It was indeed a team effort. No Canadian was in the top six in individual events but the over-all showing put the team in ninth spot.

Philip Delasalle, 21, of Victoria was the top Canadian competitor.

Warren Long of Vancouver was second in points for Canadians.

Jean Choquette and Pierre Clavel, both of Montreal, Dan Gaudet of Toronto, and Mark Epprecht of Cambridge, Ont., also fared well.

"Canada is ahead of countries like Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and France — teams that have normally beaten us in the past," Wackette said. "There is a lot of optimism here right now."

Top individual scorer in competition was Russia's Alexandre Ditiatin with a 58.9 out of a possible perfect 60.

The big surprise was Nikolai Andrianov, gold medalist all-around in the Montreal Olympics, who could manage only twelfth in the individual placings.

The two stars of the U.S. team, Bart Conner with a 58.75 and Kurt Thomas with 58.70, were second and third. Conner took a 9.9 on the horizontal bar and a 9.85 in floor exercises, whereas Thomas scored 9.9 on the floor and 9.85 on the bar.

The Japanese and the Soviets are expected to make up points in freestyle routines Wednesday. The Chinese will most likely better their fifth-place team standing with routines said to include original variations never before seen in gymnastics.

"Some of these Chinese have never even heard of Sir Isaac Newton," discoverer of gravity, one official commented.

Canadiens tie Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — When Montreal Canadiens win only one of five games, they are said to be struggling — even if three of the other contests ended tied and only one was a loss. Such is the champion's burden, a weight they have hefted the last four seasons and will bear until some team relieves them of it.

It's almost as though they can't win, no matter how well they do. If they win another National Hockey League title this season, tying their record of five in a row, new coach Bernie Geoffrion may well hear cynics say, "Anyone could coach that team and win."

If they lose, people will say the departures of coach Scotty Bowman, goalie Ken Dryden and centre Jacques Lemaire — all in the offseason — took away the heart of the team. No club in hockey is permitted fewer excuses, and the Canadiens don't seem to want any.

Defenceman Larry Robinson scored a power-play goal and set up similar goals by Guy Lafleur and Pierre Larouche in a 3-3 tie with New York Rangers on Monday night. He was reminded the Canadiens were playing without four of their regulars, since left winger Bob Gainey was out with a broken left foot, goalie Denis Herron has a broken collarbone, centre Doug Risebrough is recovering from knee surgery and defenceman Rod Langway was out with an eye injury.

"That's just a crutch, and a poor one at that," he said. "We've got capable enough guys to fill in for those fellows."

He admitted the pieces of his team's puzzle are somewhat in disarray. One piece, he said, was missing completely: "Hard work."

The Rangers worked well Monday night, getting a strong performance from rookie goalie Steve Baker and two goals from Phil Esposito.

"I thought the fans got a good show for their money for the first time this year," said New York coach Fred Shero. "The fans got three good periods for the first time."

Quick action by Bruins after blast by Schmautz

BOSTON (AP) — Bobby Schmautz, who scored 20 or more goals for five straight National Hockey League seasons in Boston, apparently has played his last game as a Bruin.

Publicly critical of coach Fred Creighton, Schmautz was sent home Monday and told not to accompany the team to Philadelphia tonight or to Long Island for a game against the Islanders on Thursday.

General manager Harry Sinden issued a statement saying Schmautz, 34, a winger, will be traded promptly.

The Bruins acted after Schmautz was quoted as saying Creighton's system is not conducive to winning hockey — "We're not getting enough ice time."

Creighton told reporters the decision to trade Schmautz resulted from cumulative problems. Schmautz, Sinden said, "has requested in the past that he be traded and we will make every effort to accommodate him."

In a telephone interview from his Topsfield, Mass., home, Schmautz claimed to be speaking for other players when he criticized Creighton.

"I brought it up even when we were winning," he said. Schmautz conceded he asked to be traded, but not after the season began.

Schmautz has appeared in 20 games this season, scoring eight goals and collecting six assists.

The Bruins' 5-3 loss to Cherry and the Rockies on Sunday night was the team's third defeat in a row and fourth in the last five games. Schmautz was quoted in the Boston Globe as saying, "We were outcoached."

"We've fallen apart defensively," Schmautz said. "It was only a matter of time. We're using four lines which means that sometimes you're sitting on the bench for seven or eight minutes before getting back on."

Branch's TD grabs put Raiders on top

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Wide receiver Cliff Branch said he hoped the two late-game touchdown receptions that gave Oakland Raiders a 42-35 victory over New Orleans Saints would put him back in the good graces of coach Tom Flores.

Branch caught seven passes for 126 yards in the Monday night National Football League game, but the last two were the keys — a 66-yarder that knotted the score at 35-35 with 3:19 to play and an eight-yarder that made it 42-35 with just under two minutes left.

"Maybe this got me out of the doghouse," Branch said after the game.

Branch did not explain why Flores started Rich Martini in his place, but he said he was not disappointed that he had.

"I'm still part of the team," he said. "It takes 45 guys to win the game, and I'm still one of the 45."

The victory kept Oakland's hopes of a playoff berth alive.

"I just told our team we have a chance . . . just win the last three and, well, that's it," Flores said.

New Orleans has to count on beating San Diego and Los Angeles losing to Atlanta next week. That would set up a head-to-head Rams-Saints clash for the NFC West title.

"This is one of my most disappointing losses ever," said Saints coach Dick Nolan. "When you've got a 21-point lead, you've got to keep it."

The Saints had 21-point leads twice — 28-7 in the second quarter and 35-14 in the third quarter.

"I've been with the Raiders for eight years, and we've been in a lot of games of that type," Branch said. "The Raiders play that kind of football."

Rejected bidders claim 'punishment' in suit against NFL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Toronto sports entrepreneur John F. Bassett was among three businessmen who filed a $144 million suit Monday against the National Football League, claiming they were denied an NFL franchise in 1976 as punishment for once owning teams in the defunct World Football League.

The suit, filed in U.S. district court here, accused the NFL, its 28 teams and commissioner Pete Rozelle of conspiring to suppress competition in order to maintain a pro football monopoly, in violation of antitrust laws.

"We have no comment until we see the legal papers," said Joe Brown, an NFL information director, when asked about the charges.

The plaintiffs alleged they met conditions necessary to be awarded a franchise in Memphis, Tenn., but were arbitrarily rejected by the NFL.

The rejection served "as punishment" for helping organize the rival WFL in 1973, the suit said.

It said the rejection also was intended to intimidate others against establishing a competing league.

The WFL folded in October 1975 after its 12 teams raided the NFL for players and attempted to compete for spectators, broadcasting revenue, and other sales and promotion rights.

Plaintiffs in Monday's suit were Mid-South Grizzlies, headed by Bassett, which owned Memphis Southmen; John E. Bosacco of Media, Pa., who owned Philadelphia Bell; and Consolidated Industries, Inc., of California, headed by Fresno businessman William R. Tatham, who owned Portland Storm.

The suit was filed by Philadelphia lawyers Richard A. Sprague and Edward H. Rubenstone. It asked $48 million in damages, which are tripled in all antitrust actions.

The response was good, might have been better

The weekend in review and a touch of shame on Victoria. It did well, but could have done better. There were two great attractions in town on the weekend, the Pacific Rim Basketball Classic at the University of Victoria, featuring seven of the top college teams in Canada and an outstanding independent team from Seattle; and the Playland cash bonspiel, featuring the top curlers in Western Canada.

Attendance can only be described as fair to good at both events — granted the basketball final did draw a near capacity house — when the people should have been knocking down the doors to get in every day.

Oh well, such are the trials and tribulations of sports groups trying to give the customer the best. Fans refuse to be told what they might miss. And this time did. So what else is new?

What else? Why Joe and his boys, of course. The basketballers suffered financial loss primarily because of the federal government cutback in travel funds to universities. This bumped the expenses over the break-even budgetary figure. Over 5,000 fans attended but more were needed to make up the difference the feds were responsible for.

At the curling, the sponsors at least broke even, thought the response was good, but could have been better, and all went well except for the fact that some of the curlers and families domiciled in the sponsoring downtown hostelry had to shave and shower with cold water because of an equipment breakdown.

Meanwhile, overheard and left over from the curling cash, where your agent's duties happened to be located:

Ed Lukowich, 1978 Canadian champion: The ice here was better than any we have played on this year.

Steve Skillings, Victoria's only rink on the circuit: One thing we've learned from cashspiels is how to play from behind.

Rick Folk, two-time Saskatchewan champion and two-time Brier runner up: What we were getting for top prize in cashspiels a few years ago, we're paying in entry fees now. (Entry fee here was $500).

Barry McPhee of Kamloops, who was invited only four days before event to fill gap left vacant by Doug Harrison of Winnipeg who had filled spot left vacant by Canadian champion Barry Fry, in accepting $6,000 second-place prize: It sure was nice to get that phone call.

George Fink, winner of the Vernon carspiel: I would say the hospitality here has been the best we have had and the curlers are impressed.

Paul Gowsell of Calgary, skip of the designated fan-appeal rink and the tournament disappointment: So we lost. See you all next week. (Next week is Edmonton, starting Thursday).

And that remark by Gowsell put it all in perspective. Because that's the way it goes on the trail. When you can win a big one, such as Gowsell at Winnipeg, Fink at Vernon, Lukowich at Calgary, to name a few, and finish high up at other times, it can be profitable. If you don't, there's always next week. After last week, these fellows should all be welcome back and, if there had been a popularity poll amongst the curlers, I'm sure the Swedish rink of Johan Dracke would have won it.

Otherwise, the Vikings proved the class of the Canadian teams at the Rim Classic, but only narrowly, and the road ahead to a possible national title is still there, even if it may be a rocky one. Still, the Vikings are a winner, so are the Vikettes, and they should both be treated with the respect they deserve. Because they'll be back and heard from again.

And also an orchid to Victoria Cougars. Most hockey fans should agree that the Cougar win over the Royals and their "Black Aces" Sunday at New Westminster was much better for the sport than a loss would have been. For the obvious reason and no further comment necessary.

Marsh Gordon, one of the city's tennis immortals passed away last month and that brings back a few memories. For besides, being a fine player, several times city champion and also a provincial titlist, Gordon had a sense of humor and would relate a story, or two, if pressed. And it seems that one time when he and Bill Merston were sharing a room at a tournament in Ganges, Gordon had retired early and Merston, who had mislaid his key, couldn't awaken him. So Merston went outside, scaled the wall and was attempting to enter through the window when Gordon awoke and saw a shadowy figure creeping over the sill. Gordon grabbed the intruder and, in the scuffle that followed, Merston received a broken arm and Gordon had lost his doubles partner. Or so the story goes. And a fine gentleman Gordon was, in a personal association, however brief.

Cats tackle Bighorns before Spartak visit

Victoria Cougars embark on a very busy segment of their schedule Thursday.

Cougars face Billings Bighorns in a game for Western Hockey League points at 8 p.m. Thursday before tackling the touring Moscow Spartak squad of Russia in an exhibition contest at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Both games are at Memorial Arena.

And then the Cougars are off on a 10-games-in-14-nights road trip starting Sunday.

At Thursday's game, children of 12 and under who bring two cans of food will be admitted free. The food will be used for the Salvation Army Christmas hampers.

The line of Barry Pederson, Greg Adams and Bud McCarthy has been piling up points for Cougars.

The trio, sparked by Pederson's effervesence, has combined for 28 points in Victoria's last three outings. Ten have been goals, including five by Pederson.

Pederson picked up 13 points in last week's three games to boost his individual total to 47.

Adams, the unit's left winger, enjoyed a 10-point week while the rookie McCarthy checked in with five points, including three goals.

Meanwhile, Jeff Zilkie scored three times to lead Bighorns to a 6-3 victory over visiting Medicine Hat Tigers in the only league game Monday night.

Galindez in hospital with fractured jaw

MIAMI (AP) — Argentine boxer Victor Galindez, who lost his World Boxing Association light-heavyweight championship Friday night to Marvin Johnson, was in hospital Monday with a fractured jaw.

A hospital spokesman said Galindez, 31, was in good condition and would undergo surgery today.

Administrator Don Delvecchio said Galindez suffered the injury in Friday night's fight in New Orleans.

Challenger Johnson nailed Galindez with a looping left to the head and knocked him out in the 11th round.

Galindez had held the WBA crown since 1969 except for eight months in 1979.

Delvecchio said Galindez's jaw will be set and then wired shut. The boxer will be in hospital for about five days, he said.

Entry fees demanded

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The International Federation of Football Associations (FIFA) has written to 20 soccer countries — including Yugoslavia, Greece and Iran — threatening to expel them from the 1982 World Cup tournament unless they pay their entry fees.

In letters to national soccer associations in each country, FIFA general secretary Dr. Helmut Kaeser warned that unless the nominal entry fee of 1,000 Swiss francs ($640) has been paid by the end of the year, the countries concerned would not be allowed to compete in the tournament.

The letter, reproduced in the latest FIFA information bulletin, said payment should have been made at the time the entry form was sent to FIFA.

The Christmas Song

Chestnuts roasting on an open fire,
Jack Frost nipping at your nose,
Yule-tide carols being sung by a choir,
And folks dressed up like Eskimos, Everybody knows a turkey and some mistletoe,
Help to make the season bright,
Tiny tots with their eyes all aglow,
Will find it hard to sleep tonight,
They know that Santa's on his way,
He's loaded lots of toys and goodies on his sleigh,
And every mother's child is gonna spy,
To see if reindeer really know how to fly.
And so, I'm offering this simple phrase,
To kids from one to ninety-two,
Altho' it's been said many times, many ways,
"Merry Christmas to you."

21

Silent Night

Silent night! Holy night!
All is calm, all is bright;
Round yon virgin mother and child
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Silent night! Holy night!
Shepherds quake at the sight!
Glory streams from heaven afar,
Heavenly hosts sing Alleluia.
Christ, the Saviour, is born!
Christ, the Saviour, is born!
Silent night! Holy night!
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.

22

Winter Wonderland

Sleigh-bells ring,
Are you list'nin?
In the lane
Snow is glist'nin
A beautiful sight
We're happy tonight,
Walkin' in the Winter Wonderland!
Gone away is the Bluebird,
Here to stay is a new bird,
He sings a love song,
As we go along,
Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland!
In the meadow we can build a snowman,
Then pretends that he is Parson Brown,
He'll say "Are you married?"
We'll say "No man!"
But you can do the job when you're in town,

Later on, we'll conspire,
As we dream by the fire
To face unafraid
The plans that we made,
Walkin' in a Winter Wonderland!

Silver Bells

City sidewalks, busy sidewalks,
Dressed in holiday style.
In the air there's a feeling of Christmas,
Children laughing, people passing, meeting smile after smile,
And on every street corner your hear:
Silver bells, silver bells,
It's Christmas time in the city.
Ring-a-ling, hear them ring.
Soon it will be Christmas day.
City street lights, even stop lights,
Blink a bright red and green,
As the shoppers rush home with their treasures,
Hear the snow crunch,
See the kids bunch,
This is Santa's big scene,
And above all this bustle you hear:
Silver bells, silver bells,
It's Christmas Time in the city.
Ring-a-ling, hear them ring,
Soon it will be Christmas day.

Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer

You know Dasher and Dancer and Prancer and Vixen,
Comet and Cupid and Donner and Blitzen,
But do you recall the most famous Reindeer of all?

Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer
had a very shiny nose,
And if you ever saw it,
you would even say it glows.
All of the other reindeer used to laugh and call him names,
They would never let poor Rudolph join in any reindeer games:

Then one foggy Christmas Eve,
Santa came to say:
Rudolph with your nose so bright,
won't you guide my sleigh tonight;
Then how the reindeer loved him
as they shouted out with glee,
Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer,
you'll go down in history.

While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks

While shepherds watched their flocks by night,
All seated on the ground,
The angel of the Lord came down,
And glory shone around.

"Fear not," said he, for mighty dread
Had seized their troubled mind;
"Glad tidings of great joy I bring
To you and all mankind.

"To you, in David's town, this day
Is born of David's line
A Saviour, who is Christ the Lord;
And this shall be the sign.

"The heavenly Babe you there shall find
To human view displayed,
All meanly wrapped in swathing bands,
And in a manger laid."

Thus spake the seraph; and forthwith
Appeared a shining throng
Of angels, praising God, who thus Addressed their joyful song
"All glory be to God on high,
And to earth be peace;
Goodwill henceforth, from heaven to men
Begin and never cease."

O Come, All Ye Faithful

O come all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant,
Come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem;
Come and behold Him,
Born the King of Angels:

Refrain

O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
Christ the Lord.

Sing choirs of Angels,
Sing in exultation,
Sing all ye citizens of heaven above.
Glory to God
In the highest.

Yea, Lord we hail Thee
Born this happy morning;
Jesus, to Thee be glory given,
Word of the Father,
Now in the Flesh appearing.

The First Now

The first Nowel the angels did say,
Was to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay;
In fields where they lay keeping their sheep,
On a cold winter's night, that was so deep.

Refrain

Nowel, Nowel, Nowel, Nowel,
Born is the King of Israel.

They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the East beyond them far,
And to the Earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night.

And by the light of that same star
Three wise men came from country far,
To seek for a King was their intent,
And to follow the star wherever it went,

This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest,
And there it did both stop and stay
Right over the place where Jesus lay.

Then entered in those wise men three Full reverently upon their knee.
And offered there in his presence
Their gold and myrrh and frankincense

Then let us all with one accord
Sing praises to our heavenly lord;
That hath made heaven and earth of nought,
And with His blood mankind hath bought.

Christians, Awake

Christians, awake, salute the happy morn
Whereon the Saviour of the world was born;
Rise to adore the mystery of love,
Which hosts of angels chanted from above
With them the joyful tidings first begun.
Of God incarnate and the Virgin's Son.

Then to the watchful shepherds it was told
Who heard the angelic herald's voice,
"Behold,
"I bring good tidings of a Saviour's birth!
"To you and all the nations upon the earth!
He that was born upon this joyful day
Around us all His glory shall display.
Saved by His love, incessant we shall sing
Eternal praise to heaven's almighty King.

Do You Hear What I Hear?

Said the night wind to the little lamb,
Do you see what I see?
'Way up in the sky, little lamb,
Do you see what I see?
A star, a star,
Dancing in the night,
With a tail as big as a kite,
With a tail as big as a kite.

Said the little lamb to the shepherd boy
Do you hear what I hear?
Ringing through the sky, shepherd boy.
Do you hear what I hear?
A song, a song, High above the tree;
With a voice as big as the sea,
With a voice as big as the sea.

Said the shepherd boy to the might king,
Do you know what I know?
In your palace warm, mighty king,
Do you know what I know?
A Child, a Child shivers in the cold;
Let us bring Him silver and gold,
Let us bring Him silver and gold.

Said the king to the people everywhere,
Listen to what I say!
Pray for peace, people everywhere,
Listen to what I say!
The Child, the Child, sleeping in the night;
He will bring us goodness and light,
He will bring us goodness and light.

Infant Holy

Infant holy, infant lowly,
For his bed, a cattle stall;
Oxen lowing, little knowing
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.
Swift are winging, angels singing,
Nowels ringing, tidings bringing,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

Flocks were sleeping, shepherds keeping
Vigil till the morning new Saw the glory, heard the story,
Tidings of a gospel true.
Thus rejoicing, free from sorrow,
Praises voicing, greet the morrow,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

White Christmas

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know
Where the tree tops glisten
And children listen to hear sleigh bells in the snow.

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
With ev'ry Christmas card I write
May your days be merry and bright
And may all your Christmases be white.

Santa Claus Is Coming To Town

Oh, you'd better watch out,
You'd better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He's making a list and checking it twice,
Going to find out who's naughty and nice,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He sees you when you're sleeping,
He knows if you're awake,
He knows if you've been bad or good,
So be good — for goodness sake!

Oh, you'd better watch out,
You'd better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

What Child Is This?

What child is this who laid to rest
    On Mary's breast is sleeping?
Whom angels greet with anthems sweet
    While shepherds watch are keeping.

Refrain:

This, this is Christ the King
Whom shepherds guard and angels sing,
Haste, haste to bring him in
The Babe, the son of Mary.

Why lies He in such mean estate
    Where ox and ass are feeding?
Good Christian, fear for sinners here
    The silent word is pleading.

So bring him incense, gold and myrrh,
    Come peasant, king and own him.
The King of Kings salvation brings
    Let loving hearts enthrone him.

Away in a Manger

Away in a manger, no crib for a bed,
The little Lord Jesus lay down his sweet
    head;
The stars in the bright sky look down
    where He lay,
The little Lord Jesus asleep on the hay.
The cattle are lowing, the Baby awakes,
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes;
I Love Thee, Lord Jesus; look down from the sky,
And stay by my side until morning is nigh.
Be near me, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever and love me, I pray;
Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care,
And fit us for heaven to live with Thee
    there.

Here Comes Santa Claus

Here comes Santa Claus!
Here comes Santa Claus!
Right down Santa Claus Lane!

Vixen and Blitzen and all his reindeer are pulling on the rein, Bells are ringing, children singing, all is merry and bright.
Hang your stockings and say your pray'rs,
    'Cause Santa Claus comes tonight.

He's got a bag that is filled with toys for the boys and girls again.
Hear those sleigh-bells jingle jangle,
    what a beautiful sight.
    'Cause Santa Claus comes tonight.

God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ your Saviour
Was born upon this day,
To save us all from Satan's power
When we were gone astray.

Refrain:

O tidings of comfort and joy, comfort and joy,
O tidings of comfort and joy.

In Bethlehem, in Jewry,
This blessed Babe was born,
And laid within a manger
Upon this blessed morn;
The which His mother Mary
Did nothing take in scorn.

From God our Heav'nly Father,
A blessed angel came,
And unto certain shepherds
Brought tidings of the same,
How that in Bethlehem was born
The Son of God by name.

"Fear not then," said the angel,
"Let nothing you affright,
This day is born a Saviour
Of a pure Virgin bright,
To free all those who trust in Him,
From Satan's power and might."

Now to the Lord sing praises,
All you within this place,
And with true love and brotherhood
Each other now embrace;
This holy tide of Christmas
All other doth efface.

Hark, the Herald Angels Sing

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King,
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled."
Joyful, all ye nations rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With angelic hosts proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem."

Refrain

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King."

Christ, by highest heaven adored,
Christ, the everlasting Lord;
Late in time behold Him come
Offspring of a Virgin's womb.
Veiled in flesh the Godhead see;
Hail the incarnate Diety.
Pleased as man with man to dwell,
Jesus, our Emmanuel.

Hail the heaven-born Prince of Peace
Hail the Son of Righteousness.
Light and life to all He brings,
Risen with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by,
Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.

Jingle Bells

Dashing thro' the snow,
    In a one-horse open sleigh
O'er the fields we go,
    Laughing all the way;
Bells on bobtail ring,
    Making spirits bright;
What fun it is to ride and sing a sleighing song tonight!

Chorus:

Jingle bells, jingle bells,
    Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride,
    In a one-horse open sleigh!

A day or two ago,
    I thought I'd take a ride,
And soon Miss Fannie Bright was seated
    by my side;
The horse was lean and lank,
    Misfortune seemed his lot,
He got into a drifted bank and then we got upsot!

Now the ground is white,
    Go it while you're young;
Take the girls tonight
    And sing this sleighing song;
Just get a bobtail'd nag,
    Two-forty for his speed,
Then hitch him to an open sleigh and crack! you'll take the lead.

Good King Wenceslas

Good King Wenceslas looked out
On the feast of Stephen, when the snow lay round about,
Deep and crisp and even;
Brightly shone the moon that night,
Tho' the frost was cruel,
When a poor man came in sight,
Gath'ring winter fuel.

"Hither, page and stand by me,
If you know'st it, telling,
Yonder peasant, who is he?
Where and what his dwelling?
"Sire, he lives a good league hence,
Underneath the mountain,
Right against the forest fence,
By St. Agnes' fountain."

"Bring me flesh and bring me wine,
Bring me pine logs hither;
Thou and I will see him dine,
When we bear him thither."
Page and monarch forth they went,
Forth they went together,
Through the rude wind's wild lament,
And the bitter weather.

"Sir, the night is darker now,
And the wind blows stronger;
Fails my heart, I know not how,
I can go no longer."
"Mark my footsteps, my good page,
Tread thou in them boldly,
Thou shalt find the winter's rage
Freeze thy blood less coldly."

Carol of the Drum

"Come," they told me
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
"Our new-born King to See!
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
Our finest gifts we'll bring,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
To lay before the King!
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum.
So to honor Him,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum,
When we come."

"Baby Jesus,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I'm a poor boy too,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I have no gift to bring,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
That's fit to give a King,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum
Shall I play for you,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
On my drum!"

Mary nodded,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Ox and ass kept time,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
I played my drum for Him,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Rum-pa-pum-pum, Rum-pa-pum-pum,
Then He smiled at me,
    Pa-rum-pa-pum-pum
Me and my drum!

O Little Town of Bethlehem

O little town of Bethlehem,
    How still we see thee lie,
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
    The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark street shineth
    The everlasting light,
The hopes and fears of all the years
    Are met in thee tonight.
For Christ is born of Mary;
    And, gathered all above
While mortals sleep, the angels keep Their watch of wandering love.
O morning stars, together
    Proclaim the Holy birth,
And praises sing of God the King,
    And peace to men on earth.
How silently, how silently,
    The wondrous gift is given,
So God imparts to human hearts
    The blessings of His heaven.
No ear may hear His coming,
    But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive Him still
    The dear Christ enters in.
O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
    Descend to us we pray;
Cast out our sins and enter in;
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas Angels
    The great glad tidings tell;
O come to us, abide with us,
    Our Lord, Emmanuel.

18

It Came Upon the Midnight Clear

It came upon a midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold;
"Peace on the earth, goodwill to men
From heaven's all gracious King."
The world in solemn silence lay
To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled;
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lonely plains
They bend on hovering wing,
And ever o'er its Babel-sounds
The blessed angels sing.

Yet with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And men, at war with men, hear not
The words of peace they bring;
O hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And yet beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the arduous way
With painful steps and slow;
Look now, for glad and joyous hours
God's messengers will bring;
O rest beside the weary road
And hear the angels sing.

For lo! The days are hastening on
By prophet-bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes around the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

We Three Kings

We three kings of Orient are Bearing gifts; we traverse afar
Field and fountain, moor and mountain
Following yonder star.

Refrain:

O star of wonder; star of night,
Star with royal beauty bright,
Westward leading, still proceeding,
Guide us to thy perfect light.

Solo (Melchoir)

Born a King of Bethlehem's plain,
Gold I bring to crown Him again,
King forever, ceasing never,
Over us all to reign.

Solo (Casper)

Frankincense to offer have I,
Incense owns a Deity nigh;
Prayer and praising, all men raising,
Worship Him, God most high.

Solo (Balthazar)

Myrrh is mine; it's bitter perfume
Breathes a life of gathering gloom;
Sorrowing, sighing, bleeding, dying,
Sealed in the stone cold tomb.

Glorious now behold Him arise,
King and God and Sacrifice;
Alleluia, alleluia,
Earth to heaven replies.

If one kid says thanks for the fun, that's success

There never has been a coach who won anything: Anderson

TORONTO (CP) — Sparky Anderson did little to endear himself to fellow coaches when he informed a group of pee wee, high school and college colleagues: "There never has been coach, in any sport, who won anything."

Here for the major league baseball's winter meetings this week, Anderson shocked many in the audience — particularly Little League baseball coaches who expected to hear praise for their efforts.

"It's a disgrace what we're doing to the Little Leaguers in the U.S. and Canada today," Anderson said. "We are asking kids to compete to win. Why not ask them to compete for fun? We are trying to build our own egos on little children."

In following up his philosophy that there never was a coach "who won anything," Anderson recalled Casey Stengel as "one of the greatest human beings of all time."

"As a manager, he could have left those (New York) Yankees teams after spring training and told them he'd be back to write the World Series lineup in the fall," he said.

"I managed Cincinnati Reds when they won two successive World Series. You know how I won them — with guys like Johnny Bench and Joe Morgan and Pete Rose and Tony Perez."

Anderson's followed up his theory that today's coaches — Little Leaguers especially — are trying to mold their players into an image they had of their own talents.

"I like the line (baseball broadcaster) Vin Scully used on me during the World Series," Anderson said. "He said success is nothing more than for the moment. I have to believe he's right. Two days after the (Pittsburgh) Pirates did the tremendous job of winning this year's World Series, everybody was talking about football."

The Pirates, down 3-1 in the best-of-seven series, won the next three games to topple Baltimore Orioles.

"Your success with these children," he growled to his audience, "could be for a lifetime. The chances are not one of them will ever become a big-league baseball player. There may be a lot of doctors, lawyers and streetcar driver among them.

"If just one comes back and tells you, 'Coach, thanks for the fun you gave me,' that's success. Remember, I never saw a player walk to the big leagues yet. I've seen grown men instruct a kid to take two called strikes. Let 'em swing."

Anderson did some swinging of his own at the major leagues, which he says are putting dollar signs ahead of all else.

"Every year when it's time to go north (from spring training), I talk to kids who would cut off a finger for the right to go along with the club. If they make it and two years pass, how many of them are willing to give a few hours of their time — without a fee — to put in an appearance at a school or Boy Scout meeting?

"Last year, 43 million people watched our business (in major league parks) and I say it's time to start giving something back."

Anderson suggested a program that he will start in Los Angeles (his home) whereby he'll ask for two hours from each school that is to be visited by himself and a player. The player will be asked to make one visit, Sparky will go every day.

"If we save even one boy from killing somebody else, I figure we will be saving two lives because we will be preventing one kid from going to jail. I ask you whether that would be more important than my making $50,000 over the winter."

Re-entry draft a 'time bomb' for baseball

TORONTO (CP) — Commissionerr Bowie Kuhn says the present operation of major league baseball's re-entry draft is a "time bomb ticking away" over the game.

"Great players lost in the draft in return for amateur draft choices do not provide adequate compensation," he told the opening session of the winter baseball meetings. "This is a source of great concern to us."

The contract with the players expires Dec. 31 and renegotiation of the agreement is one of the major issues to be studied by club owners at these week-long sessions.

The commissioner said he was guardedly optimistic that an agreement could be reached with the players prior to the opening of spring training. Before the last agreement was signed four years ago, training camp was delayed by a lockout of the owners.

"I think the likelihood of a work stoppage is remote — although not impossible," he said.

Kuhn also said that the eight bottom teams in the major leagues each lost $2 million or more last season and half of the 26 clubs finished in the red.

"This is ironic in view of the fact that the game reached its highest peak of popularity and over-all financial success," he said. "This is not good news."

He added that the game "was fortunate in that it had investors who want to be in baseball because they love it."

Kuhn painted both an optimistic and pessimistic picture of the state of the game. He said he was concerned about the escalation of players' salaries as an outgrowth of newly gained free agency.

"They are both dramatic and disturbing," he said. "In 1975, the average salary in the major leagues was $46,000. At the last report, it had risen to $121,000 and I assure you that with recent signings the average has gone higher than that."

He apparently was referring to the recent signing of pitcher Nolan Ryan for a reported $1 million a a year for four years.

The commissioner said he also was concerned about the migration of free agents to areas in the southern tier, "the area covering Georgia to California," and to contending clubs.

"Seven of the 12 free agents signed this year have gone to the southern tier," he said. "Of the eight teams which have signed these free agents, six are contending clubs."

On the optimistic side, he said the popularity and acceptance of baseball has reached an all-time high with major league attendance this year reaching a record 45 million. Professional baseball attracted 61,459,147 fans — also a record.

Expansion for peewees

Vancouver Island football executives, looking foward to expanding a peewee program for boys in the 9-12 year bracket, will hold a meeting Wednesday at the Ingraham Hotel, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Special invitations are issued to persons interested in helping out in any capacity — either coaching, managing, refereeing or helping on the executive.

WINNER of the 1979 Heisman Trophy as the outstanding college football player in the United States is tailback Charles White of the University of Southern California. White's selection was announced Monday. He is the second leading rusher in college football history. (AP wirephoto).

Lots of wheeling, but little dealing

TORONTO (AP) — Baseball's annual winter meetings got off to their usual start Monday — few developments but a lot of intrigue.

It was cat-and-mouse, cloak-and-dagger time once again. General managers, their assistants and field managers became con men, trying to outwit rivals like international spies.

Everyone is looking for help, looking for a player or players they're sure will bring them a pennant in 1980. Of course, they didn't want to give up talent, or too much of it.

The trade market was open. There was huddling all over the place. There was plenty of wheeling, but very little dealing.

Baltimore Orioles reportedly were trying to unload unhappy Jim Palmer, who has given a list of clubs he might be willing to accept. The Orioles appeared to be concentrating on the Angels as a means of accommodating their veteran ace.

One executive, who asked not to be identified, said New York Mets were offering veteran right-hander Craig Swan to everyone.

Another rumor circulated that Philadelphia Phillies were trying to lure slugger Dave Winfield from San Diego Padres. One source said the Phils were offering a package of starting pitchers — Nino Espinosa and Larry Christenson, reliever Tug McGraw and outfielder Bake McBride, in exchange for Winfield and a couple of pitchers, possibly including Bob Owchinko or Bob Shirley.

Sullivan had no comment, but he was dangling slugging Butch Hobson as trade bait in hopes of finding an experienced catcher and pitching help.

Sullivan wants to make a deal, but is in no rush. He's trying to keep communications lines open to his old boss, Charlie Finley, for a possible trade. But Finley's bid to sell the Oakland A's for a move to Denver appears to prohibit any deals. And that deal, according to Denver oilman Marvin Davis, "is not even close at this time."

U.S. women near gold

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Jackie Stormo, Cindy Schuble and Annese Kelly combined for a three-game trios series of 1,721 Monday, giving the United States its first crack at a gold medal at the world bowling championships.

Bong Coo, Lita De La Rosa and Nellie Castillo of the Philippines were in second place with 1,707.

Coo has a strong lead in the 15-game women's all-events competition with 3,021, a 201 average.

A Swedish threesome — Goren Grape, Mats Nilsson and Ove Svenson — amassed 1,861 pins to dominate the men.

A Canadian trio of Shirley Hofman of Toronto, Lillian Hilton of Edmonton and Arlene Graham of Calgary was close to the leaders on the women's side with a total pinfall of 1,613.

On the men's side, Steve Kuti, Calgary; Paul Cameron and Jim Kramer Jr., both of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., wree closest to the top with 1,706.

Braves streak hits 19

Saanich Braves just keep on rolling.

Braves posted their 19th straight victory by mauling Juan de Fuca Gulls 11-1 Monday in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Tracy Patterson and Marty Irvine scored three goals each to spark the Braves while singles were added by Bob Carey, Scott Connors, Jamie Bowes, Brian Goodwin and Ian McLean.

Terry Coughlin answered for the Gulls, who trailed by period scores of 3-0 and 7-1.

Mike Spitiri blocked 26 shots on the Saanich goal and Ron Allan of Juan de Fuca made 23 saves.

World Cup heroics help Chelsea pilot

LONDON (Reuter) — Geoff Hurst, the man who scored three goals in England's 1966 World Cup final win over West Germany, is English soccer's manager of the moment, having taken London club Chelsea to the top of Division II.

Chelsea was 18th when Hurst took over from Danny Blanchflower early in the season. At first he was just a caretaker manager, but as Chelsea went from strength to strength under his guidance, he was given the post officially.

His record after Saturday's 2-0 win over Preston was 10 victories in 12 matches.

Hurst's historic hat trick against the West Germans 13 years ago has almost certainly influenced his success as a manager. The young Chelsea players regard him with child-like awe and have responded willingly to his fair but firm leadership.

In Division I action, Manchester United won 2-1 at Tottenham to stay atop the standings. But it was Liverpool's 4-0 home win over Middlesbrough that carried greater significance.

Steve Coppell scored four minutes from time to give United its victory.

Liverpool, though, needed no such brinkmanship as they dealt thoroughly with the improving Middlesbrough team and the odds against Liverpool retaining the division title are narrowing all the time.

Elsewhere, Ipswich manager Bobby Robson found out eactly why Mick Ferguson has a $1.63-million price tag. Ferguson scored all four goals in Coventry's 4-1 hammering of Ipswich.

European champion Nottingham Forest needed a last-minute gal by Garry Birtles to salvage a 1-1 home draw with Arsenal.

Pat Jennings, the Arsenal goalkeeper, was struck in his left arm with a dart thrown from the crowd.

The crowd at Norwich also did little to enhance the reputation of English spectators. They threw coins at the Aston Villa players. Both goalkeeper Jimmy Rimmer and defender Alan Evas were cut. A minor consolation for Rimmer was that he picked up between eight and nine pounds sterling (about $20) from the playing field. The game ended in a 1-1 draw.

In Scotland, the main crowd news concerned a turnout of 20,600 to watch Irish star George Best make his home debut in the Premier Division for Hibernian against Partick Thistle.

Best's response was a restrained but influential performance in Hibernian's 2-1 win, only its second league victory of the season.

Brad Smith recalled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Winger Brad Smith has been recalled from Dallas by Vancouver Canucks and will join the National Hockey League team tonight in New York for a game against the Islanders.

Voters select filly as Ex Park's best

VANCOUVER (CP) — Palica, a four-year-old Ontario-bred filly that gained a reputation for consistency, has been voted horse-of-the-year at Exhibition Park.

Owned by R. H. Stirskey of Aldergrove, Palica won three stakes races during the Park's 1979 season and added another victory in Seattle.

In her 11 starts under trainer Alan May from mid-April to the end of the season, Palica won six races. She has since won at Calgary and is now in California. Her earnings this year are above $65,000.

She also won her divisional title and became the first older filly or mare to capture horse-of-the-year honors.

First Purchase, the 1978 horse-of-the-year, was eligible in the voting for older handicap runner along with five others but lost out to Harpoon, a horse with slightly less in earnings but which had beaten First Purchase in the Speed Handicap and finished ahead of him in the Longden 6000.

Canadian leads

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — Canada's Gaetan Boucher won the men's title in the first East German international speed skating competition here this weekend, beating a squad of the Soviet Union's best skaters.

Boucher, of Saint-Foy, Que., secured his victory by winning the 1,000 metres on Saturday.

Sunday he was beaten by the Soviet Union's Sergei Khlebnikov in both the 500 metres and 1,000 metres but the Russian had ruined his over-all chances with a fall in Saturday's race.

In women's events, East Germany's Cornelia Jacob took the honors ahead of the Soviet Union's Tatyana Tarassova and the Netherlands Haitske Valentijn.

Sneaking up on sound barrier

ROGERS LAKE, Calif. (Reuter) — Film stuntman Stan Barrett broke his own world land speed record Monday when he reached 1,028.9376 kilometres (643.086 miles) an hour in his rocket vehicle, track officials said.

Barrett, 36, made a practice run on this dry lake-bed in preparation for his attempt later this week to become the first man to break the sound barrier on land by reaching a speed of about 1,200 km.p.h. (750 m.p.h.).

Barrett set the previous record of 1,021.8192 km.p.h. in his 48,000-horsepowered vehicle in a run across Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah on Sept. 9.

The world speed record for a piston-driven car, in which the power is transmitted through the wheels, is held by another American, Bob Summers, who reached 654.4 km.p.h. in 1963.

After Monday's run, Barrett said: "I am feeling great, mentally and physically, for my attempt to break the sound barrier. The vehicle is running better than ever."

Barrett was thrown off course in a run last Saturday when the exhaust system of his blazing red rocket burned out, scattering pieces of metal over the lake.

The project manager, Hal Needham, said this matter had been solved.

Barrett, the father of three who sprained his back and shoulder in a run last September, said he will probably make two more runs before trying to break the sound barrier.

Good Stenmark start

VAL SENALES, Italy (AP) — Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden triumphed in his first performance of the season Monday, winning an international special slalom ski event ahead of young Yugoslav star Bojan Krizaj.

Italian veteran Gustavo Thoeni was third.

The 23-year-old Swede clocked a winning total of two minutes, 4.20 seconds in the two heats. Krizaj had 2:04.32 and Thoeni 2:04.45.

Stenmark, apparently unaffected by a bad spill during a downhill practice run two months ago, was the fastest in the first run, flagged with 70 gates, in 1:02.48 minutes.

The Swede, who dominated the World Cup slaloms last season, said he counted on also taking today's giant slalom as a good omen for the approaching World Cup events.

Another Yugoslav skier, Joze Kuralt, took the fourth place Monday in 2:05.01, followed by Bulgarian Petar Popangelov, in 2:05.26.

Austrian Anton Steiner was sixth and rising Soviet star Vladimir Andreev was seventh.

Olympians earn medals at Seattle

Victoria Olympians fared well in the Pepsi Challenge age-group swimming meet in Seattle at the weekend.

Victoria's top swimmer was Neil McKinley, 14, who earned seven medals. He captured second-place silver medals in the 100 breast, 200 breast and 400 freestyle, and was the bronze finisher in the 200 and 400 individual medley, 200 back and 200 freestyle events.

Teammates Wayne Bondsor and John Kelly also placed in the top three.

Bondsor finished third in the 100 and 200 breast and Kelly was second in the 200 butterfly.

Top Victoria female performer was 12-year-old Andrea Ranson, who took two silver in the 50 back and 50 butterfly, and a bronze in the 50 freestyle.

Linda Kimmons, 14, won the bronze in the 100 breast.

Ban-Britain bid

LUSAKA (Reuter) — Zambia wants black African countries to unite in an attempt to have Britain banned from the Olympic Games in Moscow next year, a member of the country's ruling central committee has announced.

Polish stars reprimanded

WARSAW (Reuter) — Poland has banned four World Cup soccer stars from the national team for "improper conduct" towards journalists.

Zbigniew Boniek and Stanislaw Terlecki were excluded for six months, while Grzegorz Lato and Captain Antoni Szymanowski were banished for three months. All four have also been prohibited from travelling abroad for similar periods.

Box at bottom just the ticket

WINNIPEG (CP) — At the bottom of the parking ticket, in a box marked for office use only and under the heading disposition, the unhappy motorist marked "miserable."

"Hi, it's me again," wrote a woman, who asked if she could open a charge account to make it easier to pay tickets.

Those, and a quite a few messages that consist largely of four-letter words, are received by the Winnipeg police department each year along with payments for parking tickets.

"It's a way for some of them to let off some steam," says traffic superintendent Harry Forgie.

Many violators feel obliged to explain their misdemeanor, and some even "confess to sinning" before settling accounts.

And then there was the motorist who complained about the eagerness of the officer who repeatedly ticketed his vehicle.

"You have a good man on this beat . . .," wrote the driver, "promote him to another beat."

N.S. brings in 'anti-union' bill

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia Federation of Labor is going to the public to campaign against the so-called Michelin Bill which the provincial Progressive Conservative government introduced in the legislature Monday night.

The "broad-based bargaining" bill, which labor claims is the most blatantly anti-union legislation introduced in the province in years, has been promised a rough passage through the House by some opposition members, particularly the five-member NDP group.

Labor wants to mobilize workers throughout the province against the bill and has even threatened a general strike.

Government maintains that the legislation will bring stability to the labor scene and attract manufacturing plants to Nova Scotia.

Labor leaders sat quietly in the gallery as Labor Minister Ken Streatch received desk thumping support from his colleagues while introducing the bill amending the Trade Union Act. The opposition parties were silent.

Labor claims the bill, which requires unions seeking to organize a manufacturing company's workers to get majority support in all plants owned by the company if the plants are determined to be interdependant, is aimed at preventing the unionization of Michelin Canada Ltd.'s two plants in Nova Scotia.

There were reports that Michelin would announce the expansion of its two Nova Scotia plants today to speed the legislation along.

Bill Punnett, Canadian director of the Rubber Workers Union which has been trying to unionize the workers, watched the introduction of the bill from the gallery and then said the labor movement is fighting a "vicious, anti-union company."

"The minister and the government are legalizing the illegal practices of Michelin," Punnett said.

He said none of the company's North American plants are unionized because the company located them in low-wage, anti-union areas.

Streatch met with reporters prior to introducing the bill and acknowledged that the legislation is precendent-setting in Canada but denied that it is anti-union. He said his main purpose is to bring labor stability and more jobs to Nova Scotia.

He denied that the bill was drafted to accommodate Michelin but was unable to say what other existing company it would assist.

"The minister of labor is not on the side of unions or of management," he said.

He said one of the fundamental rights of workers is the right to work, and said the legislation would prevent a situation where unionized workers in one plant who go on strike could force the closure of a second plant where the work force in not unionized.

Michelin has two plants in the province and the Rubber Workers Union has conducted an intense organizing campaign at the Granton plant located in industrial Pictou County.

Feds re-evaluate painkiller linked to 160 deaths

CALGARY (CP) — The federal government is re-evaluating the status of a widely-used prescription painkiller to see whether it should be a controlled drug under the Narcotics Control Act, Donna-Marie Artuso said Monday.

Ms. Artuso, executive assistant to Health Minister David Crombie, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa that Crombie has asked federal health officials "to review the drug's standing in relation to standards of the World Health Organization and other international agencies."

At their annual meeting in Banff, the National Association of Chief Coroners and Chief Medical Examiners of Canada called for tighter controls of the drug known as propoxyphene and marketed under trade names such as Darvon and 692.

A source in the office of Alberta's chief medical examiner said the painkiller was "intimately involved" in the deaths of two cross-country skiers near the Banff Springs Hotel last New Year's Eve.

An association spokesman said provincial statistics show there were 160 known deaths involving the drug in 1978 in Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Ontario.

Ms. Artuso said Crombie has asked Dr. Alex Morrison of the federal health department to compile a report on the drug.

"By the end of the year, we should have an idea of our position on the drug."

Don Cameron, registrar-treasurer of the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association, said his association has no intention of petitioning Ottawa to put the drug on the controlled list. He said he knows of little evidence the drug is dangerous.

"It seems to be reliable if kept away from other drugs and alcohol. If you're going to mix it with alcohol, you're almost certainly going to have a problem."

Cameron said the drug is available only by prescription, but abuse of it might decline if it were added to the Narcotic Control Act list of controlled drugs.

Ailing Judy back to work

TORONTO (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, suffering from an inoperable cancer of the pancreas, will leave hospital in a week and return to her Toronto law practice in 1980, a hospital spokesman said Monday.

Dr. R. G. Keith, the former federal cabinet minister's surgeon, said Miss LaMarsh is adjusting well to the situation, but said the cancer, which has spread to surrounding organs and tissue, usually proves fatal within a year.

He told a news conference that while both radiotherapy and chemotherapy have been proven unsuccessful in this type of case, a decision on chemotherapy will be made in a few weeks.

He said Miss LaMarsh, who was admitted to Sunnybrook Medical Centre on Nov. 24, will be discharged after she recovers from an operation last week to determine the severity of the cancer.

Hospital spokesman Gary Cousins said Monday in an interview that doctors also managed during that operation to relieve much of the pain she was suffering.

Miss LaMarsh, former minister of health and secretary of state in the Lester Pearson government, resigned as secretary of state in 1968 after a row with former prime minister Pierre Trudeau. She was first elected to the House of Commons in 1960.

Critical shortage of graduates seen

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta will soon have to import thousands of university graduates to meet a shortage of skilled professionals, Norman Wagner, president of the Uiversity of Calgary, said during the weekend.

"We're moving into a period in Alberta where there will be such a shortage of highly-skilled professionals that it boggles the mind," Wagner said.

The notion that university graduates can't find jobs must be dispelled because it is no longer the case, he said.

China Communism founder dies in Ont. nursing home

TORONTO (CP) — The man who lost to Mao Tse-tung in a power struggle within the Chinese Communist party in 1935, giving Mao leadership of the party died in a Toronto nursing home Monday.

Chang Kuo-tao, the last of the 12 founders of the party, died in his sleep, his son Joseph said. He was 82.

Chang emigrated to Canada in 1968 after living in Taiwan and Hong Kong after he parted company with the party in 1938.

The Chang-Mao power struggle took place during a year-long retreat between 1935 and 1936 as a badly-battered rebel army led by the party was being hotly pursued by government forces commanded by the late Chinese nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek.

The power struggle surfaced when Chang refused to recognize Mao's leadership, arguing that since he was leading another column of the retreating rebel army, he was not present at the political bureau meeting that made Mao party chairman.

Political uproar cancels elections in Dawson City

DAWSON, Yukon (CP) — The territorial government has appointed an administrator to run this northern community and cancelled the Dec. 13 civic elections.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Lang said he is acting in the municipality's best interests, but took action with great reluctance.

"It's not a case of the death of democracy," Lang said.

The moves were taken after the five-member council was unable to conduct business because it was short of a quorum.

It was the second time in a year that council lacked a quorum. A combination of illness, death and a resignation reduced the council to two members.

Mayor Vi Campbell resigned for the second time in a year, saying she was frustrated with the system.

One alderman left on sick leave and did not return and another died early in November.

The community was on the verge of bankruptcy in 1975, facing a debt of $100,000.

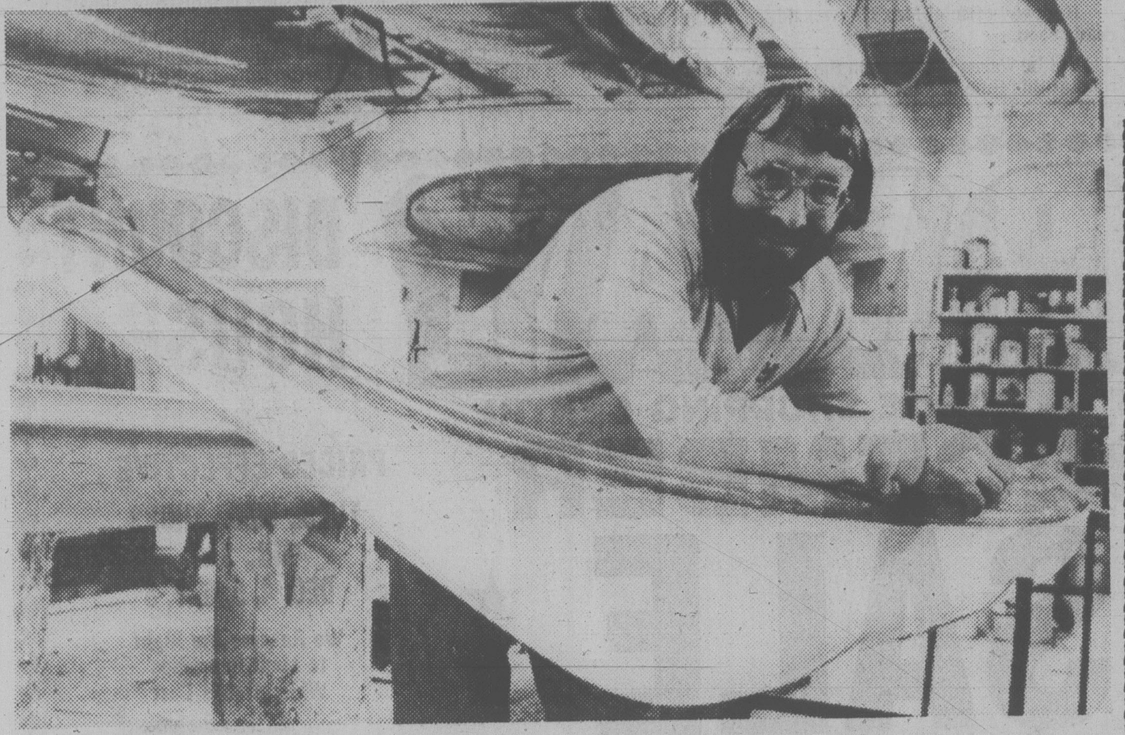
Andre Carrell, hired to clean things up, tripled taxes, laid off the public works staff and sold the municipality's equipment. He erased the debt.

When a new council took office in 1977, he was fired. When council wouldn't fire his replacement, Ms. Williams and another alderman resigned.

Combined with a vacancy, that left council unable to field a quorum. An administrator was appointed and ran the community until last April when elections were held and Ms. Campbell won.

Before relinquishing his duties, administrator Joe Oliver rehired Carrell and recommended appointment of a full-time administrator if another breakdown occurred.

Lang said that with that kind of a track record, it's obvious that Dawson needs some help, whether it wants it or not.



ESKIMO CANOE MAKING is becoming a lost art in Canada's north, but English canoe designer Frank Goodman isn't about to let it die. In a reverse of the old coals-to-Newcastle gambit, Goodman will visit Baffin Island to teach modern methods of kayak-style canoe making to the Inuit at Frobisher Bay.

MPs getting horror story cost preview

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs agreed Monday to set up a special committee to investigate cost overruns in federal projects as Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens offered a preview of "horror stories" the group will study.

Stevens told the Commons of projects that cost four times as much as expected to complete, of the additional hundreds of millions of dollars taxpayers have been forced to pay and of what he described as a surprising lack of control over these extra expenses.

The seven-member special committee is charged with looking into overruns on present and future federal projects valued at more than $1 million. It also will study how to keep costs in line with government estimates.

The committee is one of four authorized by the Commons and given special powers of review and greater freedom than most committees have enjoyed in the past.

Among the largest overruns cited by Stevens Monday were a new grain-drying facility at Prince Rupert, expected to cost $3.8 million compared with an earlier estimate of $700,000, and a new postal facility in Montreal whose price tag grew to $274 million from $161 million five years ago.

Later, the minister told a Commons committee studying current spending plans that some government projects have been approved before cost estimates were verified.

When figures are revised halfway through a project, the government has little choice but to authorize the additional funds, he said.

Sometimes changes were made by the government after construction began, and in these cases a contractor could hold the public "almost to ransom."

And sometimes, he said, there is no one in a government department charged with responsibility for a given project and there is "tremendous buck-passing" when ministers try to find out what went wrong.

Stevens told the committee he never experienced problems with cost overruns during his 20 years in the real estate business.

"You just don't have overruns if you know what you're doing in real estate," he said.

That prompted Hal Herbert (L—Vaudreuil) to comment that he couldn't say the same for the construction industry.

Stevens and an aide said since taking office, the government has been tightening control over spending on federal projects.

Individual project managers were put in charge of specific projects to avoid buck-passing. Departments were told they will be penalized for overruns by losing twice the amount of the overruns in future budgets.

Earlier Monday, the Commons also authorized a special committee to study ways of strengthening the role of volunteer groups in Canada.

The two committees approved last week will study foreign investment and the problems of the disabled and handicapped.

Also Monday, a bill to increase the grants Ottawa pays to local governments in lieu of taxes on federal property was introduced for debate.

Jean-Luc Pepin (L—Ottawa-Carleton) said the bill would answer some but not all of the complaints of municipalities and suggested that the federal government should also consider paying local business taxes.

Finance Minister John Crosbie said the bill would allow grants in lieu of business taxes for some Crown corporations, but not for federal departments.

HOLDS DENTURES FIRM WITHOUT DAILY "FIXINGS"

Snug Cushions hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks

No more "fixings" every morning with messy powders or creams. Even if dentures need "fixing" after every meal, here's important news. Snug cushions, restores dentures' holding power so dentures stay comfortably tight for weeks. Snug, the soft, effective temporary aid, forms a "comfort bond" between dentures and gums. Sticks to dentures, not to gums. Rinse, scrub or soak Snug fresh and clean. Easy to remove, but won't wash off or flake away. So, end daily "fixings"! Use Snug to hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks.

The Christmas rush: everybody's doing it.

Christmas is one time when you really want to get to where you're going. The trouble is, so does everybody. So, every year, during the worst weather, hundreds of thousands of people are travelling by train, plane, bus or car. And about the only person who has it easy is the fat fellow in the funny red suit.

At VIA Rail Canada, we want your holiday trip to be as comfortable and convenient as possible. So here's a little information on what we're doing about the Christmas rush, and a little advice on what you can do.

What we're doing.

First, we're putting every coach, Dayniter and sleeper that we have into service, and we're getting all the mileage we can out of every car.

We're adding extra cars to existing trains, and we're adding extra trains to existing schedules.

In fact, we've got all our people and all our equipment geared up to work at full stretch.

But we need a little help from you.

What you can do.

Book early. The sooner you make your reservations, the more certain you are of getting a seat on the train and the day on which you want to travel.

If possible, come to the station in person to order and collect your tickets. If you do it now you'll avoid lineups.

If you're calling, remember our switchboards open early and close late. Phone before or after normal business hours, when the lines won't be so busy.

Better yet, take advantage of our 'Tickets by Mail' service. Book now and we'll bill you later, or charge your trip to your Chargex/VISA, Master Charge, En Route, American Express, Diner's Club or Canadian Pacific card, and we'll mail your tickets to you.

If you can, plan to travel a day or two ahead of the pre-Christmas rush, and schedule your departure as early in the day as you can. The later in the day or in the season that you leave it, the longer the lineups and the bigger the crowds.

Call now.

Don't wait any longer. Call your Travel Agent or VIA right now and make your reservations. Then relax and leave the rest to us. We want to see you aboard a VIA train this holiday season.

And we wish you a pleasant journey and a very merry Christmas.

383-7127

Be good to yourself, take the train.

'79 trade figures look much rosier

OTTAWA (CP) — A major revision in trade figures shows the merchandise trade surplus to date this year is sharply higher than originally estimated by Statistics Canada.

The federal agency today revised upward the trade surplus in every month this year and reported the surplus in the first nine months was $2.38 billion, up from $1.55 billion estimated last month.

Revision in the trade figures for the year wiped out two trade deficits in July and August and turned them into surpluses.

October's trade surplus is a seasonally-adjusted $326 million which brings the total trade surplus for the first 10 months to $2.7 billion.

Statistics Canada made the adjustments after a recent discovery that Irving Oil Ltd. of New Brunswick had not reported exports of petroleum products for more than a year. Other adjustments were also made as a result of the revision.

The $2.7-billion trade surplus to date in 1979 means that a $2.1-billion surplus predicted for the entire year by Finance Minister John Crosbie has already been surpassed.

The trade surplus in 1978 was a record $3.5 billion.

Total exports in October were $5.93 billion, down about three per cent from September; imports were up nearly five per cent to $5.61 billion.

Statistics Canada reported that exports to date — not seasonally adjusted — total $53.5 billion, up sharply from $43.02 billion in the same period a year ago. Imports total $51.94 billion, up from $40.74 billion in 1978.

Most economists have predicted the merchandise trade surplus will be lower this year, mainly because of a drop in demand in the U.S. which is experiencing an economic slowdown.

The U.S. buys about 70 per cent of Canadian exports and a slowdown there means softer markets for materials such as lumber and paper as well as for motor vehicles manufactured on this side of the border and shipped south.

Figures to date show that while exports to the U.S. continue to show strong growth, imports from the U.S. are increasing more rapidly. A trade surplus with the U.S. a year ago has turned into a deficit.

Exports to the U.S. to the end of October were $36.17 billion, up from $30.29 billion a year ago. Imports to the end of October are valued at $37.67 billion compared with $28.64 billion in 1978.

Statistics Canada's analysis of trade in October showed that exports declined mainly because of lower sales of crude materials and in the food, feed and beverages classifications.

Crude material shipments dropped 20 per cent to $1.05 billion. Within this grouping, metallic ore exports were down 15 per cent to $329 million, asbestos sales dropped 38 per cent to $51 million and there were also declines in sales of crude oil and coal.

Wheat exports increased 11 per cent in October from a month earlier to $305 million but this was offset by declines in sales of barley, flaxseed, rapeseed and other oilseeds.

Sales of fabricated materials were also down slightly from the previous month to $2.16 billion. Newsprint sales dropped five per cent to $261 million, chemical shipments dropped nearly six per cent to $216 million and exports of petroleum and coal products dipped nearly 10 per cent to $127 million.

Offsetting these declines were increased lumber exports, which rose three per cent to $375 million and pulp which rose 12 per cent to $270 million. Exports of non-ferrous metals rose by 37 per cent to $389 million.

Exchange returns to normal

TORONTO (CP) — Trading resumed as usual on the Toronto Stock Exchange today following Monday's mysterious illness which sent seven traders to hospital.

All of the victims were released after examinations by doctors revealed no lasting ill effects.

Air samples so far have proven inconclusive.

Road reopens, but beware

DAWSON, Y.T. (CP) — Blinding snow storms, subzero temperatures that will freeze a stalled car solid within minutes and thousands of migrating caribou are some of the hazards facing drivers on the Dempster Highway.

The road between Dawson and Inuvik, N.W.T., has been re-opened after a 47-day closure to allow the caribou to migrate and to allow major river crossings to freeze.

Neither the caribou nor the weather co-operated. The animals didn't move on schedule and unseasonably warm weather prevented the rivers from freezing.

Highway official Max Neave said ice bridges should be ready soon.

But he warns that even in the best weather, driving the road at this time of year is a dangerous proposition.

Three highway camps along the Dempster provide reports on weather and driving conditions every day.

Neave said information is broadcast on the radio immediately. "We give out information on all dangerous sections."

The Drum, Inuvik's weekly newspaper, carries a 21-point safety checklist for travellers on the Dempster. It recommends carrying survival rations, carrying a torch or other means of thawing out a frozen vehicle so it will start, travelling in a caravan with other vehicles, carrying a rifle and remembering that three shots is a distress signal.

Yukon government biologist John Russell said he would be concerned about the caribou migration if there was a substantial amount of traffic. But with the river crossings impassable, traffic is light.

Gov't deficit cut to $776M

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's spending deficit dropped to $776 million in October from $930 million in the corresponding month a year ago, the finance department said Monday.

In its monthly statement of government's financial operations for the year ending in March, the department says October revenues rose to $3.5 billion from $2.7 billion a year earlier while expenditures increased to $4.3 billion from $3.6 billion in October of last year.

However, for the first seven months of the government's financial year, the spending deficit climbed by $469 million to $8.4 billion from the same period a year ago.

So far this year, revenues have risen to $20.5 billion from $18 billion in the corresptonding period a year ago, while spending has climbed to $28.9 billion from $26 billion.

In the first seven months of the 1979-80 fiscal year, the government's borrowing requirements rose to $6.7 billion from $5.9 billion a year earlier.

However, the government still expects to lower its financial requirements for the year to $10 billion from $10.9 billion in 1978-79. Unlike a year ago, when a large volume of maturing Canada Savings Bonds prompted sizeable lump-sum payments of accrued interest, only a small amount of bonds matured this year.

Cornelia Wallace used to test the political waters with her former husband, George Wallace of Alabama. But in Florida, she took to water of a different kind — as "guest star ballerina" in the Cypress Gardens Water Ski Revue. Wearing a white bathing suit, white tutu and white opera-length gloves, Mrs. Wallace performed a five-minute "ballet" on water skis to the music Love Theme from Superman.

After 38 years of marriage — including more than two years onstage as a bittersweet elderly couple in the Broadway play, The Gin Game Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn know when not to stretch a point. Boarding a flight for Moscow, where they will open the play Thursday, they were given seats on opposite sides of their Aeroflot airliner. Agents explained that they hadn't realized the actors were married. The couple kept the seats for the 10½-hour flight. "We both thought it was a good idea," Miss Tandy said.

Dear Abby:

I have a childless neighbor who loves kids and is a wonderful friend. On a moment's notice Shirley will gladly look after my brood. (I have three, ages 2, 4 and 5.) So what's my problem? Shirley's language is unreal. She can't utter two sentences without including half a dozen dirty words. I'm sure she doesn't realize how often she uses those words; it's just automatic with her.

After being around Shirley for a while yesterday, my 4-year-old came up with a real mind-blower. When I told him that was a "bad" word and he shouldn't use it again, he said, "Well, Aunt Shirley uses it all the time, so why can't I?"

Now, Abby, I wouldn't hurt Shirley's feelings for the world because she is really a wonderful friend and has a heart of gold, but her language is something else. Is there a solution? Don't suggest I keep my kids away from her. I can't.

Friendly Neighbor

Dear Neighbor:

I doubt if you would "hurt" Shirley if you asked her to try to watch her language in front of the kids. (I also doubt if it would do much good, but it's worth a try.) Just tell your kids it's not nice to use "bad" words. And let them know that there are some "good" people who use "bad" words, and Aunt Shirley is one of them.

Dear Abby:

Our beautiful, 20-year-old daughter is about to marry a fine, high-principled man who recently moved to this rather small town. The young man has a strict religious background and is as strait-laced as anyone we've ever known. I'm sure if he knew about our daughter's past, and that she has already lied to him about her virginity, he would have been long gone.

My husband and I love our daughter and want her to be happy, but we feel she should be honest with her fiance — and admit that she has made some mistakes. We feel that this is not only the honorable thing to do, but it could save her and her husband some serious problems in the future.

Many of the people in this town know that our daughter had a very bad reputation in her teens, and since she plans to live here after her marriage, her chances of being able to hide her past are nil.

Abby, she reads your column every day and says you advocate withholding the truth in a situation such as this. If you do, forget this letter; if you agree with us, please answer this in your column soon.

Troubled Mother

Dear Mother:

I agree that your daughter should confess that he is not the first man in her life. To lie about this would be a serious mistake. How many others, and the details, however, need not be part of the confession. If it is going to make a difference in the way the young man feels about her, she's wise to tell him now.

Peggy Elly can get it for you used — thanks to buyers seeking change and recycling quality items

New styles come out of the closet

By PAT DUFOUR

Lots of Victoria area women on the holiday circuit this Christmas season will be wearing recycled clothes.

Source of their supply might be a discreet little store called Repeat Performance at 2027 Oak Bay Avenue.

But gone are the days when wearing second-hand clothes was a thing to hide from your neighbors. No tatty and worn hand-me-downs, these. No more is it associated with being outmoded, down on our luck, shopping for bargains with nickles and dimes.

Repeat Performance is one of at least six stores in Greater Victoria that resell top quality fashion items of which their original owners have tired.

Browsing around the racks of clothes, you're quite apt to rub elbows with a woman who's just had tea at the Empress Hotel or has her high-priced car parked outside.

Peggy Elly, who has operated Repeat Performance for the past 3½ years, says her clients range in age from 17 to the 70s. They can be working girls or senior citizens. Many are housewives in the middle-class bracket.

She says she went into the business for something to do, having had her own clothes recycled at other shops around town.

With escalating prices, Elly says, women are no longer automatically giving away clothes to charitable organizations. Instead, they want some return on the garment of which they've tired.

"They used to give things away. Now they want a little bit to help them buy something else," she says.

In addition to women from the immediate area, Elly says she has customers from Vancouver and many parts of Vancouver Island. Some, whose clothes she has sold, are as far away as eastern Canada and the United States. Most of them have learned of Repeat Performance by word of mouth.

Many of the clothes on her racks carry top-drawer labels normally seen only in exclusive stores. Elly says all the clothes she consents to sell must be laundered or dry-cleaned. They must also be on hangers, be in season and in fashion.

"I don't like to see people come in with a garbage bag," she says.

Right now, she says, 1940 suits in good condition are in demand because the style of that year is now in vogue again.

When a customer brings in a consignment she and Elly negotiate a price and the selling price is usually about half of what the garment cost originally, depending on condition. The split is roughly 50-50.

If any goods on consignment are not sold in 30 days they are either retrieved by the original owner or given to charity.

Elly says this is necessary in order to keep her stocks up to date.

She says her busy time begins in August when women start bringing in their fall clothes. This year, she says, wool coats and suits are in great demand.

"We've sold quite a few fur coats too," she adds, "A trotter-length muskrat could fetch $175 and a full-length $199-up."

With the holiday season just around the corner, it's no surprise to learn that long dresses are high on women's shopping lists.

Reflecting the vagary of fashion, leather is no longer in "We couldn't keep leather coats in stock at one time. Now we have one new black leather coat that's not moving at all."

Impulse shopping is one of the reasons some items get recycled at Repeat Performance. This is particularly true of shoes.

Elly says some of the shoes in her store have never been worn outdoors, their owners trying them out in a home or apartment, only to find they pinch. "We have a lot of new shoes that have just been worn in the apartment and don't feel right."

Jewelry is one thing she doesn't handle because she says it tends to "clutter up the place."

Elly excuses herself to deal with another customer who has brought in a stunning party dress to sell.

Too bad, it's not my size.

Dr. L.L. COLEMAN

I am recovering well from a heart attack. When I was taken to the hospital my doctor insisted that I must have had a previous attack years ago. I am 54 and up to the time I was taken sick three months ago, I was always active in sports and never felt any symptoms of an attack. How do you explain this?

Mr. E.C.S.

Dear Mr. S.:

Your experience is not an unusual one. Many people have "small, silent" heart attacks that do not interfere with their health or with their daily activities. Bouts of indigestion are usually quickly forgotten. Such an episode is easily attributed to overindulgence in food or drink, when in reality it may have been a small, silent heart attack.

When you were admitted to the hospital, your electrocardiogram apparently showed evidence of scar tissue that was the aftermath of a silent attack.

This problem has become an important one. It is hoped that these silent coronary heart attacks will come to light, so that patients can readjust their patterns of living and, perhaps, avoid more critical heart attacks. During an attack of questionable indigestion, there are now some excellent enzyme tests of the blood which will pick up a small heart attack, even in the absence of the usual heart symptoms.

Middle-aged people who are overweight and who smoke, should not accept casually that attack of indigestion.

Dear Doctor:

I have been scared about having an X-ray of my left breast. Is there anything else I can do to find out if I have a growth there?

Miss S.T.

Dear Miss T.:

Many people like yourself are caught in a trap of confusion about mammography. So great is their confusion that they delay by months having an examination that will definitely establish the presence or the absence of any growth in the breast.

You alone cannot possibly evaluate the advantages or disadvantages of mammography. You must accept the fact that your doctor is in the best position to advise you about its value.

In addition to X-ray mammography, there is also thermography, by which the temperature of the surface of the breast is studied for the diagnosis of tumors. There now are new ultrasound scanning techniques which are coming into their own as excellent diagnostic methods for breast study.

Your fears must not cause you to delay following your doctor's advice.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I am 16 and I am watching my brother ruin his life. He is 18, he's on drugs and he drinks. He confides in me and I try to steer him away from doing those things.

My brother has long hair and dresses scruffly. He has been failing school for the last few years and he's been busted for drugs many times. My mother cries a lot; she is not strict at all and my father has a very bad heart.

I love my parents and my brother very much and I can't stand seeing them hurt each other like this, much longer. Whenever they talk it ends up okay but in a week or so ever thing goes back as before. I feel as though I'm in the middle, but at the same time helpless. I'm worried and concerned.

Answer: Whether you'll be able to help your brother stop taking drugs and drinking I don't know, but it may be very important to him to know that you are concerned about him and that you wish he would stop. It is hard to know for what reasons your brother is "ruining" his life, but one can guess that he is not feeling happy about himself, and he also may be feeling uncared for, even though that may not be true.

Therefore your interest and genuine concern for him may begin to make him feel better and provide a germ of confidence in him that will help him to consider how he is managing his life.

People often do live up to other people's expectations of them, and if he knows that you have high expectations for him he may try to adopt them.

Dear Dr. Levine: I hope you can heop me. I'm a 17-year-old girl. My problem is that I feel lonely and frustrated and depressed very often and these feelings have been with me for over half a year. I just can't cope anymore. Occasionally I think of suicide, but I've never attempted it. I often wish I could escape life for a while and come back when I want.

I have a few friends, but I hardly ever do things with them. I'd enjoy getting out and being active, but my friends are either busy or not interested. For some reason I think if I had a boyfriend, half of my problem would be solved. I've never had a boyfriend and I feel I never will have one. My family and friends say I'm very pretty and I have a slim figure and even though I'm shy, I have a good personality.

My depression has caused me to do things I'm not sure I want to do. In the last few months, I've been drunk twice and have tried pot and hash.

Answer: There are many reasons not to play around with drugs and alcohol, but one of the most important ones, in my opinion, is to overcome one's misery or depression. You are leaving yourself open to dependency, and a lack of searching for more constructive solutions to your unhappiness.

Chemicals can't cure loneliness and pessimism. As a matter of fact, these feelings will be aggravated by their use.

As far as your need for close friends, and especially a boyfriend, you surely recognize that these are common but vital needs? Are you sure you've done everything to attract people (not just goys) to yourself? Are you having difficulty overcoming your shyness? I recognize that it is very difficult to muster up enthusiasm and energy when one is consumed by unhappiness and self-preoccupation.

Are there activities you do enjoy? Why not try to avoid concentrating on your need for a boyfriend, and instead work at the things that five you pleasure. Perhaps you can meet people in those circumstances, when the "best" side of you is apparent. Maybe you need other environments, recreational centres, teenage clubs, etc., to meet new people. These are just ideas which may not be appropriate, because I don't know you, but you can likely think of others. If your feelings of sadness persist, even after all your attempts, then you might consider speaking to a counsellor or psychotherapist.

Dear Rev. Cotter: I'm 14 and I'm fed up with life. My parents are divorced and my mother gets mad at me over everything I do. My father doesn't even pay attention to me.

I want to run away; my boyfriend says I can go to his place. His parents say it's okay. I want to change, but who can I get attention from? If things don't start straightening out within a week, I'm leaving. I've done it before. It seems my whole life is in the gutter. Please help me to make the right decisions, I'm so hurt.

Answer: At your age you could appeal to the Children's Aid Society in your area. There are also some agencies that put the child's interests first.

Until you get through to an agency, and perhaps to help you do so, your boyfriend's parents sound as though they may help. Do you think they will let you stay there a while, without taking advantage of you or being difficult with you? Perhaps if they have a more normal home than yours you can go there and calm down till you get help.

Edith Head kills image laid on her

By KAREN HALL

Head

DETROIT (CP) — She is sitting in the basement of Hudson's Northland, sandwiched between sewing machines and Christmas toys, autographing patterns for middle-aged ladies in bouffant hairdos.

It's not exactly where you'd expect to find Edith Head, an internationally-acclaimed costume designer and winner of eight Academy Awards.

But there she is anyway — smiling, listening to horror stories of patterns gone wrong, promoting the Vogue sewing patterns she has endorsed for the past four years.

A shrewd lady, this Ms. Head who, after 1,008 movies and twice as many interviews, is sick to death of her image.

"If one more person calls me a living legend I'll knock his teeth out," she says. "I think after a while you get the title by default."

After working for years dressing both men and women, Head says she prefers to work with men.

"Women are such nice little fashion sheep, following whatever gets the most publicity, showing very little sophistication.

"I like men better.

"Women couldn't care less how they feel as long as they look sensational. But men are governed by comfort, by feelings. Yes, give me Robert Redford or Paul Newman anytime."

The two superstars' names, thrown in so casually, open the floodgates to an insiders' Hollywood. The names go back to the 1920s and Cecil B. de Mille, who gave her a start in the business with his extravagant movie epics.

"Those were the days when we'd have 4,000 extras to dress, and we dressed them all. You don't find pictures like that anymore, and I miss them like mad.

"But I have a great aversion to those who spend all their time reminiscing. I guess I miss those movies because I am a costumer, not a designer. And there aren't many period pictures anymore. I also miss the beauty and culture of the past.

"In the early days of movies everybody had swimming pools, Rolls Royces, were beautiful or handsome and lived happily ever after. Now everybody's getting hurt or being sent into space."

Which is why Edith Head doesn't do many pictures anymore. A few years back she did W. C. Fields and Me and Gable and Lombard — two movies that weren't exactly box office hits.

"They were flops. Absolute disasters. And why? — because you cannot recreate human people. There was too much resentment by a generation of people who absolutely loved those stars and felt it was an invasion of their privacy."

Now she does some television (Little Women last year), but mostly concentrates on the Vogue patterns and promotional tours.

"I like what I'm doing with Vogue because I've always wanted to sit down and just design. A costumer doesn't have that opportunity — the script is written, the director knows what he wants and you simply make the clothes to fit the period.

"And I like the travel too. It keeps me busy."

It also fills the void created when Wiard Ignen, her architect husband, died last spring.

"I don't like being alone. I don't like living without a man around — and I'm not talking sex. What do you do when you're old and the man you've spent 40 years with is suddenly gone? Do you put an ad in the paper?

"Do you know that I married a man who didn't approve of women working?

"I had to lead a double life. During the day I could dress Grace Kelly or Cary Grant, and at night I could go home and turn it all off."

Grace Kelly, her favorite actress, just happened to star in To Catch a Thief, her favorite movie.

"A very gracious, elegant woman. My job was to make her look that way, but it was easy. She had it all."

Today's fashions make her eyes flash and her nails tap.

"I'm upset about reviving the '40s, that's one thing for sure.

"All this retro stuff is stupid. If you can't think up something new, get out of the business. If you have to go to the mini or all this space-age stuff, why don't you just bring back the toga and go naked except for that?"

A fashion statement from the woman who in 1959 wrote The Dress Doctor which told women what to wear — and what not to wear — in polite company. Never mink for a prize fight.

Ms. Head says that all of the advice contained in The Dress Doctor, written in 1959, does not apply today. "Gloves and hats will never come back. But the other principles do.

"I'm not a freakish designer — leave it to the two or three extroverts in Paris who are getting all the press right now. I'm more interested in a person looking well-dressed than showing off."

Head says she has not changed much in the last 40 years, except to get older.

"Actually I look like an owl."

Color cult California's latest

By DAVID BEHRENS
Los Angeles Times

There's a new fad springing up in the land of Self-Help, where people are learning to live happily-ever-after by thinking color.

Along the San Francisco Peninsula, from San Jose to Sausalito, a growing number of middle-aged Californians are asking each other, "Have you had your color done yet?"

It is a fad that may someday follow the trail of skateboards, hot tubs and roller skates. But so far it is merely entrenched in Suzanne Caygill's Salon of Color in downtown San Francisco. For Suzanne Caygill, in her 60s, color co-ordination is "the centre of the universe." It is a secret, she says, that she discovered more than three decades ago in Los Angeles.

Caygill calls herself a color analyst. She sees herself as a chromatic therapist of sorts, a self-styled dispenser of rainbow cures. She will study a skin tone, a hair shade, an iris, and rebuild your wardrobe, your home, your possessions, your entire life, if you let her.

It is not uncommon to find a dozen or so people at Caygill's penthouse salon in downtown San Francisco, milling about a table displaying 9,000 shades of color in racks of cards, dreaming of a life with a new tint. Suzanne Caygill believes in "color harmony," and the secret to color harmony, she says, is "the inner light that you have, the quality of color that is unique to you."

To help discover this inner quality, Caygill's clients pay $150 to $200 or more. They leave with a color chart or palette, based on their skin tone, hair and eyes, which Caygill personally prepares. In some California communities, shoppers say they feel naked shopping without their palettes.

It is called "having your color done." Caygill claims that now, at California cocktail parties, people discuss their palettes the way they used to discuss their analysts.

As a professional color consultant, a profession she claims to have made into a independent craft, Caygill i slightly reticent about h history.

Caygill says that she ha been a fashion designer eve since she was 17.

WINDOW DESIGNER Stefan Wypchol puts a few finishing touches on a window fashion display in a Winnipeg clothing outlet. Wypchol says that while window dressing has received much attention for its departures from tradition in recent years, the responses are not always favorable.

In and of itself, cholesterol in the diet does not determine whether a person's cholesterol count goes up or not. It is the total calories that matter. If a person consumes more calories than he expends, he will gain weight. In turn, an increase in weight tends to send the cholesterol count upward.

Bread is one food that contains no cholesterol at all.

Since 1970, there has been a new policy on education in Canadian penal institutions. Contracts with schoolboards, community colleges, and universities have brought outside teaching expertise into the correctional centers themselves. Penitentiaries now have elementary, secondary, and post-secondary levels similar to those in classrooms across Canada. In addition, a wide range of technical and trade courses are offered.

Inaugural council: Couvelier vows open gov't

Mayor's aye breaks tie to appeal land freeze

Saanich council Monday stuck to its position that 25 acres in the North Quadra area should be removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve.

Mayor Mel Couvelier cast a tie-breaking vote in a 5-to-4 decision to appeal to the B.C. Land Commission for removal of the land.

Council voted 4 to 3 last week in favor of the appeal but Couvelier and Ald. Geoff Vantreight were absent.

In resurrecting the controversial issue, Ald. Irene Block said the matter should be reconsidered in light of contradictory statements by the South Saanich Farmers' Institute.

Institute secretary W.C. McKechnie wrote a letter to council altering an earlier position taken by the organization on the agricultural potential of the property.

Block also said Couvelier has said in the past that he is in favor of saving greenspace and so he should have an opportunity to vote on the controversial issue.

Richard Fatt resigned last week after a lengthy term as president of the farmers' institute. He charged the council with political manoeuvring regarding the future of agricultural land in North Quadra.

Council instructed Couvelier Monday to write to the institute for whatever information can be supplied in connection with Fatt's charges.

Mel Couvelier kicked off his second two-year term as Saanich mayor Monday with a promise to provide greater access to municipal information.

"We still hear far too often that information requests are not receiving the priority attention they deserve," he said in his inaugural speech to the 1980 council.

"It should be a self evident fact that if citizen involvement and suggestions are to be useful to our deliberations, we all must start from the same set of facts, and further, that these facts must be distributed far enough in advance of the group discussion to allow intelligent analysis."

He said staff would be asked to draft a freedom of information bylaw modelled on recommendations of an Ontario commission which studied the matter.

Couvelier also announced that a special committee will be set up, headed by Ald. John Mika, to study ways of preserving greenbelt areas.

The committee will also examine the possibility of increasing the present five-acre minimum standards in rural Saanich.

The mayor also announced:

— the establishment of a youth council to tackle a serious problem of vandalism;

— creation of a municipal archives;

— restructuring of the public works portfolio;

— a special committee to improve transportation facilities for the handicapped;

— the appointment of Ed Lum, former mayor and newly-elected alderman, as ombudsman replacing Ald. Mary Casilio.

On the subject of vandalism and juvenile delinquency, Couvelier said one of the difficulties is there is no unified approach to combatting the problem.

Many organizations, such as the YM-YWCA, boys and girls clubs, the human resources ministry, as well as school district personnel and Saanich's parks and recreation staff have their own programs but there is little co-operation.

Saanich is therefore asking these agencies to join the proposed youth council for regular meetings to work out comprehensive programs, Covelier said.

"This initiative will obviously not provide instant solutions, although with perserverence and good will, it may reduce the severity of the problem to manageable limits."

Couvelier said the public works portfolio will be split with Lum acting as service division chairman with responsibility for the underground services committee and veteran Ald. Sandy Noel will be responsible for road maintenance and reconstruction.

One of the committee's first tasks will be to re-initiate talks with Victoria regarding the extension of North Dairy Road, the mayor said.

Couvelier predicted Saanich property owners will pay higher taxes next year based on a provisional budget of $39.5 million, up from this year's actual budget of $37.9 million.

Although the general municipal tax levy of $16,188,365 is $3.8 million, or 31 per cent, higher than last year's, the mayor said the tax hike will be nowhere near that high.

The following is a list of committee appointments not already mentioned:

— Vantreight, chairman of the lands, planning and housing committee;

— Ald. Robert Cameron takes over the finance and legislative portfolio from Block, who moves to law enforcement and protective services;

— Casilio, former ombudsman, will chair the parks and recreation committee; — personnel comittee, Couvelier, Mika, Ald. Howard Sturrock, Noel; audit, Couvelier, Cameron, Lum; special events, Casilio, Roy Wootten, Ken Middleton, Richard Gibson; Royal Theatre committee, Casilio.

C. Saanich starts with acting mayor

Central Saanich mayor ean Butler is ill with a heart condition and the municipality will have an acting mayor for some time.

Municipal clerk Fred Durand said Monday Mayor Butler was recently in hospital and is now at home under doctor's orders.

Ald. Earle Tabor was appointed acting mayor for December and January at Monday's inaugural meeting.

There was no election for mayor this year.

Appointments made on Monday included:

Capital Regional District board director — Ald. Dave Hill, alternate Mayor Butler.

Saanich Peninsula Water Commission — Ald. Tabor, alternate Ald. Percy Lazarz.

Accommodation and maintenance — chairman, Ald. Frank Waring. All council.

Budget and legislation — chairman, Waring. All council.

Finance and personnel — chairman, Butler. All council.

Parks and recreation — chairman, Ald. Dick Sharpe. All council.

Public works — chairman, Lazarz. All council.

Sewer — chairman, Tabor. All council.

Subdivision and zoning — chairman, Ald. George MacFarlane. All council.

Urban transit — chairman, Hill. All council.

Water — chairman, Hill. All council.

Agriculture — chairman, MacFarlane, Lazarz and Sharpe.

Fire — chairman, Lazarz, Sharpe and Tabor.

Health and welfare — chairman, Sharpe, Hill and Tabor.

Library — chairman, Tabor, MacFarlane and Waring.

Public information — chairman, Hill, Lazarz and MacFarlane.

Water still Sidney issue

Final revision of the community plan, completion of the regional water trunk line, expanded library facilities and a proposed breakwater are among the important unresolved issues in Sidney, according to Mayor Norma Sealey.

At the Sidney council inaugural meeting Monday, Sealey said there had been "some stability of government" in Sidney over the past five months, but the unresolved issues must now be settled.

Committee appointments announced Monday: Capital Regional District director — Mayor Sealey; alternate — Ald. Howard Norquay.

Saanich Peninsula Water Commission — Norquay.

Committee A (finance, administration, police, personnel) — Chairman Ald. Ross Martin; Norquay; Ald. Glenn McMillan.

Committee B (Public Works, water, parks) — Chairman Ald. Bernard Ethier; Ald. Eleanor Sowerby; Ald. Daryl Ashby.

Firewardens' committee — Ethier and Ashby.

School board liaison, intermunicipal representative — Sowerby.

Emergency measures representative — Martin.

Breakwater committee representative — Martin.

Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association director — Sealey; altermate — Martin.

Vancouver Island Regional Library representative — Sowerby.

Esquimalt eyes assets

Echoing a campaign theme he never had to use, Esquimalt Mayor Ken Hill took office Monday calling for his council to seek new sources of revenue to offset rising costs.

Hill said Esquimalt is in good shape financially, but with less new construction taking place, the increasing cost of protective services, charges for the public safety building and continuing inflation, council must ensure that all 1980 budget items are realistic and warranted.

The new mayor suggested that developing three acres of municipally owned property at the north end of Grenville Avenue for housing would be one means on increasing revenue.

With no major capital construction projects in sight, the municipality must focus on improving existing services, Hill said.

Former mayor Art Young committed the municipality to acquiring waterfront land when it became available, and Hill pledged to continue as "it is economically advisable."

Hill suggested the municipality should improve at least one beach access every year.

The problem of revenue sources was repeated by municipal clerk Peter Cairns when he presented council with a provisional budget for 1980.

The [illegible] about 5 per cent up over the 1979 figure. In past years, Cairns noted, revenue from an expanded tax base and new construction covered budget increases.

But Esquimalt's 1979 building construction total of $2.5 million is down drastically from the three-year average of $6.5 million.

Budget increases include an $80,000 hike in interest costs for the public safety building, $150,000 more for protective (police and fire) salaries, and $345,000 extra for inside-outside worker salaries.

Major Esquimalt appointments announced Monday included:

Group A Committee: Finance and zoning — Jim McEvay; planning, zoning and housing — Barry Gilbert; fire and provincial emergency program — Robert Jones.

Group B Committee: Public Works — Larry Mann; traffic — Colin Blair; legislative, property and personnel — Darwin Robinson.

North Saanich studies alliances

There should be closer co-operation between North Saanich and the other peninsula municipalities, as well as School District 63, North Saanich mayor Eric Sherwood said Monday.

In his inaugural address Sherwood said council should:

—Establish a fire protection policy for the municipality's southeast quadrant.

—Provide road maintenance with an emphasis on public safety.

—Prepare for expansion of library facilities in co-operation with Sidney.

—Hold the line on taxes.

Both Sherwood and Sidney mayor Norma Sealey stressed in their inaugural speeches that the municipalities should co-operate more than in the past.

North Saanich appointments include:

Capital Regional District director — Ald. Harold Parrott; alternate, Ald. James Cumming.

Saanich Peninsula Water Commission — Ald. Alan Cornford; alternate, Cumming.

Committee A (planning, zoning and land use) — Chairman, Ald. Edgar Farthing. Ald. Dermid Bingham, Sherwood and Cornford.

Committee B (Public works, utilities, parks and recreation) — Chairman, Cumming. Cornford, Parrott and Ald. Julian Rangel.

Fire committee — Chairman, Parrott. Bingham, fire chief and Firemen's Association representative.

Select emergency services requirement committee — Chairman, Parrott. Rangel, fire chief and building inspector J.P. Wheeler.

Oak Bay spotlights zoning

Next year is a good time to take stock and the tool to be used is the official community plan, Oak Bay's new mayor Doug Watts told the inaugural meeting Monday.

In an address which contained a number of similarities to his recent election campaign and no surprises, Watts said council and residents must decide what Oak Bay is and what it wants to be in the future.

This included not only zoning but also the use of large homes, subdivision sizes for large lots and heritage buildings.

He believed complete approval of an official community plan can be achieved by the end of 1980.

Other issues to be tackled in the new year included parking problems in Oak Bay Village and around Camosun College, frequency of garbage collection and the energy problem and use of oil.

Watts hopes it will be possible to reduce the municipal mill rate.

He identified two areas of provincial assistance needed by Oak Bay, both of which he emphasized in his election campaign.

A provincial government grant in lieu of taxes for the University of Victoria property inside Oak Bay would have produced $427,000 in 1979, he said, noting that now both the ministers of education (Brian Smith) and finance (Hugh Curtis) are former mayors of Saanich and Oak Bay. Councils of both municipalities have pressed for a provincial grant in lieu of taxes.

The other area Watts identified was the higher municipal police costs compared with areas served by the RCMP, a situation he described as inequitable and requiring correction.

The elected and re-elected council members (all but Ald. Shirley Dowell who is in the middle of a two-year term) were sworn in by provincial court Judge harold Alder.

Committee chairmen are: Zoning, Ald. Susan Brice; Lands, building and housing, Ald. Dowell; Finance, Ald. Gordon Holms; Fire and personnel, Ald. Peter Bunn; Streets and traffic, Ald. Isabel Craig; Works, Ald. Neil Swainson.

The acting mayor will be Swainson and Oak Bay's director on the Capital Regional District board will continue to be Ald. Dowell.

In other business, former mayor and Oak Bay-Gordon Head MLA Brian Smith presented an award from the Royal Canadian Humane Association for sea-rescue to a group of Oak Bay volunteers for service when the federal coast guard is not available.

Council voted again to table the question of Oak Bay's support of the Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission becoming a function of the Capitsl Regional District with Watts suggesting this may need a discussion first by local mayors.

School budget submitted

Greater Victoria School trustees reserved four days this week to debate a $4.73 million capital spending budget and then surprised themselves by passing it in little more than an hour Monday.

The proposed plan for 1980 provides for major improvements to Gordon Head, Torquay, Lambrick Park, and Cloverdale schools, and is now submitted for ministry of education approval.

Some planning has already occured and, if the ministry consents, $1.7 million worth of new classrooms and other facilities will be under construction next summer.

Another $415,000 will be spent upgrading Tillicum School.

In addition, trustees recommended to the incoming board a 1980 minor alterations budget of $152,605.

Trustees were pleased with the changes in budget proposals drawn up by district planner Bob Yates, and said they were largely responsible for quick approval.

But Trustee John Young said he could not help feeling "all our efforts here will amount to zero because the ministry will decide" what will be spent on capital improvements to schools.

He said the board is "by far the most competent group to make these decisions," and suggested the ministry should simply set a ceiling on spending.

Superintendent Allan Staples said the ministry had been made aware of these sentiments, which are shared by the administration, and predicted a change in the ministry's approach.

Trustee Winfield Mott said he could agree with Trustee Glyn Williams that the ministry must apportion funds to all school districts. But he agreed more with Young that the district itself should set priorities while the ministry sets capital limits.

Poll bright for Carter as candidacy official

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, set to announce today that he is seeking re-election, has pulled almost even with Senator Edward Kennedy in a new opinion poll.

Earlier in the year, Carter was trailing Kennedy 2 to 1 in polls of Democratic voters, but an ABC-Louis Harris poll released Monday night showed Carter trailing Kennedy 44 per cent to 51 per cent among Democratic voters in a head-on race.

The poll showed Carter even closer in a three-way race including Gov. Edmund Brown of California, the third major contender for the Democratic nomination. In the three-way matchup, the Democrats polled gave Kennedy 44 per cent, Carter 40 and Brown 10.

Carter actually was ahead of Kennedy when Democrats were lumped together with independents, who can vote in some Democratic primaries. Among both groups of voters, the poll showed Carter led Kennedy 48 to 46 in a head-on race and 42 to 40 in a three-way race with Brown, who got 11 per cent.

Robert Strauss, Carter's campaign chief, predicted Kennedy's attack on the shah was a political blunder that will cost him votes.

Kennedy said in a San Francisco television interview Sunday that the shah "ran one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind," and questioned why Carter would admit him to the United States when "Hispanics who are here legally have to wait nine years to bring their wife and their children to this country."

Kennedy later insisted he wasn't attacking Carter's handling of the hostage situation, but state department spokesman Hodding Carter said Kennedy did not help the crisis.

Camel camel goes to court

PARIS (AP) — Advertising featuring a smiling dromedary with a smoking Camel cigarette in its mouth has prompted the government to seek a $40,000 fine from R. J. Reynolds-Tobacco Co. and its French promoter, Homsy, Delafosse et Associes.

The U.S. tobacco company was charged Monday with violating a 1976 law which prohibits all tobacco advertising that depicts more than the name of the product, its composition, the name and address of the manufacturer, graphic or photographic representation of the product or its wrapper and the emblem.

U.S. dollar alarming Saudis

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said Monday OPEC was considering replacing the U.S. dollar as the currency for buying the cartel's oil.

Yamani blamed the West's insatiable appetite for oil for ever rising prices and said the move from the dollar to a basket of currencies was being considered to protect OPEC members from from currency fluctuations.

Yamani made his remarks towards the close of a two-day meeting in Dhahran of OPEC's five-member strategy committee, made up of oil ministers from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Iraq, Iran and Venezuela. The group is charged with forging long-term strategy for the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Asked whether the question of maintaining or replacing the dollar as the currency in which all OPEC oil is bought and sold was considered, Yamani told the Saudi Press agency:

"OPEC used dollars at various times in the past. Before the dollar, it used gold, then dollars again, then a basket of currencies, then back to the dollar.

"The subject of (switching to) a basket of currencies may be one of the subjects to be adopted for OPEC's long range strategic plan, or OPEC may adopt it before the plan is completed or it may continue with the dollar."

Yamani said the question of the dollar versus a basket of currencies was not related to the actual price of oil but more to the "protecting of OPEC member countries from currency fluctuations.

"OPEC is not in control of prices," Yamani said. "The reason for rising oil prices can be found with the Western countries."

OLGA'S A PIG of a walrus when it comes to mackeral and herring, which she consumes to the tune of $13,000 a year at the Brookfield, Ill., zoo. The one-ton Atlantic walrus is the most expensive animal the zoo maintains, and the institution is sponsoring an "adopt Olga" program for the Christmas holidays, in an attempt at raising some cash to defray the large food bill.

300,000 Cambodians without food, water

BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai government said Monday it has cut off food and water to an enclave of about 300,000 Cambodians on the Thai border because the anti-Communist Cambodian guerrillas in charge diverted civilian supplies to their own use.

The government was also angered by the Free Khmer guerrilla chiefs' refusal to co-operate with the Thai military's efforts to evacuate their Cambodian civilian followers to safer areas inside Thailand.

The civilians have sought temporary refuge in the enclave, straddling the Thai-Cambodian border, because of the fighting and famine in Cambodia. It was unclear where they now might obtain food and water.

Col. Prachak Sawangchitr, military commander for the Thai border province of Prachinburi, said food and water shipments to the huge encampment, called Non Mark Moon, were halted after the military found evidence that the supplies were distributed to troops and not civilians. He said he also received reports that some Cambodians in charge sold supplies to forces fighting in Cambodia.

Prachak said the Thai military has had difficulties trying to control the Non Mark Moon enclave, which is run by Prince Norodom Soriavong, who claims to be a cousin of former Cambodian head-of-state Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The Free Khmer movement is fighting the Vietnamese-backed government in Phnom Penh in hopes of restoring a non-Communist, neutral government in Cambodia. Guerrilla followers of the ousted radical Communist Premier Pol Pot also are fighting the Vietnamese and Cambodian government troops.

IRA avengers ambush guard

BELFAST (AP) — A Roman Catholic man was shot to death in his suburban home Monday, and a few hours later a Protestant prison guard was slain, police said.

A telephone caller claiming to represent the Ulster Freedom Fighters told a Belfast radio station the militant Protestant group killed 35-year-old David White because he was a quartermaster in charge of weapons with the IRA's terrorist Provisional wing.

Police sources said White, who ran a silver goods business, was shot Monday morning while in bed in his West Belfast home. They said he was not known to be connected with the IRA and there were no weapons in the home.

Sources close to the IRA also said White was not a member, but added: "We're getting a lot of calls asking when are we going to balance the books."

A few hours after White's death, gunmen ambushed the prison guard as he got out of his car at his home in Belfast, police said. The prison officer, who was not identified, worked at Belfast's Crumlin Road prison.

He was the eighth prison officer killed this year and the 16th since the guerrillas began attacking prison guards four years ago in an attempt to force the British into giving convicted IRA men political-prisoner status.

Strangling eagle nets 10 years

SEATTLE (AP) — A man who admitted strangling a wounded bald eagle at the Woodland Park Zoo has been sentenced to up to 10 years in prison.

John Paul Mariano, 25, had claimed he wanted the feathers for Indian ritualistic purposes.

"Regardless of what your philosophy was, you knew that you were doing something that was beyond your right to do," said Superior Court Judge Nancy Ann Holman at the sentencing Monday.

Mariano had pleaded guilty to a second-degree burglary charge stemming from the September incident, when he broke into a cage containing two eagles after the zoo had closed for the day. Only one eagle was harmed.

Mariano's attorney, Carl T. Hultman, said he believed federal authorities had dropped plans to file charges against his client under laws protecting bald eagles, in light of the county action.

Mariano was arrested two days after the incident at a Seattle bus terminal, after a woman told police Mariano had talked to her about eagle feathers.

SOMOZA

No political strongman has risen in Nicaragua to take the place of fallen dictator Somoza, and no single policy rules the country: "We are climbing up a mountain, carving out a path with a machete."

Sandinista guerrillas cheered in victory — and still keep a grip on the country's reins

After Somoza, a committee

By KAREN DeYOUNG
Washington Post

MANAGUA — Four months after the fall of dictator Anastasio Somoza, the guerrilla-led government that replaced him fits no easy definition. It is neither communist, nor totalitarian, nor particularly democratic so far.

The Sandinista revolution has no "caudillo," no political strongman in the Latin tradition extending from Bolivar to Peron, through Castro and Pinochet.

Ruled for 45 years by the Somoza dynasty as a personal fiefdom, Nicaragua now is run by a committee.

On the surface at least, the country today enjoys an appearance of normalcy that was rare during the last two violence-filled years. Bombed-out factory skeletons and empty, looted stores are grim reminders of last summer's civil war. But the streets of Managua now bustle with traffic.

Much of the political grafitti that adorned walls throughout the country has been painted over; roads torn up to build guerrilla barricades have been repaired. Schools are reopened; restaurants and movies are back in business. After a long hiatus, the Coca-Cola plant is busily bottling, and the Esso refinery is producing gasoline.

But the changes cut deep. A decades-old political and economic structure has been completely dismantled since July. In its place is a jumbled semi-socialism that is administered by a blend of leftist militants and U.S.-trained technocrats. Radical rhetoric fights a daily battle with harsh realities of life in this bankrupt Central American nation.

The Sandinista National Liberation Front, and the civilians it has appointed to help govern, claim not to know where this careful balance will lead.

"We have never worked according to a plan," said Bayardo Arce, one of nine Sandinista national directors. "We are climbing up a mountain, carving out a path with a machete."

As a movement with a somewhat amorphous set of nationalistic slogans, the Sandinistas have appointed themselves "the guarantors and judges of the revolution." While it remains unclear who is running this country, and by what rules, the Sandinista organization has placed itself in a position to do so, by any rules it wants.

Members of the nine-man directorate hold key positions in virtually every sector of the government. There are Sandinista-organized labor and peasant organizations, a Sandinista women's movement and new Sandinista farm communes formed from expropriated Somoza land. Sandinista military commands parallel new civilian administrations in every municipality in the country.

But the Sandinistas are not as monolithic as they seem. The directorate is a consensus group, created last year to include three leaders from each of three Sandinista factions — historically divided over both personalities and socialist doctrine — who decided that the war would be more quickly won if they fought it together.

One theory is that by dividing up power within the government, they have arranged a balance among the factions that keeps any one from dominating. Three men who once headed each of the three factions — Daniel Ortega, Jaime Wheelock and Thomas Borge — are the leading candidates for those who speculate on the rise of a new "caudillo."

Ortega, 33, is the only guerrilla member of the executive junta that the Sandinistas appointed to administer Nicaragua. Stiff, unsmiling and given to harsh "anti-imperialist" statements in public, Ortega is described by both the government's civilian members and foreign diplomats as a shrewd pragmatist in private.

Wheelock is head of the new Nicaraguan Agrarian Reform Institute, controlling nearly half the country's arable land following expropriation of Somoza-associated holdings. He is thus one of the most powerful men in Nicaragua. Soft-spoken and studious, he is known as a militant socialist scholar. But outsiders tend to consider Wheelock the most "intellectual" and "reasonable" of the Sandinistas.

The quiet, organized atmosphere of Wheelock's Agrarian Reform Institute starkly contrasts with the new Interior Ministry, where Borge reigns over a daily bedlam of hundreds of petitioners, most seeking jobs or the release of jailed relatives, and the nosiy clatter of bodyguards' rifles and walkie-talkies. A patriarch of the Sandinista movement in his 50s, Borge is in charge of police and domestic security.

If there is conflict and competition within the directorate, or any attempts to push the revolution along a pre-ordained path, it is well hidden in public.

At the same time, the Sandinistas seem content to let the five-member junta administer on a day-to-day basis. That body, including Ortega, businessman-politician Sergio Ramirez, publisher Violete Chamorro and physicist-union leader Moises Hasan, also operates by consensus.

Making decisions by committee "gets irritating sometimes," said one businessman within the junta's 18-member Cabinet. "But the idea is that this way no one individual can take over and run things without the others' approval."

Former regime lined pockets before going

MANAGUA — The bombed homes and factories, the looted stores and the fallow cash-crop fields that went unplanted during last summer's civil war are only part of Nicaragua's erconomic crisis. Nicaragua today is also suffering the after effects of years of official plunder.

As direct results of the war, more than 25 percent of all industrial facilities have been destroyed. Half of the blue-collar work force is unemployed, and even more are without jobs in the agricultural sector.

But such statistics are only part of a disastrous financial picture that foreign and local observers, as well as many within the new guerrilla-led government, believe could crucially affect, and perhaps radicalize, Nicaragua's still undefined political future.

Former President Anastasio Somoza left the country with such an enormous debt that, according to one international economist who has studied its books, his government might not have survived very long even if Somoza had won the war.

The new Sandinista National Liberation Front government's past-due debt of $618 million is a legacy of Somoza's repeated short-term borrowing abroad at high interest rates. It is also more than Nicaragua's total export earnings in a normal year. Similar annual amounts are due throughout the next decade.

Despite his distraction with the war, Somoza spent the final weeks of his administration liquidating every asset he and his government could lay hands on, and stripped both the national treasury and overseas accounts of cash.

Among the documented examples:

—Until 10 days before he left the country on July 16, long after all normal commerce and transport in the war-torn country had been halted, Somoza's privately owned slaughterhouse worked overtime to kill and ship nearly $1 million in Nicaraguan beef to a Miami distributor. The Miami company, owned by Somoza, has refused to settle the outstanding bill with the new owners of the now expropriated slaughterhouse, the Sandinista government.

—When officials of the new Nicaraguan government nationalized Somoza's assets and moved to take over the national airline, they and their lawyers allege they found all the ticket stock had disappeared. Later, the tickets, written for passage on other carriers and charged to Nicaragua, began to show up in the hands of exiled Somoza associates.

—In the last three days of his regime, one of Somoza's highest military aides and the aide's wife, a member of Somoza's Cabinet, drew out of the treasury nearly $200,000 in cash and checks on government accounts abroad. Hundreds of others who did the same and left the country are also listed in similar last-minute transactions, according to documents found in the Central Bank files when the new government took over.

The government nationalized Somoza's extensive holdings in Nicaragua — totaling nearly 150 companies in whole, family or partial ownership — only to find that most were heavily mortgaged. "Somoza may not have been a very good businessman," one of the new government's advisers charged with something close to perverse admiration, but "he sure was a great crook."

The United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America, which analyzed Nicaragua's financial picture last August, estimated that $315 million in cash or equivalents was taken out of the country during the first half of 1979.

The new government in Managua has hired former assistant secretary of state William D. Rogers to try to get back some of the money that left Nicaragua with Somoza, and to look into extradition possibilities should the exiled dictator, now in Paraguay, ever re-enter the United States.

But possibilities of recovery are considered slim. Most of Somoza's fortune, estimated at between $100 million and $500 million, is believed in European accounts or buried in networks of dummy corporations.

New refugee crisis looms in Pakistan

By MICHAEL T. KAUFMAN
New York Times

PESHAWAR, Pakistan — The rising number of Afghan refugees arriving here and the worsening physical condition of many of the newcomers attest to a harsh civil war in Afghanistan made harsher by winter snows.

In the last month Pakistani officials have registered about 20,000 refugees who have come by foot or donkey or camel along rugged mountain trails. One official Pakistani agency has reported that since the guerrilla insurrection against the Soviet-backed government in Kabul began, 260,000 Afghans have fled to this country. Another government report two days ago put the figure at 310,000.

The influx is seriously straining Pakistani resources, said Brig. Nawab Khan, a retired military doctor who is the administrator of the Peshawar-Khyber Hospital, a large government facility.

"We really make no distinction as to where our patients come from, but the increase is entirely attributed to the Afghans," Khan said.

He added that the kinds of injuries for which the Afghans are being treated reflect the increasing violence across the mountainous border: "We have gunshot, shrapnel, bomb-blast wounds."

"Now that winter is setting in, we are also getting frostbite and some malnutrition among the Afghans."

The hospital is dependent entirely upon government funds, and as part of a national austerity drive it has been ordered to cut its already reduced budget by 20 per cent more. "I've already cut out meat," the brigadier said.

He added that he had met with representatives of the International Red Cross, telling them that what was needed was a network of field hospitals in the refugee camps, as well as food, plasma and clothing.

The Pakistani government has been given some international aid for relief of refugees. The Red Cross is gearing up for what officials here in northwest Pakistan believe will be a worsening of the situation.

'All 3 engines going'

SCOTT BASE, Antartica (Reuter) — All three engines of an Air New Zealand DC-10 that crashed into an Antarctic mountain were functioning at the moment of impact, an accident investigator said today:

"We haven't yet been able to establish the level of power in the engines, but we do know they were going."

Meanwhile, the two vital flight recorders which were recovered from the wreckage two days ago were flown to the U.S. today for examination and analysis.

Chippindale said he expects the results of the examination to be relayed back to him in about five days. This would enable officials at the scene to pinpoint the parts of the wreckage that need to be retrieved.

All 257 persons, including three Canadians, aboard the airliner, which was on a sightseeing tour, were killed. Officials said today it is possible that up to 200 bodies will be recovered, many more than earlier expected.

Saudis new hope for pistol inventor

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI) — A man who claims to have invented a hand-held laser pistol that can shoot down an airplane at 5,000 feet says the device may be manufactured outside of the United States because the American military is apparently uninterested in it.

Gene Robbins, 27, said he has been contacted by several foreign governments about the untested weapon.

He said he probably will accept an offer from Saudi Arabian to produce the device in there, although he is also considering an offer from an American firm to manufacture it in the British West Indies.

The device has not yet been demonstrated because Robbins is still waiting for delivery of a lens, but he claims it will be the most powerful hand-held weapon ever made.

He said the weapon will be capable of bringing down an aircraft flying an altitude of 5,000 feet.

15-year sentence

SEATTLE (AP) — Marie L. Ferreboeuf was sentenced to 15 years in federal prison Monday for her role in the May 24 slaying of a federal customs officer.

The 26-year old woman was convicted in October of being an accessory after the fact when her husband, Artie Ray Baker, shot Kenneth G. Ward, 36, at the U.S.-Canada border station near Lynden, Wash.

Baker was convicted of first-degree murder.

U.S. District Judge Walter T. McGovern sentenced Ferreboeuf to 10 years for helping Baker flee from the scene of the shooting and another five years for assaulting a federal officer.

He ruled that she may remain free on $50,000 bond pending her appeal of the sentence.

Thatcher to visit U.S.

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is to make a two-day visit to the United States on Dec. 17 and 18, her office said today.

She will meet President Carter at the White House on Dec. 17 and go on to New York next day, a Downing Street spokesman said.

British officials said Mrs. Thatcher regrets that her busy parliamentary program does not allow for the customary "side trip" to Canada.

Asylum bid

HAMBURG (Reuter) — A 41-year-old Soviet interpreter, identified only as Josif B., has asked for political asylum in West Germany, police said today. He had been working in Hamburg at a festival featuring his hometown of Leningrad.

Grandparent abuse a rising social problem

BALTIMORE (AP) — A U.S. researcher says that while child abuse and wife beating have drawn considerable attention, another serious family problem — battered grandparents — has gone mostly unnoticed.

Abuse of the elderly may be as severe as child abuse, said Marilyn Block, a researcher for the University of Maryland Centre on Aging.

"It's sort of at the stage that child abuse was 20 years ago; people are horrified at the notion," said Ms. Block, who conducted a one-year, federal government-funded study of the elderly in the United States.

Most of the abuse is psychological rather than physical, Ms. Block said she found.

And, although the elderly were more likely to seek help than members of other abused groups, they were usually unsuccessful in getting help.

Most physical abuse involved neglect and blows resulting in welts and bruises rather than bone fractures.

She added, however, the study did uncover some cases of beatings, fractured skulls and bones and being tied to a bed or chair.

Psychological abuse centred on verbal assaults, threats and fear. She also said some elderly people are isolated while their money and property is being stolen or misused.

Other elderly persons are denied medication, treatment, eyeglasses and false teeth, she said.

Ms. Block noted there are questions still to be answered, such as how many of the abused parents had abused their children and how many deaths result from abuse of the elderly.

She said abuse of the elderly can be harder to identify because senior citizens are not as visible.

"If an elder stays in the house for a year, who's going to notice?" she said. "It makes it easier to ignore."

Ms. Block's study, conducted with a $100,000 grant from the federal Administration on Aging, shows the typical abuser of the elderly was white, middle-aged, middle-class, female and Protestant. In addition, the abusers were most frequently their adult children.

The victims, with an average age of 84 years and in poor health, were generally white, physically disabled, female, Protestant and lower-class to middle-class.

Heinrich, Kinnaird meet Friday

A meeting between B.C.'s top labor leader and fledgling labor minister Jack Heinrich is tentatively scheduled for Friday in the minister's Victoria office.

For Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, this will be his first opportunity to meet the minister although he has already objected to the appointment on grounds that Heinrich has no experience in the labor field.

Heinrich is not letting labor's cool reaction discourage him.

"The first thing to do is meet Mr. Kinnaird and let him level at me some of his major concerns," he said Monday.

The minister said there is no specific agenda for the meeting, just general discussions.

"We have to get to know each other," he said.

However, he agreed that labor's current attack on the effectiveness of the Workers' Compensation Board almost certainly will be discussed.

Representatives of government, WCB and the United Injured and Disabled Workers' Association met in Vancouver Monday and NDP MLA Frank Howard said Heinrich should have been there.

"Because the minister of labor is not personally at the meeting I can only conclude that the interest of the provincial government is somewhat limited," he said.

Referring to Heinrich's inexperience Howard added: "As an apprentice he should be trying to get as much first-hand information as he can about the plight of the injured and disabled workers who have been picketing the WCB offices in recent days."

Heinrich said he sent an associate deputy minister to the Vancouver meeting as his representative. He intended to meet today with that official along with the chairman, vice-chairman and two commissioners of the WCB.

The minister said he has spent a great deal of time studying the complaints about the WCB contained in a brief presented by IWA president Jack Munro; now he wants to find out what the other side has to say.

Friday's meeting between Heinrich and Kinnaird is considered only tentative because Kinnaird is attending the Canadian Labor Congress executive council session in Ottawa for most of the week, flying home Thursday night.

He will make the Friday meeting, a federation spokesman said, if he makes all his plane connections. Otherwise it will be rescheduled.

This will be the first formal meeting between top government and federation representatives in six months. The last brief encounter occurred last June when the federation made its annual presentation to cabinet.

The meeting also is evidence of Heinrich's intention to meet quickly with top labor officials, a promise he made the day he was sworn in.

ICBC wins court test

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court has ruled that the Insurance Act of B.C. takes precedence over the Human Rights Code because the act is specific legislation while the code is general.

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe, in a decision Monday, over-ruled a human rights board of inquiry which had found the Insurance Corp. of B.C. guilty of a violation of the code.

The case began when Robert Heerspink tried to insure two buildings in Sidney against fire damage. The corporation cancelled the insurance after learning Heerspink had been committed for trial on a charge of trafficking in marijuana.

Claiming unfair treatment, he went to the Human Rights Commission and won.

Shot seal pup floats ashore

The body of a harbor seal pup washed up in Cadboro Bay Monday — shot in the head twice.

A fisheries protection officer said today it is the second water mammal to be found dead in a week.

Last week a sea lion bull, measuring about 3 to 3½ metres and weighing about 700 kilos, was washed ashore in Ross Bay. It had been shot in the head and neck.

The carcass was removed by members of the Provincial Museum's archeology department. Jim Haggarty says the bones will be treated and placed in the department's comparative collection.

He says the department doesn't like to take animals but bones like that of the sea lion help identify species found on archeological sites.

The fisheries spokesman said it is believed the animals were shot in the Race Rocks area where harbor seals and sea lions gather in numbers.

He said eyewitnesses to such shootings should report them to the fisheries protection branch at 388-3252 or the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

"There are some pretty ignorant people out there," he said.

His department, he added, is taking one case to court early next year. The department has an eyewitness who saw the shooting of a sea lion about this time last year.

The maximum penalty under the B.C. Fishery General Regulations is $5,000.

Bennett vows he'll fight Ottawa tax on B.C. gas

"British Columbia's gas is British Columbia's gas," Premier Bill Bennett said today.

He pomised to vigorously oppose any tax on B.C.'s natural gas exports, a move reported under consideration by the federal government.

Bennett also said he will oppose any suggestion that B.C. sell gas to its American customers at bargain rates.

The U.S. government has asked the National Energy Board to order B.C. to give its gas customers in Washington and Oregon a better deal.

The premier said B.C. wants fair value for its gas and will not withdraw its application to the NEB for a further increase in the export price.

Provincial officials say if the new federal budget next week tacks an export tax on natural gas, it will cost the B.C. economy hundreds of millions of dollars by discouraging sales south of the border.

Bennett said he objects to any federal taxation of B.C. resources.

"I'm afraid they would tax two areas — not just exports but also the gas at the wellhead, which would affect our ability to keep the price low for British Columbians," Bennett said.

B.C. has a two-price system for its natural gas. Domestic users buy gas for about one-third of the export price.

Jim Rae, assistant deputy provincial finance minister, confirmed Monday the federal government has approached B.C. about the tax, saying it would raise $5 billion over the next four years.

Rae said that while Prime Minister Joe Clark's administration may be bluffing to speed federal-provincial agreement on a national energy policy, it is much more likely that they mean to do what they say.

"Our problem is that while we hope that (an export tax) is not the case we can't dismiss it either. The problem is that B.C. is a much less important player in all of this than Alberta is."

He said that while Alberta exports five times as much natural gas to the U.S. as B.C. — 750 versus 145 billion cubic feet a year — Alberta is much less vulnerable to tax intervention by the federal government.

Alberta returns most of the gas export revenue it earns to producers, while B.C. keeps most of its export revenue.

"To Alberta this is small potatoes. While they export a lot more gas than we do, what they're really concerned about is the price of oil."

Logging rules to blame for slides - minister

Rookie Environment Minister Steve Rogers said Monday forest ministry logging regulations are probably to blame for mud slides which caused extensive damage to salmon-spawning beds in the Rennell Sound area of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Rogers said the weather may also have been partially responsible because several slides occurred in areas which were not being logged.

He said QC Timber Ltd. of Vancouver, which has been cutting timber in the area, "may have caused the damage, but they are not necessarily the ones to blame.

"It may be that ministry of forests regulations have been too lax in this case."

The new minister, appointed to the cabinet 10 days ago, said the area is a mess.

Rogers's comments came with his own environment ministry and the forests ministry at odds on how much damage has been caused by mud slides.

An official in the environment ministry said Friday "many, many tons of materials were deposited into Riley Creek" which flows into the sound, causing extensive damage.

Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Monday some sediment went into the creek but he believes the official, environment regional director Don Smuin of Smithers, was exaggerating.

Rogers said he has not seen the damaged area and he doesn't think it would be worthwhile to fly to the area to decide whether damage was substantial.

"It's a couple of thousand dollars down the tube just for the definition of a word," he said in an interview.

Smuin said, following an on-site inspection, that the mud slides probably destroyed the salmon fishery there.

Waterland disagreed: "While there was some sedimentation, it hasn't been demonstrated that it will permanently harm the spawning areas."

Waterland said his ministry recognizes there "are a lot of unstable slopes in the area, and we have been in the process, for the past year, of reassessing our slope stability classifications working with fish and wildlife and the federal fisheries departments."

He rejected suggestions from the federal fisheries department that logging be halted on steep slopes and said new rules will be implemented to prevent destruction of salmon-spawning streams in the future.

A total of 13 slides occurred during heavy rains Nov. 20-22, two of which extensively damaged Riley Creek. Eight more slides were reported in the area Nov. 26.

Smuin said the fishery in the drainage area includes salmon, steelhead, rainbow trout and Dolly Varden trout.

He said more landslides will occur in the area during the next two years and nothing can be done in the logged areas to halt massive soil slides.

The bidding:

Opening lead — jack of hearts.

The great majority of mistakes made in bridge are of the common garden variety. A player who errs generally knows better than to commit the particular error he makes, but, for some unexplainable reason, he takes his eye off the ball at a critical moment. As a result, he sometimes gets punished inordinately for a relatively innocent miscalculation.

Consider this deal, where South failed to make three notrump in a fairly routine hand. West led a heart. Declarer won east's king with the ace and returned a low club. West went up with the king and led the ten of hearts, forcing out the queen.

South now had to go down one, whatever he led next. Actually, he returned the jack of clubs — West rising with the ace to cash three heart tricks and put a quick end to the matter.

Declarer would have made the contract had he taken the precaution of ducking East's king of hearts at trick one. He should have realized that if East had another heart to lead the defense could at most capture two hearts and two clubs to hold him to nine tricks — while if East did not have another heart to lead, he would be unable to stop the contract regardless of what he decided to return.

The only combination of cards that could defeat the contract was for a defender to have five hearts and the A-K of clubs — and South should consequently have ducked the king of hearts to protect against this possibility.

There was no good reason to take the king, and every good reason not to take it. The hand required one simple play at trick one, and all that South had to do was meet the challenge head-on.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, December 5, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to factual material. Emphasize practical affairs, responsibility. Property, security, long-range policies grab spotlight. You are "involved." Know it and don't duck necessary sequence of events. Capricorn, Cancer natives figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get verification of views. You are due for added recognition. Those who were cool or indifferent will sing an opposite tune. One who aided, taught you in past will make reappearance. You will know—yet again—that you are loved!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): New approach, a more independent course results in profit. Know it and act accordingly. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You gain valuable clues leading to location of articles lost or stolen. Cycle on way to peak.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lunar cycle is such that you persuade, win, "make" circumstances favor your personal efforts. You're on target—in timing, judgment. Another Cancer, a Leo, Virgo and Aquarian play key roles. Yes, you do regain what was lost!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Participate in social affair sponsored by club, political or church organization. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in active scenario. You gain access to information which aids in relieving emotional burden.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Barriers to progress are removed. You make contact which aids in fulfilling hopes and wishes. Be specific concerning details, business arrangements. One in authority is willing to make room for you at more elevated position. Proceed accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Reject the superficial—insist on reasons for recent happenings. Piece together bits of information—you can come up with complete story. Chances for success increase as you accept added responsibility. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Status quo no longer suffices. Significant domestic change, adjustment dominates scenario. Long-range view is necessary; perceive potential, open lines of communication. Spotlight on decoration, purchase of item which makes home living more comfortable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold off on co-signing; be positive of financial commitment, ratings. One close to you may attempt to "defy odds." Key is to maintain your own equilibrium. Pisces, Virgo individuals could play major roles. Define terms, avoid self-deception.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on obligations, legal and otherwise. Relationship is intensified—marital status commands special attention. Gather information, determine what can be utilized and what should be discarded. Another Capricorn figures prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Attend to basic issues, keep medical, dental appointments, resolutions. One who shares interests, beliefs aids in completing important project. Past favors are returned—you are reimbursed for financial, emotional efforts. The number 9 pops up in scenario.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on getting to heart of matters. Highlight originality, independence of thought, action. Emotions dominate logic—you could fall madly in love. Leo, Aquarius natives figure prominently. Accept offer which includes a pioneering concept.

IF DECEMBER 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are on road to recovery from recent disillusionment, emotional setback. In 1980, your position is strengthened, you will be on more solid ground and in control of your own destiny. September could be your most memorable month. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. During this month, December, you make a valuable, new contact. You currently are undergoing a transformation—and it adds up to major benefits. You are perceptive, capable of communicating in graphic, meaningful manner. You have potential to gain through written word.

Celebrity recitals coming back in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Laurane and Lois Schultz, Winnipeg's newest impresario team, say the time is right for a return to celebrity recitals in the city.

The mother-and-daughter duo, under the name Classic Concerts Ltd., has tested the water with the recent appearance of violinist Pinchas Zukerman and his wife, flutist Eugenia Zukerman.

They said they were pleased with the results of their first effort, attended by more than 1,400 people.

"It's very encouraging for us for our first performance with this type of concert," Lois said. "I think there were a lot of people wondering what the sound would be like at this kind of recital."

While not going into details as to whether the concert made money, she added, "We're definitely not behind."

The Schultzs are planning a brief discovery series in the spring, featuring up-and-coming artists. Next season, pianist Alicia de Larrocha will be among the performers.

They also intend to bring world-class singers to the city.

"At one time this was the place for this type of concert," said Laurane, once a piano student at the Juillard School in New York. "Twenty years ago, Winnipeg was one of the best concert cities in North America."

She said a resurgence of the popularity of classical music has encouraged her and her daughter to take the financial risks of bringing in the stars.

In many ways, hearing a soloist perform a concerto with a symphony orchestra "isn't really enough."

But, her daughter added, there's no reason why a symphony orchestra and a recital series "can't exist together."

"We're willing to take all the risks," Lois said. "If we announce the dates, people will plan accordingly."

While, as Lois said, "anyone is just a phone call away," a certain panache is sometimes required when dealing with artists.

"You have so many egos to deal with," said Laurane. "Some are down to earth and some are prima donnas. Singers are notoriously bad."

Lois said a lot of really great singers are reluctant to come to Winnipeg "because it's so cold."

Situated on approx. ½ acre this spacious home is very unusual in its character and design. The large living area includes quiet conversation areas and two fireplaces, a separate dining room with antique leaded glass doors and two curved stairways to the loft style upper floor. Two very large sundecks, an assortment of stained glass and an enchanted castle design make this a home for that person looking for something different.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

309 IN MEMORIAM

DAVIES — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas, who passed away December 4, 1977.

No longer here, our lives to share,
But in our hearts, he is [illegible]
there.
— Ever loved, ever remembered,
Harr[illegible]

DAVIES — In memory of our Dad and [illegible] Davies, who passed away 2 years ago today, December 4, 1977.

More and more we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies beneath our hearts concealed.
— Always remembered by daughter and son-in-law, Gladys and Ted Estensen, grandsons Harry, Ted and families.

DAVIES — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas, who passed away December 4, 1977.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger ever day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
— Ever loved, ever remembered,
Edith, John and family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

gardening

When winter blows 'prepared' shows

Strong winds do not deal kindly with new plants set out during the past two months, and the serious gardener is conscious of the damage that can be caused.

Plants with heavy foliage which present high resistance to air that is moving in a hurry are battered from the east and west by each storm until a large hole has developed where the trunk or stems enter the soil.

Most newly planted subjects have a three to five inch opening in the soil at the base of the plants, while some have a hollow up to nine inches across.

A contributing factor to this excessive rocking is the free moisture in the soil which has loosened the area we tried to stamp firmly around the roots when it was dry in September and early October.

Last month my records show a total of 21.3 mm of rain compared with 124.6 mm in the same month last year. This left a reasonably dry soil, but over the weekend 31.6 mm fell in 20 hours.

This amount of moisture in the soil in such a short period, together with moderate to strong wind, gusty at times, left many "leaning towers" in home gardens.

When the soil can no longer support the plants the rocking action in the wind can break new rootlets that formed in the mild weather since planting time, resulting in the loss of root hairs by which the plants obtain their food and water.

To the plants which keep their leaves over winter, the broad-leaved evergreens and the conifers, this loss of hair roots is serious because high winds remove moisture from the foliage which cannot be replaced when feeding roots are missing, or not in close contact with the soil.

It is important that these wind-created holes be filled immediately and the soil again firmed to make close contact with the roots. Also that stakes be placed to support the larger shrubs and trees over their first winter.

Unless this is done, and the plants are checked after each strong wind, the night will come when frost will poke its icy fingers into the holes and destroy the few roots that remain.

Setting the plants upright and firming the soil under present conditions is more easily said than done. As most soils in the area have a high clay content, stamping will result in a condition similar to concrete when the moisture disappears next May, and neither roots nor water will penetrate the compacted mass.

After preparing the necessary stakes and ties the first thing the gardener needs is a couple of fairly long planks to lay on the surface of the soil to distribute weight while working.

After that, dry compost will be needed to pack into the holes around the base of each plant. The surrounding wet soil is unsuitable since even the insertion of a shovel will cause compaction.

Where does one find a good supply of reasonably dry compost?

If the gardener followed the suggestion in this column last September, to put a good supply of compost under cover while it was dry, the problem is solved.

If not, it may be possible to find some suitable material at the bottom of a compost heap made last summer.

This will not be too difficult to reach when the pile is in the open, or in a box with a front of sliding boards.

When filling the holes, only the dry compost is firmed with the hands or the handle of a trowel, not the surrounding wet soil.

There is nothing unusual about these conditions. We experience them every fall and winter, and finally reach the stage where we prepare for them well in advance.

Before the judge

Judge William Ostler handed out a suspended sentence and six months probation to a 19-year-old Oak Bay youth Monday in Victoria provincial court.

Wayne Murray Andrews, 1312 Victoria Avenue, pleaded guilty to simple possession of marijuana. He had been originally charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking.

Crown counsel Malcolm Macaulay told the court Andrews was stopped in a car on the evening of May 10 and a two-ounce baggy of marijuana seeds and a weigh scale was found. Police then searched Andrews' residence and found another baggy of marijuana in his bedroom, Macaulay said.

Defence lawyer Michael O'Connor said Andrews was an exceptional athlete who graduated last spring from Oak Bay High School and attended a university at Eugene, Oregon, on an athletic scholarship until recently, quitting for financial reasons.

O'Connor said his client is hoping to attend University of Victoria in the spring of 1980 and would like to become a teacher.

Ostler said it was particularly depressing to see such a young man "fooling around with this junk."

He ordered Andrews to perform 100 hours of community service work as part of his probation order.

A 27-year-old Vancouver man received a $250 fine after pleading guilty to a July 28 assault in Prince Rupert.

Albert David Ross pleaded guilty to assault causing bodily harm in connection with a domestic dispute.

Ross' common-law wife, Susan Louise Smith, told RCMP she met Ross at the Rupert Hotel parking lot, where they had an argument. Crown counsel Richard Law said Ross grabbed the woman and struck and kicked her. The woman suffered a ruptured eardrum in the attack, Law said, but recovered in about a week.

Cabinet to return $404,748

The B.C. Systems Corporation is finally going to get the $404,748 it overpaid the provincial government for computer equipment 18 months ago.

The cabinet, in orders made public Monday, agreed to return the money it received in error March 30, 1978.

Vice-president Robert Skene said the Crown corporation paid M and S Graphics Systems for computer equipment, then paid the provincial government for the same equipment.

He said the oversight was not spotted until last spring but could not explain why the cabinet took so long in returning the money.

Indoor roller rink gets go

Aldermen today overturned a recommendation of the Victoria city planning department and gave the green light to an indoor roller rink planned for an old bowling alley at 966 Yates Street.

Denise Heinekey, operator of the James Bay roller skate rental outlet, was originally turned down by the city because long-term plans envision a high-density residential neighborhood for that area.

But council's land use planning committee gave her approval after learning the total investment will be only $60,000 and the lease is for just three years.

Spokesman Tom Loney said the rink wouldn't interfere with land assembly and redevelopment of the area.

He said the city couldn't just manufacture a new neighborhood by changing the zoning laws. It would happen only when market forces were right.

The building is now owned by McCall Bros. funeral home.

Ald. Bill McElroy said he was concerned that the roller rink would actually be a roller discotheque with a liquor licence and associated problems.

But Loney said it would be a family-oriented operation. Miss Heinekey said it would cater more to fitness buffs. The rink will be for children and adults, figure skating and dancing, she said.

Parking was the committee's main concern. The property in question has no parking space of its own. McCalls' has agreed to a restrictive covenant on its property guaranteeing parking for the life of the roller rink lease on 966 Yates.

Jr. Guides meet players

Members of the First Dunsmuir Pathfinders will meet the visiting Famous People Players after their performance on Friday in the McPherson Playhouse.

Pathfinders is a new branch of the Girl Guides of Canada for girls between 12 and 15 years of age.

The Famous People Players, most of whose performers are mentally handicapped adults, ia a well-known blacklight theatre company which presents a mime and music show with puppet animations of celebrities.

They have appeared on television in Las Vegas and in Toronto and will present a Christmas variety program at the McPherson on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Three Victoria area hospitals will receive 25 animal cartoon paintings from the 25th Victoria Pathfinder unit this week.

As a pre-enrolment challenge the girls created 75 animal cartoon paintings.

The Queen Alexandra Hospital will receive 25 of them on Sunday. On Monday evening the Pathfinders will give 25 to the Victoria General Hospital and the remaining 25 to the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Stand-in ship for Marguerite

FRESH RASPBERRIES in December? Not all that surprising to some green-thumbed Victorians perhaps, but it was a first for Winnifred Hickling, 81 Maddock Avenue West. In fact, she had pulled out this year's canes and the cane she's showing here was intended for next year. Maybe what she's eating is an early 1980 crop, not a late 1979 batch. (Bill Halkett photo)

Vessel's fate kept secret — Barber

By JAKE BANKY

A temporary replacment for the Princess Marguerite in time for next year's tourist season on the Victoria-Seattle run seems assured, the Times learned Monday.

The Marguerite likely will be replaced, perhaps for the next three seasons, by a Swedish vessel.

And, according to Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber, the decision to retire the Marguerite was made last August but kept secret from the public.

It's also been learned responsibility for B.C. Steamship Co., which operates the Victoria-Seattle run for the government, has been quietly switched within the cabinet from tourism to transportation.

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser said Monday B.C. Ferry Corp. general manager Charles Gallagher and chief of operations George Baldwin are en route to Sweden to inspect two vessels, one of which likely will be leased as a temporary replacement for the Marguerite.

Both ships under consideration are owned by the Stena Line, the same company from which the former NDP government bought the vessel Stena Danica, later rechristened Queen of Surrey. The Surrey until last week was being considered as a permanent replacement for the Marguerite.

After a protracted struggle within cabinet the Surrey wound up committed to the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run and last week began a $7.5 million refit.

Responsibility for B.C. Steamship now rests with Fraser instead of Acting Tourism Minister Don Phillips.

Fraser says the only significance of the move is that all government-owned vessels now come under one ministry.

Barber today released a document which he says proves the government has been "less than candid" about the decision to retire the Marguerite.

The document (Barber doesn't say how he acquired it) is a draft copy of minutes of a B.C. Steamship board of directors meeting held Aug. 2. The minister then responsible, Phillips, attended the meeting.

The minutes "make clear they have known since August that the Marguerite would not be on the run again in 1980," Barber said.

"Why the minister decided to keep all this secret is be-

Gasoline price up at Esso

An increase in Imperial Oil's price of gasoline and related products announced in Toronto Monday will also hit B.C., Don Coghill, public affairs adviser for the company, said today.

Other oil companies said they haven't heard of any increases.

Esso regular and furnace oil were hiked 0.3 cents a litre or 1.4 cents a gallon. Esso 2000 unleaded and diesel went up a half-cent a litre or 2.4 cents a gallon.

Esso Extra unleaded are up .7 cents a litre, or 3.4 cents a gallon.

Bert Brown, Alberta area manager for Gulf Oil, said his firm has no immediate plans to increase prices.

Neil Palmer, of Shell Canada in Vancouver, said he had not heard of any impending price increase for his company's products.

He said Shell's last increase was Nov. 1, and that was to cover an increase in the cost of crude.

Higher school taxes if budgets go over 8%

Property owners will have to pay higher school taxes next year only in districts where teacher pay hikes and budget increases exceed 8 per cent, Education Minister Brian Smith said Monday.

Smith said budget increases exceeding 8 per cent are inflationary and will not be paid for by the provincial government.

"I'm really surprised at that," Rubymay Parrott, president of B.C. School Trustees Association, said today. "He didn't mention that to me yesterday when I spoke to him.

"This will prove to be an even greater hardship on taxpayers."

"There is not going to be government money to pick up budget increases of 10 and 11 per cent," Smith said. "Where the budget increases are that high, some of that will have to come through local taxation."

Smith expressed hope that local taxpayers would get some relief through homeowner grants, reassessments and various grants to the districts.

Parrott said Monday local taxpayers face 14 per cent increases in school taxes because the provincial government is not increasing its proportional share of school costs.

She wondered today whether Smith's 8 per cent limit had been approved by treasury board. On average across the province, she said, school district budgets are up 10.4 per cent.

"Some districts are going to be away beyond that." (Greater Victoria's provisional budget is 10.6 per cent higher at $55.4 million.)

The education ministry has estimated the basic levy for school purposes in 1980 will be 43.5 mills, a six-percent increase from this year's 41 mills.

"The government is continuing to punish local taxpayers," said Parrott.

It was explained the 41-mill rate raised $557 million, while the proposed 43.5-mill rate, on higher assessments next year, will raise $638 million, an increase of 14 per cent.

"This means that funding from the government will be the same as last year and the local property owner will have to bear the full burden of inflation," said Parrott.

"This makes five straight years that this government has increased the basic mill rate," she said. "Since 1975 when this government came in, the provincially-set local property tax has increased to $638 million from $275 million.

Trials are on, students the judges: Gotbzadeh

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Foreign Minister Sadegh Gotbzadeh said today U.S. hostages will definitely be tried on espionage charges and will be judged personally by their student captors.

Ghotbzadeh also said he will ask for the arrest and trial of three U.S. diplomats when they leave the Iranian foreign ministry in Tehran where they now enjoy asylum.

The minister, in an interview released by the official Pars news agency, said Iran had now done all it could to defuse the crisis and the next move was up to President Carter.

The students, who are holding 50 Americans for the 31st day in the U.S. Embassy compound, have angrily rejected reports that several American hostages were being softened up for imminent spy trials.

Gotbzadeh's statement was the first that the judges would be the student captors themselves, rather than members of Islamic revolutionary courts who have tried and condemned hundreds of supporters of the deposed shah of Iran.

Back in New York, the United Nations Security Council agreed unanimously today to call on the Iranian government to release the hostages immediately, Council members reported.

The members said a resolution setting out the Council's views will be put to an official vote at a meeting later today.

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim will be asked "to lend his good offices to the immediate implementation of this resolution and to report urgently to the Security Council," the sources said.

It was reported that Saudi Arabian troops early today rooted out the last of the Moslem fanatics from the basement of the Grand Mosque of Mecca, but sources said unrest has spread to the kingdom's vital oil fields.

Duncan RCMP lay murder charge

A 22-year-old Cobble Hill man was shot dead early today in a disturbance at a house in Duncan.

RCMP responded to a complaint about about 12:30 a.m. and went to the home of Richard Cooper, 1779 Cowichan Bay, where they found the body of David Anthony Sween.

A 12-gauge shotgun was seized.

Police said Mark David Stadnyk, 21, of 116 — 2420 Auchinachie, Duncan, was arrested and was to be charged with second-degree murder.

The investigation is continuing.

What price a child's life?

How old are your children?

What would your life be like if half of your children had died before blowing out the five candles on their birthday cakes?

Almost half all children born in Nepal die before the age of five.

Nepalese children are dying of diseases that have been virtually wiped out in the civilized free world — diphtheria, pertusis, tetanus and tuberculosis. The cures or preventions for all these diseases are almost as readily available as aspirin.

What price a child's life?

In this case, the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, working through the Nepal Ministry of Health, bought life for Nepalese youngsters with $60,000.

The money was spent over a two-year period to provide immunization services to youngsters in 62 districts.

The grant covered the cost of inoculation, storage equipment (including refrigerators) to carry vaccine to the most remote moutain villages, and a seven-day training course for 200 health workers.

The training course includes lectures, discussions, practice and supervised field experience in organizing and conducting immunization programs.

When a candidate finished the course, he or she was required to initiate and administer at least six camps for the immunization of a minimum 100 children per camp.

The immunization program is one of several pilot projects sponsored by the USC in Nepal, a kingdom of more than 13 million people in an area one-fifth the size of Alberta. Because of the mountainous nature of the country, one-third of the country lies under perpetual snow or consists of alpine meadows.

Life expectancy in Nepal is 40 years; compared that to Canada's 65 years plus.

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I was grabbing for hair. I was grabbing for bodies. I was grabbing for my life.

"I knew some of the people under me were dying, but I could not get up."

That's what it was like for 22-year-old Jeff Manchester as 11 persons died in a crushing human wave surging into Riverfront Coliseum for a rock concert by The Who.

Police Lt.-Col. Joseph Staft said seven young men and four young women were trampled and killed when the mob pushed into the hall in a crush of bodies that continued for 30 minutes.

Eight other persons were severely injured, police said. Twenty more were treated at hospitals and released.

The Monday night concert, which drew an audience of more than 18,000 people, went on as scheduled and The Who made no mention of the tragedy during their performance.

But Keith Altham, the British group's European press agent, said today the rock group was "absolutely devastated by the sheer horrific proportions of the tragedy", and is considering cancelling the rest of its U.S. tour after a concert scheduled for tonight in Buffalo.

"When all the dust settles and blame is apportioned all around the fact remains that 11 kids are dead. It's a black day for rock," Altham said.

"We decided to let the concert go on," said Lieut. Dale Menkaus who led 25 policemen in a crowd-control detail. "If we stopped it, we would have had a worse panic."

Menkhaus estimated that more than 6,000 persons, some who had waited for hours in near-freezing weather, were crowded on the coliseum's plaza level waiting for the doors to open. Many had been drinking and smoking marijuana.

As at some past rock concerts, some seats were reserved, but about half were available on a first-come first-served basis.

"The group likes to do a little sound test," Menkhaus said. When the crowd heard the music, it surged forward.

"They opened only two doors," Menkhaus said. "They have about 50. I suggested they open more, but was told there wasn't enough personnel to open more."

Jeff Chaney, an army veteran, said he tried to revive three of the victims. His efforts failed mostly "because people just didn't seem to care."

ried accounts of travellers from Saudi Arabia that the unrest had spread beyond Mecca to the oilfield area in the eastern provinces, but Saudi officials has denied all such reports.

The Beirut leftist newspaper As Safir says new unrest involved Shiite Moslems who support Iran's leader, the Avatollah Khomeini.

The demonstrations in the eastern provinces turned to violence in Knobar, Qatif and Rahiman, three towns just north of the main oil complex centered on Dhahran and Dammam, the Lebonese paper said.

Another clash was reported at Abqaiq, one of the largest and most prolific oil fields in the country; the government sent 20,000 troops to the area to reinforce local police.

Iranians have voted 60 to 1 for Khomeini's Islamic constitution, giving the Shiite Moslem patriarch supreme power for life, but there was no word of how many boycotted the referendum.

The charter requires a theocratic government in this predominantly Moslem nation, and opponents claim it will confirm Khomeini as a dictator.

In Washington, Carter administration officials are reporting no progress in efforts to find a haven for the deposed shah of Iran and some are beginning to talk of his stay in the U.S. as "open-ended."

The homeless Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was reported secluded in comfortable, heavily guarded VIP quarters at Lackland Air Force Base on Monday after being moved from the base hospital.

At the shah's request, federal officials were releasing no reports on the his physical condition.

In a related development, Iran's Finance Minister Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said at an anti-U.S. rally outsside the beseiged embassy Monday night that Iran is contemplating further reductions in its oil output and that Iran no longer is accepting U.S. dollars in payment for crude oil.

Iran now is accepting only European currencies for its oil, he said without disclosing which currencies.

Informed sources said the currencies included the British pound, the French franc, and the West German mark. Some have paid in a mixture of currencies and others have paid in a single unit, they said.

Part of the problem arises from artificial teacher salary settlements, the trustees' president said. These average 9.5 per cent, even though 8.5 per cent is the level of salary increases negotiated in the public sector.

In her own district, Saanich, Parrott said trustees and teachers settled on 9 per cent to avoid going to arbitration. Arbitrated settlements likely will be higher, she said, driven up by the higher increases in some rural and northern districts.

Al Blakey, president of the B.C. Teachers Federation, said the increase is totally unnecessary. He said the 43.5 mill estimate means the provincial government share of education costs will be reduced to 35 per cent from last year's 39 per cent.

"Moreover, the ministry's share in dollar terms will actually be less than it was last year."

"This brings the government share of school costs down to an all-time low."

An education ministry spokesman said that for the first time, cost of the basic education program will exceed $1 billion.

Under the province's complex financing formula, government operating grants to school districts are calculated on the basis of the cost of a basic education program. Each school district is given a number of instructional units, based on school populations.

The instructional unit value for 1980 has been set at $32,700.

The ministry said that provisional operating budgets for school districts increased an average of nearly 11 per cent for the coming fiscal year.

A spokesman said that provisional operating budgets for 1980 have increased $106 million from 1979 although enrolment has declined by 1 per cent — 5,000 students — 495,000, and staffing levels also declined nearly 1 per cent.

Final basic levy will be announced in April. Deadline for school districts to draw up their budgets is Feb. 15.

Bullet wound described

A wound in the head of 36-year-old Thomas Young Lackey was caused by a hand gun from a distance of less than three inches, neurosurgeon Dr. A.H. Ibrahim told a B.C. Supreme Court trial today.

Ibrahim, the first defence witness, said the bullet entered the left temple and exited between the eyes. He saw powder burns when he examined Lackey Nov. 8, 1978.

The doctor's testimony was given in the seventh day of Lackey's trial on nine charges, among them attempting to murder Sgt. William Hillcoat by shooting him with a firearm on Nov. 8, 1978. (See earlier story, page 8)

Lackey's trial was interrupted for about half an hour this morning when the Law Courts building, 850 Burdett, was cleared following a bomb threat.

A man who didn't identify himself phoned city police at 10:14 a.m. and said three bombs were set to go off in 15 minutes.

A police check of the building turned up nothing.

Marguerite to be replaced

yond me," he said. "It's a matter of significant public concern in Victoria."

Barber is particularly upset by the revelation that at the Aug. 2 meeting, B.C. Steamship general manager Arthur Elworthy and consultant Ian Street threatened to resign if the Marguerite were to run again.

The NDP MLA argues that the engineering reports on which the decision to retire the vessel is based have never been made public.

"We call again on the minister to release all documents and studies connected with the vessel," he said.

The minutes mention a cost of $1.2 million to refit the Marguerite. Also mentioned is an estimated cost of $14 million to buy and refit what was then considered a likely prospect as a permanent replacement — a nine-year-old German-built vessel with a capacity of 2,500 passengers and 150 cars.

The Marguerite's maximum capacity is 1,800 passengers and 50 cars.

Barber said if the Marguerite must be replaced — and he is by no means convinced she should be — "it should be done on the basis of public documents that demonstrate beyond question that the Marguerite is no longer competent."

Aside from the minutes he has released, Barber said, the public has had no documented evidence on which to base an opinion.

He also said if scrapping the Marguerite is justified, then a temporary vessel should be leased and a permanent replacement built in B.C. shipyards by B.C. workers.

Fraser said the possibility of building a replacement in B.C. is "one of the options we are looking at."

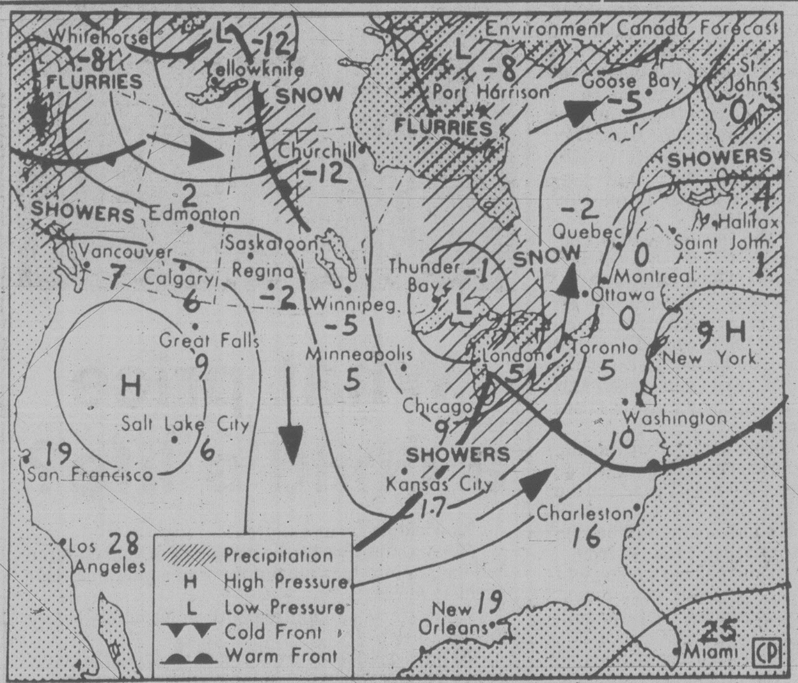
Fraser also said if either of the two Swedish ships proved suitable, B.C. Steamship Co. likely will lease it for two or three seasons on a six-month-a-year basis.

"That will give us some time to breathe and find out how we deal with a permanent replacement for the Princess Marguerite," he said.

The minister gave no cost estimate of such a lease arrangement, nor did he supply any description of the vessels under consideration.

Gallagher and Baldwin are expected back with a report on the weekend.

the weather



Map valid until midday Wednesday

A strong frontal system will bring more rain to the north coast by late today. Warm air with a system Monday pushed into the southern interior overnight causing snow to turn to rain. This rain will turn to flurries later today as the system moves into Alberta. With the development of a strong westerly flow, B.C. can expect a series of frontal disturbances in rapid succession during the next several days.

What price a child's life?

Nepal's per capita income is $108 a year. In Canada, some of us would be hard pressed to get through a week on that much money.

Some Canadians will ask, so what? Isn't that what foreign aid is for?

The simple fact is, governments of the western world are not doing enough for the starving and sick millions of the world. Much of the help they offer is stopgap, feeding or caring for people for a short time but offering no permanent solutions.

This is where the USC shines.

Under Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova's firm hand, USC pilot projects all have the long-range goal of assisting people to help themselves.

Dr. Lotta also steers the projects towards helping those people who need it most — children, the elderly and the handicapped.

Should any Canadian be able to sleep easily tonight knowing that there are children in Nepal suffering disease or starvation, that there are elderly people who, even after a life of misery can't die in dignity, or that there are people in Third World countries whose lives would be tough under normal circumstances, but who are doomed to lives of abject horror because they are handicapped?

Why not make it a tradeoff? Why not trade in one of life's little pleasures, the sort of thing we take for granted and really wouldn't miss much, to ease the suffering of a fellow traveler on your planet?

A recent advertisement offered a stereo record for $6.98. You'd probably enjoy listening to the music. But if you sent the money to the USC Christmas fund instead, you would know you've covered the cost of a doctor's weekly visit to a clinic in Nepal.

Or could you could tell yourself you've fed a Bangladesh youngster for 41 days.

Or you could fall asleep knowing you'd bought a couple of warm school uniforms for some other Bangladesh kids.

Try a donation to the USC Christmas fund-raising drive. You might find it's more effective than a sleeping pill.

Donations may be made at the Times business office or sent to the Victoria Times, Post Office Box 300, Victoria, V8W 2N4 — or left at any branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Cheques should be made payable to the Unitarian Service Committee.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

Grateful thanks are extended to all relatives, friends and neighbors for the loving care given to Mrs. Lillian May Arnold during her final illness. The kind sympathy and beautiful floral arrangements and cards are deeply appreciated. Special thanks to Mr. John W. Jenner and the management and staff at Sands Mortuary Limited. — Bill Arnold.

309 IN MEMORIAM

DAVIES — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas, who passed away December 4, 1977.

No longer here, our lives to share,
But in our hearts, he is always there.

—Ever loved, ever remembered, Harriet Moore.

DAVIES — In memory of our Dad and Grandad, Thomas Davies, who passed away 2 years ago today, December 4, 1977.

More and more we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies beneath our hearts concealed.

—Always remembered by daughter and son-in-law, Gladys and Ted Estensen, grandsons Harry, Ted and families.

DAVIES — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas, who passed away December 4, 1977.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger ever day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

—Ever loved, ever remembered, Edith, John and family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

UVic alumni set $12,000 funds target

A target of $12,000 for student scholarships, loans and other voluntary programs is set by University of Victoria Alumni Association in its 1979 drive for donations from members.

The one-month campaign ends Dec. 31 and will provide funds for a number of alumni programs, including McPherson library archives, athletics, research and student aid.

Each alumnus will receive supporting material about the campaign by mail.

New York

Stock prices edged upward today as traders waited out developments in Iran.

Analysts said the stage for an the early advance was set Monday, when stock prices declined only slightly despite soaring gold prices, a slumping U.S. dollar and persisting tensions in the Middle East.

"The market was eligible to get killed," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. "The fact that it didn't is the reason we're having a rally Tuesday."

But after showing a peak gain of four points, early in the session, the Dow settled back again. Iran's acting foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, was quoted as saying that 50 hostages held at the U.S. embassy in Tehran would be put on trial "for sure."

Gainers on the active list included Boeing, up 1 to $46¾; Great Western Financial, up 1¼ to $24⅝; Dart Industries, up ¾ to $38¾, and Litton Industries, ahead ⅞ to $39½.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of trading today.

The Financial Times index was up 4.8 to 423.3.

Industrials, oils and banks advanced.

Canadian shares eased.
